MOVE TO FORCE CONGRESS VOTE ON WET PLANK

Bingham Will Press Repeal in Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Anti-prohibition leaders at both ends of the capitol hailed the Democratic repeal plank today and immediately laid plans to put members of congress on the dotted line.

HIRAM BINGHAM. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], who led the fight for repeal at the Republican convention, served notice that as soon as Democratic members now in Chicago have returned to Washington he will call up in the senate both his resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and his bill to legalize 4 per cent beer.

To Increase Alcoholic Content.

Specifically the latter measure by Senator Bingham is two bills: One to amend the national prohibition act in respect to the definition of intoxicating liquor; the other is a bill to provide for increasing the permissible alcoholic content of beer, ale or porter to 3 2-10 per cent by weight and to provide means by which all such beverages shall be the products of American farms.

Senator Bingham says that in view of the action of the Democratic national convention in Chicago last night today he will await the return of Senator Tydings [Dem., Md.] and the other senators who took part in the Democratic action in order that they may take steps to carry out the Democratic wet plank. Mr. Bingham will cooperate with them.

Senator Glenn to Act.

Senator Glenn of Illinois said today he will work with Senator Bingham to push these measures in congress and he hopes they will be acted on before adjournment.

He agrees that prompt disposition of these matters will permit the presidential campaign to be waged on vital economic issues; relieve the public strain over the prohibition question; reduce criminal activities; furnish an outlet for surplus farm products, and reduce the distressful unemployment situation.

Votes in the senate on both repeal and modification of the Volstead act virtually are assured. The repeal resolution is on the table and the beer bill is on the calendar, so that a test roll call may be had on either one by a motion to take up.

The situation in the house, which acts according to narrow rules and where southern drys dominate the rules, is not so favorable to a vote.

Lay Plans to Demand Action.

In a statement Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] today declared that he and other wet leaders of the house of representatives were laying plans to attempt to hold congress in session until legislation is passed modifying the Volstead act and providing for submission of the eighteenth amendment to a vote of the people.

Wet supporters are centering their hopes on a success in the senate. Should a beer bill or repeal resolution pass in the senate the chances of a house vote would be greatly improved.

Sheppard Favors Repeal Vote.

As a foremost instance of the progress the wet cause has made among members of congress was the announcement by Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], co-author of the eighteenth amendment and dryest of drys, that he had at last come to believe in the resubmission of the 18th amendment—provided the Texas primary in July approves that position. He will not vote for beer. When that question arises he will vote against it.

Senate roll calls on proposals to legalize beer have to date shown a maximum of 32 favorable votes. Seventeen more votes, therefore, must be gathered if a beer bill is to pass the senate.

Two Prohibition Roll Calls.

The two prohibition roll calls in the house showed 169 members favorable to the O'Connor-Hull beer bill and 147 voting for the Beck-Linthicum resubmission resolution. On the showing on the beer bill, it will be necessary to swing some 50 members across the line.

In view of the constantly growing

THE VOICE OF AMERICAN WOMANHOOD

W. Barkley of Kentucky, the temporary chairman of the convention, was presiding, Permanent Chairman Walsh having disappeared, to go to bed, some said.

But while Mr. McAdoo was lauding Garner, Senator Walsh reappeared. He had merely gone out to get a bottle of milk which he uncapped on the speaker's stand, spilling some of it on his ice cream trousers, and then proceeded to suck up the beverage through a straw.

Next the audience recorded its satisfaction at hearing Henry Breckinridge say, in seconding the nomination of Byrd, that "this ordeal, this avalanche of oratory is about to come to an end."

A Second for Byrd.

John Stewart Bryan, Richmond newspaper publisher, seconded Byrd with a Negro story or two at 4:20. Ed McManus of Keokuk, Ia., raised his voice in praise of Ritchie just to show that there is something beside Roosevelt sentiment in that state.

George P. Marshall of the District of Columbia said there is one thing not shared by Washingtonians with others. Washingtonians will have to live with the next President. He wanted to say that Ritchie would be the most satisfactory to live with.

Finally the long process of placing the candidates in nomination came to an end. It had consumed eleven and a half hours, exclusive of the three hour recess between the afternoon and night sessions. The balloting was at hand. At 4:26 the first roll call began. It was greeted with a tumultuous cheer.

Vice Presidency on the Block.

While the speechmaking and the demonstrations were in progress the Roosevelt leaders were pulling a multitude of wires to get the additional delegates necessary to nominate the New York governor. Mr. Farley was claiming 705 votes in the bag and was generally conceded to have at least 672, which was 98 short of the 770 constituting the two-thirds of the convention necessary to nominate.

In the maneuvering for the additional votes by the Roosevelt high command the vice presidential nomination was virtually placed on the auction block. It was generally understood that the Roosevelt managers would throw the nomination for Vice President to the delegation that first swung enough votes to the New York governor to bring about his nomination.

The most promising locality for the auctioneering of the vice presidential nomination by the Roosevelt managers was Texas and California, with a total of 90 delegates nominally committed to the nomination of Garner. Inasmuch as 90 votes would put Roosevelt across the line an easy winner, according to his manager's calculations, these delegations were being viewed with covetous eyes at Roosevelt headquarters.

Connally Uses Strategy.

It became apparent long ago that Speaker Garner could not win the nomination for President and that if he should go out of this convention with anything it would be the vice presidential nomination. But not till yesterday was it definitely established that Mr. Garner would accept second place on the ticket. It was learned that Senator Connally, custodian of the Garner boom, was maneuvering to land the nomination for Vice President for the speaker.

The Roosevelt managers were seeking to lure Connally to throw the Texas delegates to the New York governor with the promise of the vice presidency for Garner while Connally gave them the glassy stare. He might be trying to make Garner somebody's running mate, but he professed to be unconvinced that Roosevelt was going to be that somebody. It might turn out that first place on the ticket would go to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland or Newton D. Baker of Ohio.

Flirt with California.

Mr. Farley and his coadjutors also did some intensive flirting with the California delegation, particularly with William G. McAdoo, who is reputed to be harboring an ambition for the vice presidency himself. Assistance in the endeavor to land the 44 votes of California for Roosevelt was given his managers by W. R. Hearst, original sponsor of Garner for President and a convert to the Roosevelt cause within the last 24 hours.

At the same time the Roosevelt high command was not eliminating from recognition other states with eligible candidates for the vice presidency which might be willing to pay the price in the form of enough votes to put Roosevelt across.

There was, for example, Ohio, with 52 votes, which would bring Roosevelt so close to 770 that a feeble push would send him over the line—Ohio, with no less than four eminent Democrats, any one of whom Roosevelt would be tickled pink to take on for running mate. The four are Newton D. Baker, Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Gov. George C. White, and James M. Cox, nominee of 1920.

Illinois Gets Invitation.

Illinois, with 58 votes, was invited to consider the opportunity of assuring the nomination of Roosevelt and landing Melvin A. Traylor or Bruce Campbell in second place on the ticket.

Nor was Maryland overlooked, despite the fact that a running mate for Roosevelt would hardly be picked from an eastern state. Gov. Ritchie, it was argued, would lend weight to the ticket. Missouri was not given a chance to bid in the interest of former Senator Jim Reed, as that delegation is to go to Roosevelt anyway on the second, if not the first, ballot.

Al Smith and the other anti-Roosevelt leaders were aware of these efforts to put Roosevelt over with votes in purchase of the vice presidential nomination and strove vigorously to hold the favorite sons in line, contending that if the nomination of Roosevelt could be prevented for three ballots he could be beaten eventually.

Iowa May Break Loose.

Just before midnight the possibility that Iowa may break its unit rule and Gov. Roosevelt lose some of that state's 26 votes instructed for him was suggested by Frank D. Gilloon, a delegate, who rose to second the nomination of Al Smith. T. E. Diamond, another Iowa delegate, objected to Mr. Gilloon's right to speak for Smith, and Delegate John Sullivan explained that their state convention instructed the delegation for Roosevelt. The objection was overruled and Mr. Gilloon explained that the convention was held three months ago when Roosevelt was the only candidate before them.

"Since that time a great change has come over the country," said the Smith supporter. "I may not speak the whole sentiment of the whole Iowa delegation, but I speak the sentiment of 327,000 Democrats in Iowa who voted for Alfred E. Smith in 1928."

Both Sides Gain and Lose.

In the raiding of the delegations for votes, gains and losses were sustained by each side.

A Roosevelt gain accrued when the Missouri delegation of 36 caucused and voted to permit its members to change their votes on the first roll call after its conclusion, but before the announcement of the result.

Six Missourians gave notice that they would switch from Reed to Roosevelt before the end of the first roll call. The others indicated that they would vote for Reed once but possibly not again. According to Eugene Guadet of St. Louis, three of the Missouri delegates would go to Roosevelt on the second ballot.

The caucus of the Missouri delegation took place at the Stadium during the demonstration evoked by the placing of Roosevelt in nomination. It was said to have been hurriedly called in order to keep the delegation from breaking away and joining in the whoopee for the New York governor. Reed appeared before the delegation and urged them to stand fast to their moorings. When asked after the caucus if he had released the delegation he shouted: "No, and I was not asked to."

Minnesota Group Released.

A possible setback for Roosevelt came out of the northwest during the afternoon. The new Democratic state central committee of Minnesota met and adopted a resolution releasing the 24 Minnesota delegates from the unit rule in voting on the nomination for President. The delegation was instructed by the state convention to vote for Roosevelt.

The new state committee is dominated by the anti-Rodsevelt "rumpers" who were denied seats in the Stadium by the Roosevelt-controlled national convention, the Roosevelt delegation being seated. J. E. Reagan, leader of the "rumpers," told the state committee that eight members of the delegation wanted to be released from their instructions.

Nominating Speeches for the Presidential Candidates Who Were Placed Before Democratic Convention

Following are excerpts from the nominating speeches made yesterday and last night of the nine presidential candidates whose names were placed before the Democratic national convention. In the order of their presentation to the convention the speeches were for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Speaker John N. Garner of Texas, Alfred E. Smith of New York, former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia, Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, Gov. George O. White of Ohio, and Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma.

ROOSEVELT

Gov. Roosevelt was nominated by John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who persuaded Roosevelt to run for his first public office 20 years ago. Mr. Mack said in part:

"Our party presents to the country no claim for immediate relief from all our present ills. We make no reiteration of the glowing but unfilled promises of our opposing candidates of four years ago nor present assurances of recovery within twenty-four hours from the depression which exists, but we do promise an earnest, sincere and determined effort under the leadership of a man whose courage is unquestioned and whose word is as good as gold, to so conduct our United States as to bring a recovery from the ills accentuated and increased by Republican uncertainty and instability.

"Roosevelt Fills the Need."

"Gov. Roosevelt fills the crying need for a practical American with a clear perspective and a knowledge of the entire nation as our chief executive. He comes to this convention with the greatest number of states behind him in the history of the Democratic party.

"He has captured the heretofore impregnable stronghold of upstate New York, the territory which in all the history of the Democratic party never gave its gubernatorial candidate a majority.

"Why this sudden change in the votes of upstate New York? It was brought about in the first place because he insisted on knowing his own state first. He knew every public institution and county in the state, every public institution and county in the state knew him.

Recalls His Washington Record.

"It was a repetition of his record as assistant secretary of the navy when because of his characteristic thoroughness he knew every port of this country and every port, likewise knew him.

"He has put into effect more savings and brought about such efficient administration that the credit of the state of New York is on a higher basis than that of the federal government. He delved into the subject of marketing farm produce, sponsoring a measure which protects the farm from rapacious and dishonest middlemen. He has first hand information of the demands and needs of every state in the Union because he has been in every one of them."

The nomination was seconded by Mrs. John C. Greenway of Arizona, Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, Thomas J. Morrissey of Colorado, Mrs. Beulah Hooks Hannah of Florida, Gov. Richard Russell of Georgia, Edward J. Dunne of Illinois, Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas, Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky, John E. Rankin of Mississippi, William Woodburn of Nevada, P. W. Lanier of North Dakota, Milton A. Miller of Oregon, Mrs. Carolyn Miller of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. David I. Coker of South Carolina.

GARNER

Speaker Garner was nominated by Senator Tom Connally of Texas, who said:

"Of pioneer stock stretching back to the American revolution, the man whom I present to this convention has spent his life among the people of his own country. Reared in humble surroundings he has risen to a place of power. For almost thirty years he has sat under the dome of the capitol.

"There he has mastered the affairs of the federal government. His grasp of tariffs and taxation, of federal powers and their limitation, of the proper functions of government activity and of sound public policies, both domestic and foreign, is not surpassed by that of any man in public life.

Made Speaker of House.

"When the 72d congress convened he became the speaker of the house. He was the first to note the imperative need of a balanced budget. The duty to raise revenue rests in the house. He boldly assumed the responsibility that goes with leadership. He faced the challenge undaunted. When the tumult and the fury had subsided the speaker led the house in the passage of a revenue bill approved by the treasury and the administration as meeting the national need—a balanced budget.

"John Garner has never lost the common touch. He knows America as no other public figure among men now living. His home is in the southwest. His mind and patriotism live in every section of the republic. He is not a sectionalist, not a provincialist, not a factionist. His statemanship is bigger than his geography."

The nomination was seconded by William G. McAdoo of California.

AL SMITH

Al Smith was nominated by Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, who said in part:

"In 1928, riding the crest of the wave, the Republican party was unbeatable. With the tide of prosperity against him 200,000 votes properly placed would have changed the election in favor of Al Smith. What would happen today in the tide of depression? Sure victory.

"Wavering and doubtful as the Republican leadership has been, fruitless as have proved its efforts feebly executed, we as Democrats will find it difficult to impress a nation with the advisability of a change unless our nominee is a man of action, of virile and rugged personality, capable of molding opinion to a common purpose.

His Creed as a Catholic.

"The question should have no place in American politics, but it is necessary to mention any subject that might affect your decision, including Mr. Smith's Catholic church affiliation.

"Massachusetts has spoken out clearly and I believe the entire industrial east has joined in discarding the prejudices of our Protestant ancestors against intrusting the government to one of another faith.

"Mr. Smith's creed as an American Catholic begins: 'I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church. I recognize no power in the institutions of my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the law of the land.'

A Man Who Dares.

"Give us a man who dares. A modern Andrew Jackson, a positive, straight speaking, plain thinking statesman. Even his enemies recognize the comparison.

"He alone of all the candidates offered to the party has been so utterly bold as to disregard his political future in proposing a cleancut, definite program for the goverment to follow in attaining the country's economic recovery. He alone has the spirit which must be offered in contrast with the wavering, doubtful, disheartening conduct of the Republican administration.

"To win this battle requires a man who can take the blows both physically and mentally. Alfred E. Smith is still the happy warrior after coming through a deluge of political propaganda and personal attack."

The nomination was seconded by Gov. Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut, Ray G. Noonan of Minnesota, Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, James P. Rossiter of Pennsylvania, and Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island.

BYRD

Former Gov. Byrd was nominated by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who said:

"Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia has made a record as governor of that state never surpassed in its history. What he did for Virginia he would do for the country if nominated by this convention and elected by the people.

"A confirmed expert in business methods, tested in the problems of public taxation, he would inaugurate at Washington a wise and provident and honest pay as you go administration of which the Democratic party would be proud and from which the entire nation would derive the blessings of a better home and the contentment of permanent recovery.

"Mr. Byrd is a farmer, with an acute appreciation of the needs of agriculture; a business man who increased his state highway system by 3,000 miles at a cost of $75,000,000 without issuing a bond; a governor who consolidated a hundred agencies into twelve compact departments, at a saving of $800,000 a year, and an executive who survived 1931 with a surplus, followed the following year by land tax reductions in excess of $4,000,000.

"Nominate Harry Byrd and the Democratic party will preserve the unbroken record of always achieving victory at a presidential election when its banner was placed in the hands of a son of Virginia."

TRAYLOR

The name of Melvin A. Traylor was presented to the convention by Michael D. Igoe.

"We must name a new type of man, one who will change the national psychology—one who will point this nation once more toward assured prosperity," Igoe said. "We accordingly propose to you as our nominee for President one to whom the American people would turn with infinite relief as against the weakness, the indecision, the lack of vision, the ineptitude, and the incompetence of Herbert Hoover."

Igoe told of the birth of Traylor in the Kentucky hills and reviewed his career beginning as a small town banker in southwest Texas, later at Fort Worth, then in East St. Louis and later in Chicago. He told of Traylor's stumping Kentucky for William Jennings Bryan in 1908 and the assistance he gave Mayor Cermak in cleaning out "the Republican mare's nest in Chicago."

"Old Politics Won't Do."

"The people are not thinking in terms of ordinary politics and party lines," Igoe declared. "New modes of thought possess our people and the old fashioned party labels, old fashioned party names no longer exercise magic power. The people who will decide the next election will be those who, exercising their independent judgment, will abandon the Republican party and vote for the candidate named by this convention.

"Do not let us forget that this country, indeed the whole world, is enmeshed in a financial and economic crisis such as has never been before known. Accordingly, in the man we name here we must have above all else a competence by both intelligence and experience to deal with these fundamental problems that affect our very opportunity to live.

Need a Man of Wisdom.

"We need a man who can view these problems in their international aspects; a man who knows the interrelations of world-wide commerce; a man expert in the problems of business, of trade, of finance. This is no time for ballyhoo or pollyanna. It is a time for the exercise of the soundest wisdom.

"I nominate a man who will win, a man who will lead the nation back again to prosperity and happiness. A son of the southland, an adopted son of Illinois, for President—Melvin A. Traylor."

The nomination was seconded by W. Emery Lancaster of Quincy, Ill.

RITCHIE

"What must be the qualifications of the man the nation desires? First of all, he must be a man with the personality of a leader and with a genius for leadership, one who out of a ripe experience has the capacity and determination to bring order out of chaos.

"He must also have the ability to win. One who will appeal alike to all sections and who will inspire enthusiasm everywhere. We need one who sees the country as a whole, who has faith in the people, knows no rich, no poor, no group, no section, no special interest.

"It is my privilege to present to you one who fits as if he were molded into these specifications; who, because of his personal characteristics, great record and proved ability, and because of the high principles he holds and practices, should be the inevitable choice of this assembly. We will cross safely over this present chasm of despair on the straight thinking, honest speaking, and unflinching courage of a great son of Maryland.

"He has served four terms as governor, being reelected each time by an ever increasing majority. He completely reorganized the state government, rebuilding it on a business basis. The state tax rate on homes and farms has been cut 30 per cent since he took office. The state budget has never been out of balance and there is a 10 per cent cash surplus in the treasury. The bonds of the state of Maryland have sold higher than the bonds of the United States government itself.

Fights Against Bureaucracy.

"This man's record in his own state is dazzling in its brilliance but not only there is his beneficent influence felt. Long ago his voice began to be heard throughout the nation. He has incessantly and unfalteringly fought the bureaucracy and the overexpansion of the federal government.

"A decade ago when other men's tongues were silenced by fear, the fighting blood of his Scotch ancestry surged up in one great flood and, undismayed by criticism or expediency, he dared to cry out against the ruinous experiment of prohibition.

"He is now 55 years of age, in the rich prime of his life, rich in executive experience, with a record of demonstrated accomplishment. Here is a man who does not run away from great problems but who meets them face to face. With him you can attract the support of millions of Republicans who are weary of Republican misrule and at the same time arouse a militant Democracy to carry our standard to victory. I tender to you this matchless master of the art of government, Albert Cabell Ritchie."

The nomination was seconded by Richard F. Cleveland of Baltimore, son of the late President Grover Cleveland. Cleveland said that if one word could characterize Gov. Ritchie it would be "straightforward." Another who seconded the nomination of the Maryland governor was Attorney General Greek L. Rice of Mississippi.

REED

The name of former Senator Reed was placed in nomination by Samuel W. Fordyce, St. Louis attorney.

"If you wish vagueness or vacillation," Fordyce said, "do not choose Senator Reed."

Fordyce said the party must convince the American people that the possessor of property would be protected in his honest rights; he warned against communism and socialism and said the times demanded a man who would give this protection.

"I present to you such a man," he said. "Throughout his long and useful life he has endeared himself to the great masses of the people. This man's unceasing battle for humanity has brought to him the admiration, the devotion, the love of every class."

Fordyce said one great battle alone in Reed's career "entitles him to an everlasting place in the hall of fame—his relentless, his successful fight to keep this country from ignoring Washington's warning to avoid all foreign entanglements."

"In Reed you have courage to a superlative degree," Fordyce concluded. "If you want a campaigner who wins his battles, take our candidate."

The nomination was seconded by Mrs. Alice Moss Ferris and Perl D. Decker, both of Missouri.

WHITE

Former Senator Atlee Pomerene nominated Gov. White of Ohio. He declared:

"Name Gov. White as our candidate for the presidency and Democracy will not be on the defensive. He will make an aggressive fight from the day the campaign opens until its close.

"His stand on prohibition, advocacy of submission of a repeal amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act, speaks for his straightforwardness of speech. No American will ever have occasion to say to Gov. White: 'Be even and direct with me.'

"His record as governor is featured by his economy program in which a saving of more than $9,000,000 was effected for his first year. On national questions he is opposed to high domestic tariffs which bring retaliation from foreign countries and cancellations of war debts until we can be assured by deed and not by word that thereby international peace will be preserved."

MURRAY

Gov. Murray of Oklahoma was nominated by former Gov. Henry S. Johnston of Perry, Okla. Johnston said Gov. Murray "knows enough to realize that the remedy for an empty stomach is a square meal and the way to a square meal is a square deal."

The main issues in the coming campaign, he declared, are finance and economics.

"Gov. Murray knows enough to realize that voluntary and involuntary idleness are equally destructive; he knows that the former is self-imposed and the fault of the idler, and that the latter is thrust upon an individual and is the fault of the system," Johnston said.

"Murray is the man of the hour. He is that as measured both by his position and qualifications; he is that by experience and by inherent character qualifications—by virtue of being a great constitutional lawyer, a Democrat in the majestic sense, a true tribune of the people."

Johnston said Gov. Murray was the only candidate who had the courage to voice his convictions "so that the people could understand," but made it plain that the governor "was throwing no brickbats of mud, for this is no time for personalities."

The nomination was seconded by Mrs. George A. Waters of Oklahoma.

DRYS TO SELECT CANDIDATES FOR A THIRD PARTY

W.C.T.U. Leader Predicts Split in Solid South.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—National dry leaders will meet in Indiana next Tuesday to nominate a dry third party candidate for the presidency and to adopt a platform favoring retention of the 18th amendment, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, state president of the W. C. T. U., announced today.

Adoption of the repeal plank by the Democratic convention was no more than was expected, following the action of the Republicans two weeks ago, Mrs. Colvin said.

"It is a Democratic year," Mrs. Colvin said, "not because the Democrats stand for repeal, but because the Republicans have failed to stand for enforcement of the law. When the Republicans adopted a resubmission plank I was quite sure Mr. Hoover could not be reelected."

On the other hand, Mrs. Colvin said, the Democratic plank will split the solid south.

"I know that the southern women will not support the party," she said, "and they will not support Mr. Hoover."

Fred A. Victor, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, said that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and possibly Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland were the only candidates who can stand squarely on the Democratic platform.

"If Gov. Roosevelt is nominated on that platform he will pussyfoot all over the nation," Mr. Victor said.

DR. BUTLER SEES G. O. P. STRADDLE PLANK 'DOOMED'

PARIS, June 30.—(AP)—Commenting on the wetness of the Democratic platform, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, leader of the repeal fight at the Republican national convention, declared today the "Hoover straddle plank is doomed to the fate it deserves."

"The declaration in respect to the eighteenth amendment reported adopted at the Democratic convention is clear cut, definite and direct," Dr. Butler continued. "Of its five paragraphs the first three are in effect identical with the declarations contained in the minority report at the Republican convention, for which 463 votes were cast and which was defeated only by the most vigorous efforts of the administration and its officeholders."

WET PLATFORM PASSES WITH ROAR OF 'YEAS'

Any Nominee Can Win Now, Leaders Declare.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Democrats are now the abolitionist party on prohibition. The convention yesterday followed up the four to one wet stampede of the night before—a momentous night in American politics—by adopting the platform with the dripping wet plank. This declaration of policy makes the party the advocate of repeal of the 18th amendment and of quick revision of the Volstead act to legalize nonintoxicating beer. This was done with a roaring viva voce vote.

Party chieftains and the delegate body seemed permeated with a spirit of satisfaction. At the cross roads, the party by an overwhelming vote, they held, had taken the turn which will lead to the overthrow of prohibition, a return to states' rights in control of liquor, the end of the bootlegger-gangster era of dominance and to a Democratic victory in November.

The thought that kept bubbling up among the delegations was that the Democrats are now to the prohibition issue what the Republicans were to the slavery question.

"Any Nominee Can Win."

As the Democrats viewed their handiwork, they kept repeating: "Any nominee for President can win on that platform."

With added gusto, the Democrats dwelt on the economic planks in the platform, which is only about 1,350 words long and is considered the most terse declaration of principles a major party has written since the early days of the convention system.

Al Smith, as the trail blazer against prohibition, who got a tumultuous reception when he spoke for the dripping wet plank the night before, was hailed as the party pathfinder. Back of the wet stampede Wednesday night was the campaign work of 1928.

Moist Leaders Brighten Up.

Even the group of dry [politically] elder statesmen who sought a dampish submission straddle on liquor, began to brighten up. The night before when the wets routed the damps by a vote of 934 to 213, the coterie of dry-moist Washington recluses took to the woods, ducking the ordeal of making dampish speeches, with the exception of Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee.

Yesterday with an air somewhat of resignation they were beginning to say the party may survive after all. There was plenty of evidence in the book. The roll call began to loom up in more monumental fashion the more it was studied—especially in the attitude shown by the southern states, supposedly dry politically, although in a string of recent elections and conventions the voters have demonstrated the opposite to the political bosses.

In the wet runaway only eleven states cast majorities for the moist plank in preference to the dripping wet. This is two less than the 13 which would be sufficient to block repeal of the 18th amendment. Of the eleven, only three—Georgia, Mississippi, Oklahoma—were entirely moist, the others split. Also 23 states gave solid dripping wet votes, as did the provinces.

Volstead Act Changes.

From the roll call it was generally held that the anti-prohibition movement has now gained a momentum which will bring about changes in Volsteadism in the next session of congress, and a probability that 1933 may see the states getting into action on a proposal from congress to repeal the 18th amendment.

Politically, the effect of the direct advocacy of repeal and Volstead modification, as the Democrats view it, will be to make theirs the strong party in the Republican industrial and agricultural states of the north, while in the south the growing anti-prohibition surge will keep most of the old strongholds in line.

Beat Murray's Plank.

Before adopting the platform the convention bowled over a series of minority reports as fast as they could be set up in the alley. Without roll calls and with roaring shouts of "No," the delegates smothered a minority plank for immediate payment of the bonus. Its sponsors were unable to get even the number of states needed to insure a roll call.

Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's Oklahoma planks were defeated in much the same fashion in which Republican conventions used to discard the La Follette Wisconsin planks. "Alfalfa Bill's" roaring, bellowing seadog voice led some of the leaders to refer to him as "Barnacle Bill, the Sailor."

A minority bi-metallism plank was shoved down the chute with a roar. The Democratic party certainly has been a change in a generation. The old free silver idea that stampeded the 1896 convention for Bryan did not have a look in. And the same party which cheered Bryan's arguments for a dry plank in San Francisco in 1924 and then snowed him under in an avalanche of votes, stampeded Wednesday night to the wettest of wet planks.

A minority report to give the District of Columbia representation in congress was kicked through the window.

McAdoo Takes Platform.

A minority plank from William G. McAdoo, Wilson's secretary of the treasury and son-in-law, stirred up a debate. McAdoo took to the platform to espouse it. The night before he had ducked the fight between moists and wets, although one of the backers of the dampish straddle. McAdoo said his plank, which referred to changes in the federal reserve to protect deposits, was "in the inferests of the pee-pul."

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who like McAdoo had served under Wilson as secretary of the treasury and likewise had run out on the wet and moist debate, argued that the McAdoo federal reserve plank was "not in the interests of the people."

With expert opinion among the clique of old cabinet ministers thus divided, the delegates compromised by booting the McAdoo plank into the upper balcony. It was another sorrowful moment for McAdoo, for the night before, his home state of California, home of the wine industry under Volstead and Willebrandt, walked out on him and voted 3 to 1 dripping wet.

The only minority amendment adopted came from a woman, Caroline O'Day of New York. It provided for "continuous responsibility of government for human welfare, particularly the protection of children." It went through on a viva voce and with this one change, the platform as originally sent in by the majority of the resolutions committee the night before was adopted by a bellowing vote.

Story Back of Wet Plank.

Meanwhile the events which led to the most astonishing occurrence in a Democratic convention since the civil war were told and retold. The dripping wet plank movement got its real start last week from a small group of members of the resolutions committee from old dry areas in the middle west and west.

The subgroup of nine which had been appointed to write the tentative platform appeared to be loaded down with intellectual riches of bygone days—political leaders whose thought processes have been fashioned in the Washington atmosphere. The nine included an imposing group of elder statesmen, four senators, three Wilson cabinet members, and the chairman was Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Wilson floor leader in the senate. It looked as if the liquor plank they would report out would be a meek compromise aimed to keep the professional drys in good humor and that it would merely ask for submission of repeal.

The Revolt Starts.

So a revolt started in the resolutions committee. Its ringleaders on Saturday were William A. Comstock of Michigan, Michael L. Igoe of Illinois, J. R. Pfiffner of Wisconsin, Joseph K. Carson of Oregon, and a few others. They began to operate among the members of the resolutions committee in favor of a direct repeal and modification plank which had been submitted by Mr. Igoe. It was made the basis for the plank which eventually went through the convention after considerable revamping—the words were changed but the tune remained.

PRAISE W-G-N FOR "SCOOP" IN GIVING PLATFORM

Exclusive Broadcast Is Appreciated by Public.

The radio scoop scored by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station, in broadcasting exclusive the session of the Democratic national convention Wednesday night from 7:30 to 9 o'clock elicited unbounded praise and appreciation yesterday from officials and members of the party conclave.

W-G-N was the only one of the high powered stations to broadcast to the whole country the convention proceedings in that hour and a half during which the party platform, including the prohibition repeal plank, was presented to the delegates and the various minority reports from the resolutions committee were also submitted.

Vital Hour of Convention.

This was one of the most important periods of the convention, for the entire ensuing debate on the platform revolved around the differences between the majority and minority planks of the platform. What took place in that hour and a half was essential to adequate understanding of the debate that followed.

The air scoop by THE TRIBUNE station was due to the fact that the two principal broadcasting systems of the country, the National Broadcasting and the Columbia, shut down on the broadcasting of the convention during that period. Their reason for cutting the convention off the air was that otherwise they would lose $50,000 an hour in advertising programs between 7 and 9 o'clock.

Notwithstanding the fact that W-G-N also had important programs yielding a substantial revenue in that period, THE TRIBUNE station barred them out in order to broadcast a complete report of the convention proceedings. By so doing THE TRIBUNE not only rendered to the radio audience the service expected of it but kept implicit faith with the Democratic national committee, as it had with the Republican national committee, in undertaking an uninterrupted broadcasting of both national conventions.

Radio Figures in Recess.

In making the motion for the recess from 6 to 9 o'clock last night Mayor Howard H. Jackson of Baltimore gave as one of his reasons for taking time out the fact that he understood the proceedings of the convention would not be broadcast between those hours. This statement led to widely circulated reports that the broadcasting chains, the NBC and the CBS, or one of them, had asked that a recess be taken in order that they might go ahead with their profitable advertising time on the air.

"So far as I know that is not true," said Mayor Jackson. "My motion was spontaneous. I felt that the convention should be on the air as much as possible and that it would not be fair if the nominating speeches for some candidates were broadcast and the speeches in behalf of others were not. And, as I stated in my motion, the delegates needed a rest and time to eat."

Senator Walsh Replies.

The reports that the air chains had initiated the action for the recess also were presented to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, permanent chairman, who replied in writing as follows:

"The statement is not accurate. The broadcasting companies represented that to broadcast the convention proceedings would result in serious loss to them. That circumstance was considered, but it was not the moving cause. The convention adjourned to get a rest and a dinner."

From others who were on the platform immediately preceding the recess it was learned that, while the Roosevelt ans favored going ahead with proceedings without delay, managers for several favorite son candidates protested, partly on grounds that the speeches lauding their candidates would not be broadcast by the chains if that program were followed.

Comment from Leaders Given.

Some of the comments heard on the incident Wednesday night were:

Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi—I think the convention owes THE TRIBUNE a vote of thanks for its unselfish service in broadcasting the convention without interruption. I also want to compliment THE TRIBUNE on its comprehensive and unbiased reporting of the convention in its pages.

Representative Adolph Sabath, Illinois—It was a wonderful performance, but only what was to be expected of THE TRIBUNE. I have heard many favorable comments on it. What took place in that hour and a half was what the whole country was waiting to hear.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee—It was a fine thing to do. My congratulations to THE TRIBUNE. The party appreciated it.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana—THE TRIBUNE rendered an extremely important service at one of the most important periods of the convention and it will not soon be forgotten.

Senator John S. Cohen, Georgia—As a newspaperman myself, I should like to extend congratulations to THE TRIBUNE for its generous action, at great pecuniary sacrifice.

Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts—The most important matter to come before this convention up to date is the platform with its prohibition repeal plank, the adoption of which has made history. The country is under deep obligations to THE TRIBUNE for the privilege of witnessing over the air that historic episode.

Senator Millard Tydings, Maryland—Chicago and the Mississippi valley are to be congratulated upon the possession of an institution such as THE TRIBUNE which serves it with zeal, fidelity, and unselfishness. It proved its worth to the whole country in the broadcasting of the convention without interruption last night.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey, North Carolina—THE TRIBUNE lived up to its standard as the World's Greatest Newspaper in broadcasting to the entire nation the message of hope of the Democratic party in its platform. It was a service not only to Democracy, but to the republic.

ROSSETTER O. K.'S ECONOMY PLANK OF DEMOCRATS

Satisfaction with the economy plank adopted by the Democratic party was expressed yesterday by George W. Rossetter, chairman of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, and president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"I believe the pledge for economy as expressed by the Democratic party to be a clear, concise statement of principle," Mr. Rossetter asserted just before leaving for the convention. "Its framers are to be commended."

The national organization headed by Mr. Rossetter recently held a nation-wide meeting in Chicago to promote the cause of economy in government—federal, state, and local. It speaks for more than 300 chambers of commerce and other organizations which are working to reduce the tax burden through cutting the costs of government.

DEMAND PRESENT CONGRESS ACT TO END PROHIBITION

Du Pont Cites Revenue U. S. Can Collect.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Action by the present congress to rescind constitutional prohibition was urged yesterday by Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the United Repeal council. The organizations composing this council are:

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.
The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.
The Crusaders.
The Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc.
American Hotel association.
National Security league.

Mr. du Pont said immediate action "will remove the question from the national political campaign and prohibition will cease at once to be a part of national politics."

Council Approves Platform.

The chairman of the council further said:

"The Democratic platform proposing immediate repeal of the eighteenth amendment meets the approval of the United Repeal council and conforms to the aims of the associations composing the council as published from time to time during recent years."

As other reasons for action at once Mr. du Pont said:

"If this proposed direct repeal amendment should be adopted by the congress in its present session the revenues flowing from the tax on intoxicating liquor might be made available for state and federal budgets for the fiscal year of 1934-'35, to the great relief of the taxpayers and industries of the country. Let us urge immediate action be taken."

Hope Hoover Will Act.

The suggestion of Mr. du Pont for action by the present congress is not lokoed upon by prominent Chicago Republicans as a mere "hope" or "dream," but rather as a practical political recommendation, which they hope President Hoover will adopt. They feel that such a step would improve his chance of reëlection, because the Republican platform—from their viewpoint—may not have the appeal to the voters which the Democratic platform will make.

Delegates at the Democratic convention, asked for a word here and there, favor immediate action by the present congress, although some opined that waiting until the December congress might bring an advantage to the Democrats in the presidential campaign.

The votes on prohibition in the two conventions convey some reasonably accurate information and several distinct impressions of the sentiment for and against the eighteenth amendment.

41 Per Cent of Districts Wet.

The delegates to both the Republican and Democratic conventions, who were probably named by the same political leaders who select the congressmen and senators, agree that 41 per cent of the congressional districts are wet. The delegates from these areas in both conventions voted for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. These districts are located in 15 states and have 219 votes in the electoral college. The delegates from these, in both conventions, voted for the platform adopted by the Democrats.

The delegates of both conventions said that 18 per cent only of the congressional districts favor the platform adopted by the Republican convention. They voted against repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but at the same time voted for a substantial modification of the amendment. These districts are in ten states and represent only 97 votes in the electoral college.

On 40 per cent of the congressional districts the Democratic and Republican conventions disagree, but there is every indication that the Democratic view of these areas is nearer the facts than that expressed by the Except in two instances the expression of the delegates in both conventions were more or less distinct. The two exceptions were West Virginia and Massachusetts. The Democrats said that the Bay State is wet, while the Republican delegates represented it as about equally divided between the repealists and modificationists. In West Virginia the Republicans represented it as for their party plank, while the Democrats indicated, by the votes of the delegates, that the sentiment is about equally divided. *Carried by Hoover in 1928.

†About equally divided.

These two tables, in the opinion of Chicago Republicans, disclose the cause of much probable trouble for the Hoover-Curtis ticket if the Washington administration fails to urge congressional action on prohibition at the current session. The Republican platform, which opposes repeal of the eighteenth amendment, is satisfactory to 10 states with only 97 electoral votes, and four of those states did not vote for Mr. Hoover in 1928 when he obtained nearly 84 per cent of all of the votes of the electoral college.

The Republican platform on prohibition is unsatisfactory, according to Republicans. To illustrate, the Republicans asserted that California, Massachusetts, Missouri, and Ohio favor the platform they adopted; while the Democratic delegates asserted that they favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Previous information indicates that the Democratic "guess" is right.

But the fact that both conventions agreed there is only 18 per cent of the voting strength of the nation in favor of the Republican platform makes it certain that congressional action at the present session is both feasible and practical, unless one party or the other insists upon squabbling on phraseology for an anticipated political advantage.

It is well to remember that in neither convention was there a listing of the so-called "drys." All of the delegates in both conventions voted either for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment or its drastic modification.

The states in which the opinion of the delegates, on the majority sentiment at home, was the same are shown in the tabulation below. In the first group are shown the states where both Democratic and Republican delegates said that the sentiment favors modification of the eighteenth amendment, together with the number of electoral colleges in each state. In the second group are the states where both Republican and Democratic delegates said the sentiment is so wet it demands the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. In both groups the states carried by President Hoover in 1928 are indicated. The table:

La Grange Bank Employe and Bookmaker Indicted

John D. Booth, former assistant cashier of the First National bank of La Grange, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on the charge of embezzling $22,350 of the bank funds. Eddie Meyer, a bookmaker in La Grange, was indicted on the charge of aiding and abetting the embezzlement.

CARPENTERS O. K. REFUSAL TO TAKE 35% PAY SLASH

The action of Thomas Flynn, president of the district council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, in refusing a wage reduction of 35 per cent offered by the Chicago Millwork and Cabinet Manufacturers' association was approved by the union at a meeting last night at their hall, 12 East Erie street.

Acting with Flynn in the negotiations for a new wage scale were two other members of the carpenters' union. The proposition of the millwork companies was that the wage should be 15 per cent above the average paid in a radius of 500 miles from Chicago, and that pending a determination of this rate the carpenters should take 85 cents an hour instead of their old scale of $1 an hour.

It has been indicated that the millwork association will declare what amounts to open shop operation. Flynn said last night that the association members employed only about 20 per cent of the carpenters now at work and that the remaining 80 per cent would be at work as usual today at the $1 rate. The 20 per cent are regarded by the union as locked out by the employers, it was said.

WOMAN DIES IN STREET.

Mrs. Delia Erbenruth, 58 years old, 5340 South Carpenter street, was stricken with heart disease yesterday as she was walking on the street, and died on the way to the Englewood hospital.

BAR OVERTIME CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ORATORY

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.] today sought unanimous consent that members be given five legislative days after adjournment in which to extend their remarks in the Congressional Record.

But Representative W. H. Lambertson [Rep., Kas.] objected on the ground that it was "rank extravagance" to let members go on filling the record after the session is over. It costs about $40 a page and Mr. Lambertson was of the opinion that economy, if nothing else, should prevent unanimous consent."

"All this stuff that's put in after the end of the session is purely political, vainglorious stuff that many members would not have the temerity to stand up and say in the well of the house," he said.

Mr. Snell thought the individual consciences of members would prevent insertion of too much material and knew of no other way the amount might be checked.

But Representative Cyrenus Cole [Rep., Ia.] did.

"O, yes, we can hold it down," he said, "just charge a dollar a line for insertions. That's the regular advertising rate."

CHICAGOANS GIVE VARIETY OF VIEWS ON LIQUOR PLANK

All Agree There Should Be Referendum.

In general, those who have hitherto disapproved of prohibition were jubilant over the straightforward statement for repeal. Those who have been and continue to be ardent prohibitionists in most cases warned the party that it had driven many votes from the fold.

Some regarded the frankness as refreshing; others declared the straightforwardness was "lack of statesmanship." Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the dozens of interviews, taken at random, was that no person expressed opposition to giving the people an opportunity to pass on the retention of the 18th amendment.

Mere Submission.

The basis of difference was whether the party should merely submit or whether it should submit with a declaration for a complete change.

Some of the comments follow:

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission and member of the Wickersham commission—I admire the straightforward demand for the repeal of the 18th amendment. It is what the voters demand nowadays. They wish plain language and the Democratic declaration demands no interpretation. The issue is put squarely: Repeal or retention. However, I stand by the Wickersham commission and prefer modification.

Likes G. O. P. Plank.

The Rev. Shailer Mathews, historian and dean of the divinity school, University of Chicago—The Republican plank is much better than the Democratic because it is a compromise. The Democratic plank is sure to split the party. The Republicans offer a way to vote on prohibition without making it a party issue.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Democratic leader from New York—The plank is fine. To those people who talk about women having to be appeased by a dry plank you may say, with my compliments, that there are a million women, Democrats and Republicans alike, who are 100 per cent for this plank.

The Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church—I have always been a southern Democrat. This plank is undemocratic. I shall be unable to support the party because of it. I predict great losses in the party vote.

Victor Elting, attorney—I am for repeal. While I am a Republican, I entirely approve the Democratic plank.

Mrs. Rushmore Patterson of Washington, D. C., dry leader—The drys of the country will have no statement to make until a meeting to be held here the day after this convention adjourns. While I am a Democrat, as an individual I will say that the plank adopted by the party will do more to consolidate and tighten up dry lines than anything else would do. The women of this country will plunge deeply into temperance education to keep the 18th amendment.

A Republican Delighted.

Mrs. Andrew Sherriff—I am a recent Republican. Because of this plank I shall be a Democrat this year. I am delighted with it.

Mrs. Robert J. Dunham—I am one of the Republicans Hoover has converted. Now I am a Democrat. The plank is fine.

The Rev. A. M. Pennewell, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist church—Clearly all prohibitionists will have to line up with the Republican party.

Ralph M. Shaw, chairman of the Illinois division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment—We are delighted that one of the great parties had the courage to take a decisive stand.

The Rev. Perry J. Rice, exsecretary of the Chicago Christian Missionary society—The Republican plank is far more statesmanlike. It turns the question back to the people, where it belongs, without prejudice.

Rabbi George J. Fox, spiritual leader of South Shore temple—I greatly admire this courageous and outspoken plank on prohibition. It is a healthy sign that the Democrats have the fortitude, at the cost of many votes, to come out in the open on this question. The Republicans lacked that courage.

"Lets Tiger Out of Cage."

Edward T. Lee, dean of the John Marshall Law School—If the convention fails to nominate Al Smith, it will not be running true to form. The wet plank was built for him. It proposes to let the tiger out of the cage while the party builds a better and stronger one into which it promises to coax him back.

Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to the Polish government—I believe prohibition has no place in the constitution and should be handled by the states. With proper study, federal and state governments can produce revenue from beverage sales. In the past depressions have been ended by and good times recommenced by new industries. Perhaps the brewing industry would have the same effect at this time.

KEEP YOUR OWN TALLY

This radio tally sheet enables you to follow the voting more closely than if you were in the convention. When you have used the spaces for the first two or three ballots cut out the list of states and the candidates' names and place them at the left and top of a clean sheet of paper and you will have a fresh tally sheet.

PARTY BETRAYED BY LEADERS, SAYS BISHOP CANNON

Warns That Millions Will Repudiate Platform.

Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, militant dry and ex-political boss of Virginia, said in a statement last night that the platform adopted by the Democratic convention marked the second time the moral forces of the party have been betrayed by their leaders.

The statement follows:

"This Democratic national convention has enunciated officially a new test of Democracy. It has openly and after debate taken an action to compel Democratic men and women to choose between allegiance to the dictum of the supreme party convention and their conscientious convictions on moral subjects. The issue thus raised for the first time in Democratic history is more vital than that of prohibition itself.

Predicts Repudiation.

"Faced by such a test, millions of self-respecting Democratic men and women will unhesitatingly and indignantly repudiate this unprecedented effort by the national convention, largely composed of hand picked political leaders, to bind the opinions and actions of the rank and file of the party on moral questions. They will unhesitatingly decide that the price demanded by the present dominant, intolerant party leadership is too great to pay for accredited membership in any political party and will determine their future course not by party platforms but by their own conscientious judgment, both as to policies and candidates.

"The southern Democratic political leaders who betrayed the moral forces of the south in 1928 have been guilty of a double betrayal in the present convention.

No Protest Whatever.

"Not only did they all without any public protest whatever sit quietly and vote for the resolution demanding that congress submit a resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment, and that without any proposed substitute therefor, but, with the exception of Hull of Tennessee, and Fitts of Alabama, although full opportunity to speak was accorded, they all sat dumbly, impotently or indifferently in their seats, while the convention, under the leadership of Smith of Tammany New York, Walsh of Boston, and Igoe of Chicago, all representative of the same elements of population, and all speaking the same shiboleth, actually voted that members of the Democratic party, including their dry southern constituents, must support the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"The stinging rebuke given these southern leaders in 1928 should have been sufficient, but it is apparent now after this second betrayal that if southern Democracy is not to be hopelessly, permanently disintegrated, the moral forces of the south must find expression under another leadership which will not betray them as in 1928 and 1932.

Drys Plan Conference.

"The national political conventions, largely composed of delegates selected and nominated by the political leaders, have met and largely mapped their program concerning the 18th amendment.

"Representatives of a large majority of the people of the nation who believe and insist that the 18th amendment remain unchanged will shortly meet in conference and will determine what they consider to be the best method of procedure. It goes without saying that there is not the slightest idea of yielding to this present day whisky rebellion against the 18th amendment. These are simply battles in the war, in which war there will be no retreat, no surrender, no compromise."

SCOUTS TO TAKE YACHT RIDE.

One hundred eagle scouts of Chicago will be guests this evening of Commander Eugene McDonald on a short cruise on the "Mispah." The cruise, which will start at 5 p. m. and last two hours, will close the season's activities for the eagle scouts.

NOTES OF THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Policing her husband by radio is being satisfactorily accomplished by the wife of one delegate. Listeners have noticed a peculiar whistle emanating from the battery of amplifiers from time to time, but it went unexplained until yesterday. Then a delegate told how a pal, whose name he would not mention, occasionally grabs one of the movable microphones which are shifted among the delegations, and lets friend wife, listening at home over the radio, know that he is attending to business.

A variation of "The Old Gray Mare" was sung by Garner boosters during the demonstration for the speaker of the house, the new theme being "Franklin Roosevelt ain't what he used to be, ain't what he used to be," etc.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida viewed the wet parade philosophically from atop a table in the press section. The daughter of Wm. J. Bryan was recently defeated for renomination to congress by a shower of wet votes in her home district.

Among yesterday's celebrities turned away at the Stadium for lack of proper credentials, or for lack of recognition on the part of the doorkeeper, add the following: Mrs. Melvin Traylor, who was anxious to get in to hear her husband nominated and Arizona's committeewoman, Isabella Greenway.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, 1100 Lake Shore drive, yesterday reported the loss of a black and onyx pin of floral design which she believes she lost in box 36 at the Stadium Wednesday.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, 1500 North State street, wife of the United States senator from Illinois, reported early this morning that she had lost her purse containing $8 and keys to a bank vault from her handbag while visiting with friends in boxes on the mezzanine floor shortly before.

HOURS OF DIN FOR NOMINEES ROCK STADIUM

Wild Ovation Is Given to Gov. Ritchie.

80,000 guests was still incessant, and it had been a tumult of color, music, and cheering for 35 minutes.

Chairman Walsh could not secure silence for the further business of the session and, with a gesture of resignation, sank into a chair.

At a quarter to one delegates from a dozen states had joined the Maryland marchers. Those states were Illinois, Maryland, Iowa, Mississippi, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Texas, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Massachusetts, California, and Virginia.

At last silence was secured and young Richard F. Cleveland of Baltimore, warmly welcomed for his great father's sake and for his own, rose to second the Ritchie nomination.

"Ritchie," exclaimed Mr. Cleveland, "the man who knows how to say 'Yes,' and how to say 'No,' but does not know how to say 'Yes—and—no' to the same question." [Prolonged cheers.]

Cleveland did not toy with words. He hammered them home, saying once, "With all due compliments to the gentlemen who met here two weeks ago, the people of this country are tired of government by stuffed shirts." Again a volley of cheers from galleries still crowded, although it is within five minutes of 1.

Glass Brings Laughter.

Prolonged laughter and cheering at the opening of the evening session when the former secretary of the treasury, Senator Carter Glass, placing in nomination the name of former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia, said that only once in seventy years has Virginia voted wrong in a presidential election and only once in sixty years has Massachusetts voted right.

Virginia's claims to the convention's favorable consideration of her favorite son were, he thought, not to be ignored by delegates who wished to give their party a winning candidate for the presidency of the United States.

Young in years but mature in mind, the senator pronounced Byrd and reviewed his reorganization of the structure of Virginia's government, a reorganization so effective that the state piled up a surplus of millions in its treasury, decreased its public debt, and its bonds are at a premium in every money market in the world.

"What," said the senator, "he did for Virginia he would do for the nation." [Cheers.]

Then broke the most ornate and the prettiest demonstration of the day. Virginia belles released flocks of pigeons from cages they had brought to the platform. The brilliantly uniformed band of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues paraded the hall, playing airs dear to both north and south.

Portraits of the former governor, which left no doubt as to the spaciousness of his smile, were borne up and down the aisles. The pictured smile was infectious. The whole convention rose and cheered the marching Virginians. As a compliment to a neighbor state, Maryland delegates joined them. So did men and women from the delegations of Georgia, Arkansas, and the District of Columbia.

Gov. Pollard, former Gov. Byrd's successor in office, mounted the platform and unfurled the state's flag.

Rear Admiral Byrd, Harry's brother and first man to fly over the poles, took his stand beside Pollard and was cheered.

It was only a seventeen minute demonstration, but it was a daisy—the most resplendent and dignified of the day and worthy of a national occasion.

Igoe Nominates Traylor.

With resounding phrases, Delegate Michael L. Igoe of Chicago nominated Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago as "a man who can lead the nation out of the greatest economic crisis in history, a man to whom the people can turn in confidence as against the ineptitude of Herbert Hoover."

The speech was well received by the delegates. The sweltering thousands in the galleries fanned themselves and marveled at the steady, tireless drive of Igoe. In truth his tirelessness was his only fault. A twenty minute nominating speech was ten too many minutes for such a night.

When Igoe at last released the name of Traylor the Illinois delegates began their march beneath a dozen standards bearing the words "Traylor for President." One was borne by Judge Henry Horner, coatless and perspiring, but beaming. The march tune was, of course, "Illinois," and delegates from Mississippi, Texas, and New Jersey caught step with it and paraded with our people.

Cermak Not in Parade.

Mayor Cermak, an Illinois delegate, was not visible in the Traylor festival and out of his absence make what politics you can. Some said that he was in private conference with party leaders and was occupied with a kind of politics that is not transacted to band music.

Questioning of Illinois delegates validated the supposition just recorded. They said Cermak was down at the Hotel Sherman helping to formulate decisions of moment to the Democratic party.

W. Emory Lancaster of Quincy seconded the nomination of Traylor and he was followed by former Gov. Dunne of Illinois, who, seconding the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt, described him as "not the favorite son of one state, but the favorite son of the United States."

Starts Uproar for Smith.

F. D. Gilloon of Dubuque, Ia., touched off a two minute Smith demonstration by rising to second the nomination of Al.

Clamor resulted, for several Iowa delegates objected on the ground that Iowa had been instructed to vote as a unit for Roosevelt.

Delegate John Sullivan of Waterloo was one of the objectors and was booed for his pains. That he resented, saying, "We are here to transact business and not to act like roughnecks," a remark that aroused prodigious booing and cries of "Go back and hoe your corn."

Gilloons' explanation of his attitude was that when the Roosevelt instruction was given the delegation, there was only one candidate in the field, that since then, things have changed and that he is nobody's bond slave, but the free follower of "the Happy Warrior."

Harry Woodring, world war veteran and the first Democratic governor Kansas has had in several decades, seconded the Roosevelt nomination with the cry, "We want the new commoner for President of the United States—Franklin D. Roosevelt." (Hearty cheers.)

Still the governors came, one of them Kentucky's governor, a stately, slow speaking, weighty man who bears the priceless name of Ruby Laffoon. Seconding Roosevelt, the governor said that his candidate "has followed in the footsteps of Jefferson, is as courageous as Jackson, and as learned and patriotic as Wilson."

"Quit seconding Roosevelt," said Josephus Daniels at 20 minutes to midnight, "and get to what the country wants—the nomination of Roosevelt."

Tydings Nominates Ritchie.

The Rooseveltians do quit seconding, making way for United States Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, who, plunging into the speech in which he is to nominate Ritchie, captivates the house with his first sentence—"Democracy demands the absolute and unconditional repeal of Herbert Hoover."

The young senator—still in his early forties and wearer of the distinguished service medal, rouses long and repeated applause with his swift, enthusiastic survey of Ritchie's career as a public servant whom Maryland has four times elected to the governorship and whose honest and wise administration has brought the state's bonds to a point of desirability where they sell at higher premium than the bonds of the United States.

"Mark you," said Tydings, "that well nigh incredible fact," and his hearers did mark it—with cheers.

See Storm as Good Omen.

While Tydings was speaking a storm broke. Thunder rolled and lightning flashed. The Marylanders said that was a good omen—that it meant "clear air for the nation when Ritchie becomes president."

Tydings closed.

It was midnight on the dot and a gorgeous release of the old Calvertian flags of Maryland, of American flags, and of hundreds of vivid standards reading "Win With Ritchie" filled the hall with color.

Among delegates who swung into the march were men and women from New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Connecticut, California and the District of Columbia.

Virginia was doubly chivalrous and loaned the band of the Richmond Blues to make music for Ritchie.

Notable men marched, among them Dean Lewis, president of the American Medical association, Dr. Hugh Young of Johns Hopkins university.

The pageantry unrolled to the strains of "My Maryland."

In the midst of the melody and the color, Iowa delegates brought forward their standard and lifted it to the hands of Mrs. Wallace Lannahan of Baltimore ,who was standing on top of the platform pulpit. With blowing of kisses she received it. Other standards were brought to her and the demonstration took on an aspect of winsome coquetry that delighted the 25,000 onlookers.

Fordyce Names Reed.

When Missouri was reached on the roll, Sam W. Fordyce of St. Louis nominated former Senator James A. Reed. At the very outset he announced no demonstration was coming, and got a good hand on that.

As Fordyce bent over to read his speech in a slow manner, the floor throng seemed more restless than ever with the time passing 1:15.

At his conclusion, the Missouri delegation stayed in its place, but members waved signs saying, "Reed is our need!" and "Hurrah for Reed."

The organ let go with the swinging "Missouri Waltz." In one or two other parts of the stadium, state standards were shunted up and down; but there was not the slightest attempt to get another of those hectic parades started. This was the first time it didn't happen.

"Over There" and "The Song of the Vagabonds" kept the flurry going a short time. Some shouts of "vote" were heard from far corners, the galleries were yet fairly substantially filled, but more and more people who did not have to stay were trudging home to bed—but there was no chance of getting a vote soon when 1:30 went by.

Mrs. Alice Moss Ferris of Laddonia, Mo., briefly seconded Reed.

P. W. Lanier of Jamestown, N. D., seconded Roosevelt giving the Ohio delegation its awaited turn to vent its long-quiet voice.

Former Senator Atlee Pomerene added Gov. George White to the list—stating "Democracy will not be on the defensive" with him. The White record in the state chair was reviewed as praiseworthy.

Another Reed seconding speech was made by former Representative Perl D. Decker of Joplin, Mo., who described his candidate as "the wisest and the bravest statesman of our generation."

A Ritchie Man Down South.

Then Ritchie was seconded by W. L. Guice of Biloxi, Miss., who said that although his delegation was bound under the unit rule to Roosevelt, "Down in the hearts of the people of Mississippi there is a prayer going up tonight that this convention may recognize the great governor of Maryland."

Representative John E. Rankin, a Roosevelt Mississipian, replied by seconding the nomination of the New Yorker, who, he said, was the overwhelming choice of the people of the state.

Among the lines was "Goodbye, Hoover, we cannot abide you." "Goodbye, Hoover, we don't like your tariff." "Goodbye, Hoover, you've sold us to the sheriff."

"Alfalfa Bill" Nominated.

After a motion by Senator Tom Connally of Texas to adjourn was turned down overwhelmingly, Henry S. Johnston of Perry, Okla., took the floor to nominate Gov. William H. Murray. He read his speech while clasping his hands before him, terming "Alfalfa Bill" the "man of the hour."

The Oklahomans, led by the girls' kiltie band they brought to Chicago with them, put on a demonstration for "Alfalfa Bill." Barekneed, in black and yellow Scotch costume, the girls marched at quickstep. The state standard of North Dakota was carried by Gov. Murray's brother, a delegate from that state.

The governor himself, who had been listening closely with hand cupped to ear during the nominating speech, said: "Gosh, I'd like to get into this parade, but I guess I'd better not." He looked on smiling from his place in the Oklahoma section.

The seconding of candidates went wearily on until 4:27 when the balloting began.

The Afternoon Session.

It was an exciting and joyous session in the afternoon, when three of the party's leaders—Gov. Roosevelt of New York, Al Smith of New York, and John N. Garner of Texas—were placed in nomination for the presidency of the United States.

Broadsides of nominating speeches and of speeches that second nominations volleyed in the steaming Stadium while nearly 25,000 guests of the convention looked on and cheered.

Roosevelt's name was received with 43 minutes of ovation, Smith's with 62 minutes, and Garner's with 35.

Roosevelt's represented solid blocks of votes, Smith's expressed passionate enthusiasm, and Garner's, although delegations from only two states, Texas and California, joined in it, was jovial and picturesque.

The oratorical honors of the day went to Gov. Ely of Massachusetts when he placed Al Smith's name in nomination.

To Ely's question, "Now that the tide has turned shall he be cast aside?" thousands rose to their feet and shouted "No."

Prayer Opens Session.

The session started on perhaps the quietest and most detached note that ever distinguished the ceremonial of a national convention in our time. That note was voiced by George Shaw Cook of Chicago, a teacher of Christian Science, when he made the opening prayer of this, the fourth day and fifth session of the convention.

In clear, gentle tones he said:

"Mary Baker Eddy, in her book, writes 'All Christian churches have one bond of unity, one nucleus of common convergence, and one prayer—the Lord's Prayer.'"

Having so spoken, Mr. Cook asked the people to give themselves briefly to silent prayer and then to repeat the Lord's Prayer aloud.

It was done—an episode of deeper solemnity and of more steadying effect has not come to pass in this convention.

Then the Nominations.

The torrent of nominating speeches that filled the subsequent hours began to flow when John E. Mack, a thin lipped, spectacled, precise speaking New York statesman, placed Gov. Roosevelt in nomination. He was abashed by the honor conferred upon him and then began slowly to read his speech, which acclaimed the governor as "the person most certain to carry our party to victory next fall."

In his seconding speech for Roosevelt, Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut dealt frankly of the leader's long struggle with infantile paralysis and described his recovery as "a triumph of will power."

War whoops came from Texas delegates when Senator Tom Connally placed Speaker Garner's name in nomination in a speech that closed with the shout, "I present to you the field marshal of Democracy, the great speaker of the house—John Nance Garner."

Thereupon the two Garner delegations—Texas and California—made a joyful noise, that would have done credit to the prowess of ten delegations of the so-called effete east. With their brass band, that played the Garner campaign song, "I've Been Working on the Railroad," and the Texas classic of dear Houston memories, "The Old Gray Mare," the Garnerites garnered cheers from one and all, and nobody begrudged them their thirty-five happy minutes of prime publicity.

In the Garner demonstration marched William Gibbs McAdoo, escorting his daughter, Ellen Wilson McAdoo. The lady bearing two distinguished names—one of them the name of her grandfather, Woodrow Wilson—was finally helped to a place on the platform by John W. Davis, epitome of distinction in aspect and career, and so this was a red letter day for her.

Firebells clanged throughout the Al Smith demonstration. They made a clamor reminiscent of the days when Al was a pet in the fire houses of New York's east side. And, enthusiastic of his present wetness, many of the marchers carried open umbrellas.

As drama this demonstration was tremendous, as Al's always are.

WOMEN SAY IT WITH WHOOPEE ON NOMINATION DAY

Flag Wavers Outshine the Oratory of Their Sisters

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

I've discovered woman's place in politics.

It's upon the platform, waving a bright flag, posing for the photogs, and swaying seductively to the rhythm of the band. Thus fortified, a good looking young lady can stampede the convention as masterfully as did Malvina A. Passmore, the girl in red who yesterday came all the way from Texas to put the sex interest into Jack Garner's campaign.

Ask the boys if her trip was in vain.

He seemed reconciled to the future.

Woman Seconds Nomination.

What about the woman whose message is with her lips? For her the timekeeper holds a stopwatch. For her the gavel taps sternly as it did yesterday for Isabella Greenway, serene and majestic beauty who came from Arizona to second the nomination for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Greenway is a link between the two political branches of the clan Roosevelt. As girlhood friend of Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt [who was also a Roosevelt before her marriage] she is now a warm personal and political admirer of the New York governor. But she is also the widow of Gen. John C. Greenway, valiant member of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders. So she is dear to the G. O. P. Roosevelts, too.

And that might very well be the reason that she was chosen to make the first seconding speech [if you get what I mean] for the Democratic Roosevelt.

Hers a Restrained Address.

Whatever the reason, she made a good speech—restrained but eager. And it seemed to me that a woman with a face like hers, with a voice so filled with tenderness, was just the person, politically speaking, to say what had to be said, somewhere in the nomination, about Gov. Roosevelt's personal health. Here it is:

"I ask no apology for bringing into this speech something about the personal life of this man. Gallantly he has waged and triumphantly he has won one of life's most difficult battles."

She spoke the words quietly; everybody heard.

Crowd Wants to Be Entertained.

Yes, the crowd listened to the queenly Mrs. Greenway; but how they looked at the piquant Miss Passmore, who must have learned her politics under Ziegfeld!

It was Miss Passmore, you may recall, who sang the "Star Spangled Banner" down in her home town of Houston at the Democratic convention four years ago. She was good then: she was better yesterday.

As soon as Texas Tom Connally, who really looks like a picture of a senator, had finished his nomination of Garner, somebody pushed Malvina forward on the platform. After that she needed no urging. She stayed and swayed; she sang a bit of a tune; she waved the American flag in one hand, from which diamonds flashed; in the other hand, from which other diamonds flashed, she held the "Lone Star" flag of Texas.

She smiled a big smile; and again and again, until all the cameras had their chance. Senator Connally hovered about, suggesting that she hold this flag there, and so on; but she was the main show on the platform for a long, long time.

Then when Senator Tydings nominated Gov. Ritchie, Mrs. Wallace Lanahan, one of the Lanahans of Baltimore, stepped forward, demurred about being hoisted to the top of the table, was hoisted there, and flung the flag of Maryland about her slim figure as the crowd cheered. In back of her Miss Frances Goebel of Chicago, garbed as Liberty, or Columbia, or something all red and white and blue, added to the tableau.

Join in Floor Demonstration.

Down on the floor other women were doing their bit for Democracy riding around on men's shoulders, shrieking and smiling, and being very gay and informal.

Upon the platform former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Colorado, head of all the Democratic women, decorous in dark blue, patiently watched the performance; loyally applauded every candidate with appropriate neutrality.

Remember the old days of the church strawberry festival, or aren't you as old as I am? Some of the girls stayed down in the basement of the church and cut bread and made sandwiches; some of the girls powdered their noses and went out on the lawn and flirted with the men and sold the sandwiches.

I guess, after all, a political convention isn't so much different from a strawberry festival. As the Bible says, it takes a Martha and it takes a Mary. And what a Mary was Malvina from Texas!

ROOSEVELT HEARS SELF NOMINATED OVER THE RADIO

Albany, N. Y., June 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt spent a happy and confident afternoon in the executive mansion today listening to his cohorts in Chicago displaying their zeal for his presidential candidacy.

With all the members of his family not attending the convention gathered about him, the governor smiled broadly as the radio carried to him the nominating speech of his old friend, John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie and the following demonstration of his supporters.

"It was fine. It was great," he said a few minutes after the demonstration ended as he talked over the direct wire with James A. Farley, his manager at Chicago.

Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, his mother, sat near him knitting. Across the room was his wife, also knitting. Elliott and John, his sons, were close to him. On a nearby couch sat Mrs. James Roosevelt, a stepsister-in-law of Mrs. Dorothy Rosenman, whose husband, Supreme Court Justice Rosenman, stood off in a corner.

BADGER STATE IS CHEERED FOR "26 VOTES NO"

Vote on President to Split United Front.

Chairman F. Ryan Duffy's strong "Wisconsin casts 26 votes NO" brought cheers from the floor and the galleries early yesterday morning as the Badger state—always liberal—joined the overwhelming majority favoring flat repeal of all dry laws.

For the first time, and perhaps the only time during the convention, the delegation was thoroughly in accord, holding against adoption of the minority or "moist" plank on prohibition.

Mr. Pfiffner, Charles E. Broughton of Sheboygan, national committeeman elect; Chairman Duffy and Congressman Reilly of Fond du Lac, have been leaders in the wet movement in Wisconsin and all were jubilant last night.

A divided vote will be presented today on the balloting for the presidential nomination, however. Gov. Roosevelt of New York is assured of 24 votes, but Thomas D. O'Malley of Milwaukee, and S. D. Balliet of Appleton are not favorable to him.

Among the prominent persons from Wisconsin who attended the wet battle were former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and Mrs. Kohler; President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin, and William J. Campbell of Oshkosh.

"DESPONDENCY," SUICIDE VERDICT.

A verdict of suicide while despondent was returned yesterday at an inquest into the death of Nils Olsen, 55 years old, 4712 Altgeld street, a structural iron worker. He was found shot to death Wednesday in the Elmwood cemetery, Elmwood Park.

MOVE TO FORCE CONGRESS VOTE ON WET PLANK

Bingham to Call Up Repeal Bill in Senate.

sentiment in favor of bringing the reign of prohibition to an end, wet leaders are confident that the needed votes can be had.

One of the telling arguments which the wet leadership is counting on is that of the enormous revenue to be derived from a tax on beer.

Revenue from Legalized Beer.

According to Senator Bingham legalized beer will bring 375 million dollars a year into the federal treasury. This would be under the present revenue, which, despite prohibition, continues to carry a tax of $6 a barrel on beer on the statute books.

The Linthicum bill introduced in the house would legalize beer of 2.75 alcoholic content by weight and would tax it at 3 cents per bottle, or one cent more than under the Bingham bill.

In the house reluctant leadership on both sides and the so-called liberalized Democratic rules conspired to endanger the prospect for a decisive prohibition vote.

While both Representative Henry T. Rainey [Ill.], Democratic leader, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell [N. Y.], Republican leader, were willing to have another vote on outright repeal and beer, neither would agree to take the initiative necessary to assure a showdown ballot in the light of their party platforms.

Without the strength of either leader, the complicated house rules make a vote almost impossible, according to Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], parliamentary expert.

The beer bill must go before the overwhelmingly dry ways and means committee and the repeal resolution to the equally arid judiciary committee. Petitions to discharge these committees on this legislation having been defeated earlier in the session, they may not be presented again.

Rainey Willing to Vote.

House leaders, while publicly professing a keen desire to settle the question here and now, were of the opinion, therefore, that the best chance for house action would be for the senate to pass a repeal resolution or modification bill and force the lower chamber to act.

Representative Rainey did not think it was necessary for the convention to commit the whole party to repeal unreservedly. He declared no one in this congress was bound by the platform until the next election, although he emphasized his willingness to vote on the issue if it is brought up.

Mr. Snell was more forthright, declaring: "It can't come too soon to suit me." But in the same breath he added that he doubted whether any one had had time to work out an adequate repeal resolution for immediate resubmission. The Republican leader would vote for "a properly drawn" resolution.

Many former drys, while not changing their personal opinion, were willing to vote out a repealer "to give the people a chance to say what they want."

Prominent among them were Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], once a militant prohibitionist, and Paul Kvale [Farmer-Labor, Minn.].

Representative George Huddleston [Dem., Ala.], dry leader of the house in the absence of Representative John Blanton [Dem., Tex.], roared: "I'm still dry; I'll vote, as I've always voted, platform or no platform." But his voice was lost in the chorus of newly converted wets and moists.

ASKS BEER AND WINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—A new and unique proposal for the legalization of light wines and beer made its appearance in the house of representatives today in the form of a bill to permit the manufacture and sale of such beverages by farm and cooperative marketing organizations.

The measure, introduced by Representative Loring H. Black [Dem., N. Y.], is premised on the assertion that an emergency exists in the agricultural industry, "due to a surplus of certain agricultural commodities and to a lack of market for farm products."

Liquor as Medicine.

Under the bill, farm organizations and cooperative marketing associations would be licensed to process farm products into light wines and beer, "not intoxicating in fact," and to engage in the sale of such beverages. They also would be permitted to make and sell intoxicating liquors for medicinal and sacramental purposes.

Adoption of his proposal, Mr. Black said, would provide a farm market which was lost through the passage of the prohibition act. It would aid agriculture in bearing the "burden of taxation placed upon it" as a result of the nation's loss of liquor revenue and the excessive cost of enforcement of the prohibition laws."

Federal License Board.

The licenses would be issued by "a federal alcoholic liquor board," composed of three members, to be chosen from a list of 15 names suggested by leading farm organizations. Revenue from the licenses would be used for farm relief to be administered by the secretary of agriculture.

The bill provides that "beer and wine, not intoxicating in fact," are to be defined by 10 "reputable chemists and physicians" after tests have been conducted.

D. 5, was killed, and Robert Slater, 18, also of Urbana, Ill., was critically injured in a crash of two automobiles on state road 30, near here, today. The Rev. E. R. Armstrong, pastor Kouts, Ind., Presbyterian church; Mrs. George Anderson and daughters, Jane, 14, and Virginia, 16, of this city, riding in the other car, were injured.

Brewers to Spend Millions If Real Beer Is Legalized

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Two companies, whose beer was famous before prohibition, announced today their preparations for the return of that drink.

FRED PABST.

To the $20,000,000 that half a dozen brewers have estimated they will spend for materials and equipment if beer is legalized, Fred Pabst, the Milwaukee brewer, added another five million dollars.

The George Ehret Brewing company of this city, which stopped manufacture of near beer if 1929, has obtained a state charter for manufacture of the real thing so that it will be in a position to come back. At the office of Louis J. Ehret, the president, it was explained that if the company returns to the brewing business, a considerable sum will be spent for equipment, though no decision has been made concerning the extent of this possible investment.

Supplementing a survey of the brewers' anticipated expenditures, Mr. Pabst outlined in detail the increased purchases by the Pabst breweries when "we are permitted to manufacture and sell a light, nonintoxicating beer."

Pabst Lists Expenditures.

"Our estimates," Mr. Pabst said, "are based on the assumption that we would sell 500,000 barrels all in bottles during the first year that beer comes back. Assuming a 100 per cent turnover every four months, we would have to invest, for instance, during that first year in $875,000 worth of bottles and $1,000,000 in cases.

"Crowns, $260,000; labels, $50,000; cleaning chemicals, $12,000; labeling glue, $4,000; bottle and hand brushes and brooms, $5,000; bottle trays, $8,000; ice, $5,000; miscellaneous, at least $50,000; advertising, $300,000 at a conservative estimate; trucks, $25,000; mechanical changes, $50,000; replacement of obsolete machinery, $50,000, and additional wages, $750,000.

"Should we be permitted to sell beer in barrels we could easily figure on the output of an additional 500,000 barrels, which would require an investment in wooden or steel barrels of $1,250,000."

The charter for the George Ehret Brewing company was obtained in Albany yesterday, and the new company is capitalized at the nominal sum of $5,000.

Millions in Revenue.

In statements made in St. Louis on June 25, August A. Busch estimated that the breweries of which he is head would require about $7,000,000 in additional equipment and materials. Jacob Ruppert, New York brewer, fixed his requirements at $5,000,000; the Schlitz brewery anticipated an expenditure of $3,000,000. Of three leading Brooklyn brewers, Henry G. Piel said his brewery expected to spend $1,000,000; George Trommer figured he would spend $700,000, and Rudolph Schaefer another $1,000,000 upon the legalization of beer.

Mr. Ruppert estimated that the American brewing industry would have to spend $200,000,000 for rehabilitation purposes when beer comes back, with a resulting federal revenue of $150,000,000—and a lot more taxes to be collected by local and state governments.

CHANGE LAW ON WORT SALES TO COLLECT TAX

Milwaukee, Wis., June 29. — [Special.]—The manufacture and sale of wort, an essential ingredient in the brewing of beer, heretofore disapproved by the prohibition department, today received inferential approval of the government. Milwaukee brewers received notice of a change in their industrial alcohol permits which they interpret as removing the ban on wort.

The product was one of the articles on which a tax was placed under the new federal law tax. The change in the nature of the prohibition department regulations relieves the government of the incongruity of one law taxing the manufacture of an article of commerce, the manufacture of which is forbidden by another law.

A letter was received today by Milwaukee brewers from E. C. Yellowley, Chicago, supervisor of industrial alcohol permits, calling for the submission of brewers' permits for the purpose of alteration.

The letter reads:

"I have a letter from the commissioner of industrial alcohol dated June 28, 1932, to recall all permits for the manufacture of cereal beverages for the elimination of stipulation 10 thereof and the substituting of the following:

"'That if wort, malt sirup, or malt extract are manufactured by you for sale, you will keep a record of the quantity of each kind of material used, the quantity of wort, malt sirup, and malt extract, produce the names and addresses of persons to whom sold and the purpose of each sale.'"

LEADERS ON BOTH SIDES CALL DRY LAW CHIEF ISSUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—That prohibition cannot be denied as the major issue in the coming presidential campaign was the unanimous verdict of Republicans and Democrats alike tonight as the full effect of the Democratic repeal bombshell made itself felt in the national capital.

Speaking for the Republicans, Senator J. L. Dickinson [Ia.], keynoter at the Republican national convention, and chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, asserted that the vital economic issues facing the nation will be subordinated during the campaign to an old-fashioned row over the return of the saloon. He asserted that the Democratic action in calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment forced the country to choose between some form of modified prohibition and a return of the saloon.

Cabinet Members Silent.

While President Hoover and members of his cabinet refrained from issuing any comment on the repeal plank, many of the Hoover leaders said privately that the issue would be between national and local handling of the prohibition question. All who discussed the matter agreed that the Democratic repeal plank made prohibition a definite issue. The only reaction which came from Republican headquarters was a statement from Chairman Everett Sanders announcing that he would establish campaign headquarters in the Palmer house at Chicago in a short time.

Democrats, both wet and dry, hailed the plank as one which would carry the party to victory in the coming election. Although it was apparent that the repeal plank was wetter than some of the traditional Democratic drys wanted to go at this time, there was no talk of bolting the party. Every dry Democrat who had a word to say on the political situation expressed willingness to accept it as a party mandate.

"I'm an organization man," said Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, "and I accept the platform as my party's mandate. I will support it and the candidate who runs on it."

It was immediately apparent today that many of the wet Republicans suffered qualms of envy when they read of the Democratic stand on prohibition. In many instances Republicans were no less plain spoken than the Democrats in their praise of the Democratic platform. Representative A. Piatt Andrews [Rep., Mass.] declared a year from now 36 states will have ratified repeal and national prohibition will be over officially.

PATRIOT PEGLER PUTS HIMSELF IN NOMINATION

Delegates' Votes High—$50 for the Best.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

United States Senator Westbrook Pegler was placed in nomination in today's session of the Democratic convention amid loud cheers of his delegates, some of whom had commanded the remarkably high price, for these times, of $50 a head. Best New York and Pennsylvania stock was quoted at this figure in the official bourse, established in the lobby, under the stairs, but of course Mississippi, Florida, and George swamp types, without neckties or socks, were to be had for the traditional quotation of one dollar, cash, and three nickel cigars.

In order to effect the nomination of Senator Pegler an interesting departure from the ordinary procedure was necessary. Obviously, nobody else in the convention was equal to the duty of presenting the Hon. Pegler's extraordinary qualifications to the meeting, or worthy of the honor.

Therefore it was deemed appropriate for the senator to nominate himself, and even he faltered at times in his efforts to do justice to the noted leader. Therefore, when, at one point, the senator compared his candidate to William Shakespeare, George Washington, Andrew Jackson, and Florence Nightingale, delegates and spectators in the hall lost patience. From the galleries there came cries of "get that knocker out of there and get somebody who knows how to describe a great man."

A Big Job for Pegler.

"I quite appreciate," Senator Pegler replied, "the immensity of the task which I have assumed in attempting to acquaint you with the least of the virtues of the man I am about to present. It seems almost indecent effrontery of me to presume to extol in my poor phrases this man who, with nobility of spirit unparalleled, ate twice his quota in National Apple week, who denounced the housefly, and who fought the good fight to exclude the words ibex, emu, and gnu from the cross-word puzzles of our fair but tortured homeland.

"I beg of you, my friends, that you do not call me presumptuous in the exercise of the privilege with which, by the force of circumstances, I am so undeservedly honored today. And if the delegates will quit horsing around down there I will be better able to proceed with a duty in the performance of which I am only too conscious of my own inadequacy."

At this point several cow, hay, and cotton delegates hopped up and started a parade, but the senator leaned over with a ferocious glare and yelled, "I am paying you mugs 20 cents an hour to demonstrate for our candidate and I expect you to catch your cues. The demonstration starts thirty minutes from now and any parading you do now is done on your own time."

Too Great an Honor.

Returning then to his eulogy, he went on: "I am here before you only because the man never lived who possessed even my own paltry qualifications for so signal a privilege which my sense of humility bids me to decline.

"O, my friends," the senator whimpered, bowing his head in his hands and emitting a sound of "glug-glugging" from the concealment of his palms. "How am I to begin? Never mind; don't tell me. I will get along somehow. I try to describe our candidate's brow and I can but stammer about the cuffs on his pants. I would tell you of his flaming spirit and I fall back, blinded by the luster of his soul, and, honestly, friends, I hesitate to go on because I don't think he ought to let you vote for him at all.

"I would tell you of the time he slugged his little office boy to dissemble the tenderness of the great, human soul that dwells within his imposing form, but that would not depict the true glory of our candidate. His outward surliness, his habit of kicking and punching people and hitting servants with his walking stick are characteristics dear to all who have had the honor of living in the same generation with him.

"For we all know that this apparent unkindness is but a gauge of his vast tenderness, his compassion, his sweet sympathy for his fellow man, assumed in modesty to conceal the true virtues behind this gruff exterior. Yet these devices ill conceal his love of his fellow man and I have estimated that it would take another Dearborn massacre to do so."

Socks Boy with Bottle.

At this point, the Hon. Pegler reached down with a bottle and busted it on the head of a messenger boy passing below the rostrum in order to conceal his love of his fellow man.

"No matter," he said, "it was one I emptied a while ago.

"We all know, my friends, that our candidate voted both yes and no on the prohibition question and we know, too, that he did this only because the great father's heart of him was too tender to permit his hurting the feelings of wet or dry.

"We know he stands for rigid economy on one hand and great bond issues on the other because, in the boundless generosity of his character, he could never do aught to deter the humblest of our citizens from the pleasure of voting for him in November.

"Our candidate, my friends, is no ordinary Democrat, but great enough to ennoble the Republican platform and to run on both platforms at once.

"And yet, when the sounds of battle roar amid our traditions and the banners of humanity stand with bowed heads, festering away like the shifting sands beneath a house of cards, where stands our illustrious candidate then?

A Fearless Candidate.

"He stands in the forefront of the storm, his brave escutcheon unlimbered to the fangs which stifle the very tap-roots of our immortal heritage. There he stands as on that historic day in 1924 when he boldly put his hand to the round-robin requesting the repeal of the Meatless Monday act.

"His Thanksgiving day and Memorial day proclamations have been models of fearless reasoning, simplicity, and independence. And I need not to be accepted as a day for celebration in our great commonwealth and remind you of the time when he wrote 'The Fourth of July has come I am not disposed to oppose this tendency on the whole.'

"The name of our candidate I need not, I will not mention. You know too well the candidate I have in mind and my reference for him forbids that I bandy his name among such as you."

This last remark was a tactical mistake on the part of Senator Pegler. A demonstration ensued, but all the various groups thought their man had been referred to. All the delegations took to the floor at once.

U. S. EMBASSY BROKE; CANCELS TRADITIONAL FREE FEED ON JULY 4

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 30.—There will be no Fourth of July reception at the American embassy this year. The embassy in making this announcement today explained suavely that it is "due to the absence of Ambassador Walter E. Edge and Mrs. Edge."

But it is learned that the real reason is that the embassy is broke. The severe depression retrenchment in the foreign service does not allow for the purchase of the annual flock of sandwiches, not to mention money for the repair of wreckage the next day.

Painful groans are already rising tonight from those expatriates who are accustomed to make the Fourth of July the occasion to see inside their country's outpost, and also from that humble stratum who used to save up their appetites for that day to feed off the embassy buffet. To be sure, there will be a luncheon at the American Women's club and an American Chamber of Commerce banquet, but neither will offer free sandwiches.

La Porte Dairies Cut Price of Milk to 8 Cents a Quart

La Porte, Ind., June 30.—Special.—Milk prices here will drop to eight cents a quart as a result of an agreement of La Porte dairies today.

POLICE ATTORNEY AND TWO MOVIE CENSORS OUSTED

William H. Luthardt, attorney for the police department, was ousted from his position in a special order issued last night by Police Commissioner Allman. Two movie censors, Mrs. Effie Sigler, in charge of the censor board, and Miss Frances James, were also dropped.

Failure of the city council to provide for them in the 1933 budget resulted in this dismissals, it was explained. However, Luthardt has been under fire recently because of his failure to appear in court to help prosecute a hoodlum.

The case was that of James Belcastro, so-called king of the bombers and public enemy No. 4. Charged with vagrancy, Belcastro was tried before Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green. The evidence against the hoodlum was admittedly flimsy, the judge announced, and he sent for Police Attorney Luthardt. He wanted the latter to cite law on which, under the evidence, he could convict Belcastro. Call after call for Luthardt was sent out, but went unanswered. Belcastro was ultimately freed.

As police attorney, Luthardt was assigned from the corporation counsel's office where he was, technically, an assistant.

The dropping of the movie censors was expected in many quarters as part of an economy move. In his order, Commissioner Allman instructed that Mrs. Sigler's name be restored to the reinstatement eligibility list.

U. S. COURT ASSIGNMENTS.

Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday announced the following assignments of judges of the United States District court for the fall term of court: Charles E. Woodward, criminal call; John P. Barnes, common law cases; James H. Wilkerson, and Judge Carpenter, equity and bankruptcy cases.

WOMEN COOL AT BREAKFAST; ORATORY WARM

Crowd Hears Teachers Laud Repeal.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN

Democratic women kept cool yesterday morning, even though they sweltered later in the day. Only the oratory was warm at the breakfast the women's division of the convention entertainment committee staged for the official women of the party in the Empire room at the Palmer house, where Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, prominent local Democrat, literary and civic leader, presided as toastmistress in her capacity as chairman of the committee, pilot of the speaking program, and chief welcomer of the guests.

MRS. KELLOGG FAIRBANK.

Amid the acclamation for the repeal plank in the platform and the anticipation of what the remainder of the day might develop at the Stadium, 350 of the feminine group, in cool pastel colors and light fabrics, dallied with the chilled tomato juice and the chops, the ham and eggs and the fruit on the menu. Pictorially and socially the party added another to Chicago's list of successes with its women guests.

Mrs. Ross Endorses Repeal.

Former Gov. Nellie Ross of Wyoming, captain of the women's corps of the Democratic forces, appeared to voice the united sentiment of the assemblage when she started applause with her emphatic endorsement of the repeal plank. It was continued through the remarks of Mrs. Anne O'Hagen Shinn, New York writer; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey of Chicago, national committeewoman; Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. George Brennan, Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh [who twice has seconded the nomination of former Gov. Al Smith for the presidency]; Mrs. Teresa Graham of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, national committeewoman, and others.

"I simply can't tell you how happy I am," Mrs. Ross exulted, "over the adopted platform. You are not going to hear any one complaining that they don't know what it means. It is an expression of the will of the American people and will be received as such."

Mrs. Richey Graham, a daughter of Mayor Cermak, represented her father in extending the city's welcome to the delegates, alternates, and national committeewomen. She was both brief and cordial, and was well received by her audience.

Other Guests on List.

Two other daughters of the mayor, Mrs. Floyd Kenlay and Mrs. Frank Birka, were among those at the tables. The guest list included Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Carter Harrison, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, who was secretary of the committee on arrangements, and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, who had a party of visitors at her table.

The latter group included Miss Grace S. Massie, who for the last twenty years has been clerk of the Chaves County court at Roswell, New Mexico, and is the only woman delegate from her home state. In the last two decades, no candidate either Democratic or Republican, has opposed Miss Massie for her office, which is elective.

FIND INJURY DEATH CAUSE.

An inquest was ordered yesterday into the death of Mrs. Ella Drake, 64 years old, 3820 Avenue J, who died Wednesday in the county hospital of complications which followed a fracture of her hip, sustained two months ago.

FERRY CARRYING VACATIONISTS TO MACKINAW CITY

Recall Bits of History for Tourists.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard St. Ignace Ferry, June 30.—[Special.]—In the hold of this ship, operated by the Michigan highway department, are a dozen travel stained automobiles, loaded with tourist duffle. Gazing across the sparkling blue waters of the Straits of Mackinac are vacationists en route from St. Ignace on the upper peninsula to Mackinaw City on the lower peninsula.

Off on the port bow is a green promontory, Mackinac Island. B. Frank Emery, secretary of the Michigan Old Forts Memorial association, is telling a party of newspaper men in the smoking room of an eyent here 300 years ago today. The party is on the annual "historical and legendary tour" of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association.

Jean Nicolet Visited Island.

Jean Nicolet, on June 30, 1632, beached his canoes on that island, said Mr. Emery. "He was in search of a northern water passage to China. He and his few white associates dressed in the silk robes of mandarins to make a favorable impression on Chinese. The Indian natives were duly impressed."

An ore boat, leaving a long trail of lazy smoke at its rear, is near the horizon, bound for the steel mills of Chicagoland. On Mackinac Island may be seen a large white hotel. An eighteenth century blockhouse is mounted on a limestone bluff. Mr. Emery pointed over the bow to a group of buildings, toy size in this perspective.

Scene of Indian Massacre.

"That's Mackinaw City," he said. "On the beach, just to the right of the town, was the British fort, site of the Indian massacre in 1763. Chief Thundercloud, over at Cross Village, tells me that the massacre was a reprisal for indiscretions of the soldiers with Indian girls. However, the slaughter has gone down in history as part of the Pontiac conspiracy.

Seek to Attract Visitors.

Marquette's grave is marked in St. Ignace. The first fort on the island was built in 1670. Ettin Brule explored these waters in 1615. Here at the headwaters of Lake Michigan, was the western outpost of civilization for almost a century. It was a strategic point in the struggle between France and England for dominance in America.

The purpose of this annual tour conducted by the resort association is to attract more summer visitors. Recreational travel has not been diminished by the depression and automobiles are wandering through the forests and woods hereabouts where De Bois brought white civilization to the country in its hunt for beaver and fox skins.

HOOVER SIGNS BUT CRITICIZES ECONOMY BILL

Pens Name with "Limited Satisfaction."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—The economy bill, placing all federal employes on a reduced pay status next fiscal year beginning tomorrow, was signed by President Hoover, today. In attaching his signature to the measure, which is supposed to cut the cost of government by 150 millions during the next twelve month period, the President said he approved the bill with "limited satisfaction."

Calling attention to the small amount saved by the bill, President Hoover said it was far short of the economies which might have been voted by congress. All told, the bill makes hardly a dent in the huge program of expenditures called for next year by appropriation bills already passed or soon to go to the President.

Economies proposed by the cabinet and other executive officers of the government and many items of their proposals which were in turn recommended by committees on economy of the two houses failed of passage, the President explained, adding:

"Also the bill is so framed as to render abolition or consolidation of the most consequential commissions and bureaus impossible of consummation until some months after the next session of congress."

Burden on Taxpayers.

Faced with an impending deficit of one billion, seven hundred million dollars for the fiscal year beginning tomorrow, congress was forced to choose between slashing government costs or increasing federal taxes in order to make up the gap. On the recommendation of the Hoover administration, congress decided to place the major share of the burden of preventing another huge deficit upon the taxpayer. A one billion, 118 million dollar tax bill was passed, leaving more than half a billion to be made up through cuts in the annual appropriation bills and through the enactment of an economy bill if the 1933 budget was to be balanced.

A 200 million dollar economy bill was introduced. At one time the bill would have saved 238 millions. As finally passed, it called for savings of 150 millions, mostly through reductions in the pay received by federal employes. Just how much will be saved through slashes in appropriation bills has not been announced, but the amount probably will not exceed an additional 125 million dollars.

Federal Workers Sliced.

As finally enacted, the economy bill provides that all federal workers earning in excess of $1,000 a year must be placed on a one month payless furlough basis. Where furloughs cannot be applied, a pay cut, ranging from 8.3 per cent, between $1,000 and $10,000, to 20 per cent on salaries over $20,000, will be substituted. Automatic pay increases and promotions within grades are suspended for one year. No vacancies are to be filled in the federal services without the President's consent. Annual leave with pay for government workers is reduced permanently to fifteen days.

It is estimated 100 millions will be saved through operation of the furlough plan.

In a speech in the senate Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.] called the President's criticism of the economy bill astonishing. Senator Robinson blamed the President for substituting the payless furlough plan for government employes in place of the straight pay cut recommended by the appropriations committee. The straight pay cut would have saved $20,000,000 more than the furlough, he said.

U. S. ENDS FISCAL YEAR; DEFICIT IS THREE BILLION

Four Appropriation Bills Still Await Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—At midnight tonight the federal government closed its books for the fiscal year 1932 with a deficit of about two billions 900 millions entered on the red side of the ledger and four of the appropriation bills for next year not yet passed by congress.

The deficit, which meant an increase in the national debt of some two and a half billion dollars, was brought about by a 20 per cent increase in expenditures and a 33 per cent falling off in receipts during the last fiscal year. When the expenditures for the year are finally totaled up they will come close to five billion dollars.

4 Bills Await Action.

The failure to pass appropriation bills in time for the close of the year has not happened in the memory of many veteran officials.

Employes of eight of the ten government departments, including the officers and men of the army, ambassadors, federal judges, and postal workers, will go to work tomorrow technically without any provision for their employment or pay.

The four bills still awaiting final action by congress are the war department bill, where the question of cutting the officer personnel from 12,000 to 10,000 is still at issue; the agriculture bill, with a quarrel over the appropriation for grasshopper control still going on; the treasury and post-office department bill, which was sent back to conference over a $3,000,000 provision for rural sanitation; and the state, justice, commerce, and labor bill, which is being held up by northwest members' insistence on an air line to Puget sound.

Leaders Not Worried.

Congressional leaders were dismayed but not worried over the failure to pass the four bills. They expected all, with the possible exception of the war department bill, to be approved tomorrow. With "little army" congressmen dominating the house conferees and the senate conferees composed of national defense defenders, the question of cutting the officer personnel may hold up the war department bill for several days.

Hope of adjourning congress this Saturday was definitely put aside when to the situation with respect to the appropriation bills there was added the announcement that the conferees on the relief bill would not be ready to report until next week.

Democratic leaders in both houses are determined that congress shall remain in Washington and that final agreement on the relief bill shall not be had until the Democrats absent in Chicago have returned.

The two were at the beach with Edith and Dorothy Le Vene, sisters, who also live at 3708 Armitage avenue.

REPEAL THE VOLSTEAD ACT NOW.

Congress is still in session. It lies within its power to deal a deadly blow at depression. If it refuses to exercise this power it will have missed an opportunity given to few congresses in our history. The repeal of the Volstead act and the passage of a law legalizing and taxing beer, non-intoxicating in fact and therefore without the terms of the 18th amendment, would have immediate consequences of vital benefit to the whole nation. It would substantially assist the finances of the government and lighten the burden of taxation on the shoulders of productive enterprise. It would give new employment and a new outlet for farm products. It would strike at the resources which have made organized crime more formidable than in any other civilized country. It would remove a source of justified exasperation at the invasion of private liberty and therefore tone up the public morale.

This is a service which an overwhelming majority of the American people will welcome at this time. It transcends party, but it is as expedient politically as it is urgently demanded by the financial and social crisis of the country. The regime of national prohibition has conspicuously broken down. This has been revealed in both the great party conventions. In the Republican convention a weak compromise was won by bureaucratic discipline, but it exposed prohibition in ignominious retreat. In the Democratic convention the victory for repeal was sweeping and final. The outgoing congress has not registered the swelling force of the revolt against destructive expenditure. But it can hardly be blind to the meaning of the revolt against prohibition at both conventions. There is no excuse for postponing the inevitable. There are the most urgent reasons for the immediate relief which congress can give by action before adjournment. The Volstead act was an extension of prohibition beyond the terms of the 18th amendment. It was resented and is resented as an act of bigotry. It never can be enforced, for it never should have been passed. It blocks practicable measures for liquor traffic restraint. It creates bitterness and contempt toward government. It is creator of a vast illicit industry which corrupts government and pays no taxes. It is everything a law should not be, and the present congress will not be excused if it shirks the duty of removing it from the laws and replacing it with an act valid under any honest interpretation of the 18th amendment, to legalize and tax a beverage never intended, save by bigots, to be prohibited.

ABDUL, HERE WE ARE.

A subcommittee of the city council made some astonishing recommendations a few days ago about all night parking. In effect the committee said: "Let the ordinance against all night parking stand, but let it be nullified at the discretion of the police." Not the least remarkable aspect of the committee's decision was that it was taken at the suggestion of a professor of Harvard university, Dr. Miller McClintock.

We used to say that government in this country was a government of laws and not of men. It is true, of course, that laws cannot enforce themselves and they cannot interpret themselves. Executive officials and judges are men and, as such, they have their prejudices, their vagaries, and their weaknesses. Nevertheless, the ideal of a government of laws rather than a government of men was, if not entirely attainable, at least an ideal which we had reason to think was worth striving for. As an ideal it curbed the tendency of lawmakers to pass laws which would not be enforced impartially and at the same time it brought pressure on executive officials and judges to apply the laws equally, without regard for persons.

If the city council concurs in the decision of its subcommittee the theory of government in Chicago will be indistinguishable for all practical purposes from the theory which operated in Turkey under the sultans, except that the sultans never pretended that the laws meant what they said. Turkish laws and decrees were generally recognized as intended to shake down the citizenry. The emirs and pashas would have welcomed Prof. McClintock's plan. Under it they could have counted on collecting a dollar a week from all night parkers for letting them break the law, and when the sultan had been presented with his cut enough would have been left over to buy quite a few pearls for the harem.

Of course, it is inconceivable that police captains in Chicago could ever abuse their discretionary powers under Prof. McClintock's scheme. The professor explained that he did not want "to leave the police helpless in combating obnoxious situations." The police policy, he said, should be not to go after those on quiet streets, but to enforce the ordinance where complaints are made against parking or where violations of other ordinances occur." And, no doubt, if the professor's advice is taken it will all work out just as he expects it to.

Only it is a little odd that the "obnoxious situations" which this ordinance is intended to curb are so tenuous that they cannot be defined and prohibited directly, and a little odd, too, that, though all night parking is harmless in some circumstances and not in others, the definition of these varying circumstances is far too difficult for the city council to undertake. How fortunate, then, that any chief of police can distinguish between the harmful and the harmless and issue appropriate orders as easily as he can pull on his socks.

BROADCASTING THE NEWS.

From 7:30 to 9 o'clock Wednesday night the W-G-N radio station was the only major broadcasting service through which the radio public could follow the proceedings of the Democratic convention. One or two low power stations in the Chicago district were on the air, but the two other major systems, the National Broadcasting and the Columbia, were giving their listeners an advertising program. They saved, it is said, $50,000 an hour. W-G-N sacrificed its advertising revenue to serve its hearers.

The incident raises some important issues in the evolution of radio broadcasting. THE TRIBUNE holds that, as its first duty as a newspaper is to its readers, the first duty of W-G-N is to its hearers. The public wanted to know what was going on at the Democratic convention. The hearers of W-G-N heard. The hearers of commercial broadcasters heard an advertising program instead.

Broadcasting is or should be a public service, an adjunct and extension of the press. It is a medium of publicity and therefore a medium of advertising, but its paramount duty is the publishing of news, the publishing of events.

That is why broadcasting should not be merely a commercial enterprise. A commercial enterprise is not equipped for the gathering and presentation of news. Its function is the vending of commodities—to develop its own efficiency, its own methods, its own viewpoint. The newspaper is primarily an agency of news report and comment, a public function recognized and protected in the fundamental law of the land. It is the only appropriate instrumentality for the broadcasting of events by radio.

This, in fact, gives it a special value as a medium of advertising, in other words, as a medium of commercial information which gains a wider and more receptive hearing in conjunction with reports of events, and avoids such errors as that of Wednesday night. No advertised product can be benefited by a forced and untimely presentation.

A CONVENTION INCIDENT.

Senator Walsh, presiding over the Democratic convention, had a taste of mob control. It was a high grade mob, a very moderate mob, as mobs go. But it was a goodly number of humans, temporarily out of hand and in a situation out of which trouble is likely to develop.

Senator Walsh must have had, in fact obviously had, several anxious and unpleasant moments, but the danger, thanks to the quality or composition of the gathering, passed without tragic incident. Nevertheless, it is worthy of Senator Walsh's reflection, when he is safe at home or in the snug harbor of our august senate. Appeals to popular prejudice and passion are favored in the political tactics of the group of politicians of which Senator Walsh is a forceful member. They are the soil of violence or unreasoning excess, and even the mild experience of the convention incident offers a hint worth pondering. Disorder is the worst foe of freedom and justice. Order and discipline are the essentials of progress, of civilized progress.

Editorial of the Day

THE FALLACY OF INDISCRIMINATE CHARITY.
(Emmet Keating, M. D., in the Northwest Medical.)

Miss Sybiline Winnington, approaching 70, stood in a chain store waiting her turn to make her small purchases. Age and infirmities had forced her retirement from the work she had so faithfully performed for many years. Born and reared on an Illinois farm, she came to Chicago when a young woman, studied and worked hard in a hospital training school and received her diploma of a graduate nurse. By virtue of many denials she saved enough to enable her to live in a cheap rooming house, where she prepares and cooks the simple food her small income makes possible for her to buy.

She watched with interest and, perhaps, a little envy, the customer ahead of her—a young robust woman who was buying liberally not only of the necessities, but many luxuries. Finally the many purchases were made and the transaction completed. To the astonishment of the retired nurse the young woman proffered in payment a slip from the government charity, which the clerk accepted with thanks.

Unless prominent leaders in the business, professional and newspaper world do something to curtail the activities and silence the fear inspiring voice of organized charity, the renewal of normal trade conditions will not take place. Keep up the solicitation of people upon whom to bestow charity long enough and there will be no more money for organized charity, because the national and local governments, as well as the people, will be plunged into hopeless poverty. The first thing organized charity destroyed was the pride and initiative of the people it befriended; the next thing it destroyed was the income of the medical profession. When will doctors learn that if they will quit the free clinics and the 50 cent admission clinics their own offices will be filled with patients who can pay from a dollar up. With that situation established we can well afford to give free service to the deserving poor, who will be so well distributed that no one physician will be overburdened.

Over 35 per cent of the membership of the Chicago Medical society have failed to pay their annual dues. The branch delinquencies range from the low figure of 23 per cent plus for Evanston to 52 per cent plus for Calumet.

It is high time to stop the foolishness of attempting to keep up the sham that the pauper and millionaire are the only ones who receive the best of medical care. A lot of money has been wasted for the supposed benefit of the pauper who, of course, never has and never will receive the medical attention administered either to the millionaires or the middle class. In fact, the middle class is very apt to receive superior treatment. They have the services of the family doctor plus, when needed, the advice of usually but one specialist. The millionaires have the advice of specialists only, with no one having sufficient authority or ability to correlate and properly evaluate the findings of the various specialists.

AWAY WITH FISHY WATER.

THE disagreeable taste and, sometimes, odor of municipally treated water supplies is due far more to other ingredients than it is to chlorine. The most objectionable of these other ingredients are the tars and phenols thrown into lakes and rivers as waste from coking ovens and related industrial plants. When these tars and phenols are pretty well diluted in a body of water neither taste, odor, nor appearance causes suspicion that they are present. But let a faint trace of chlorine be added to the water and at once the coke oven taste develops and the consumer kicks to the authorities. Occasionally he complains that some hospital is dumping its surgical dressings into the water supply. As a rule, he is better informed, or thinks he is, and he complains of the chlorine treatment. If he knows just what he is talking about he complains of some coke oven or other industrial plant that discharges tar waste into the lake or river.

In recent years the complaints of the chlorinated water supplies are becoming less frequent. This is partly because many coking plants are putting in apparatus to recover the tars and phenols from the sewage water. However, a more important improvement has consisted in the use of ammonia in some form or other in addition to chlorine. This process is called the ammonia-chlorine treatment. In most instances the chemicals used are combinations of chlorine and ammonia, known as chloramines.

About the time of the world war we heard much of the use of several chloramines for the purpose of sterilizing water. Several preparations are on the market under trade names. The man who was going on a camping tour, or the soldier on detached field duty, could take along a bottle of these tablets and use them to sterilize water from unproved sources. About two years ago cities began using these chemicals to purify municipal water supplies.

Experience on a large scale has justified this use. Water so treated has very considerable advantages over water treated with chlorine alone. It prevents the development of that carbolic taste in waters that contain some gasmouse wastes. If those tastes are already there it does not remove them. But it does prevent the catastrophic bringing out of the carbolic taste which is so apt to follow when ordinary chlorination is done. It prevents the growth of algæ, the green scum growth on water and on the shore line. It destroys bacteria in water even better than does chlorination, provided certain other requirements are met.

Since it slows up the bactericidal action water must be held for more than two hours after being treated to get satisfactory results. The water must be clear, free from turbidity, and not too alkaline. Treatment with one of the chloramines is especially satisfactory if the water is first filtered, then treated, then stored for a brief period.

BLOODSHOT EYES.

S. J. S. writes: 1. What causes bloodshot eyes? 2. What is the remedy?

REPLY.

1. Irritations and strains, such as exposure to dust, wind, heat, and glare, swimming, drunken sprees, insufficient sleep, difficult eye work.
2. Avoid the cause.

IT'S ALL IN THE SHOES.

Gladys writes: What can be done to prevent corns? I never had corns until lately and now I am getting several on the tops of my toes. Thought perhaps my shoes were too small, so I bought a size larger than I usually wear, but this has not helped.

REPLY.

Why not wear even larger shoes? Corns result from rubbing. Wearing shoes that do not rub will prevent this. It is also the only cure. However, time is required for cure. A disorder caused by twenty years of wrong practice cannot be cured in twenty days of good practice. Going barefoot on the beach may yet bring about the wearing of properly fitted shoes. After the women get pretty feet my slower sex may become interested in their own gnarled members.

CASHING CHECKS.

Berwyn, Ill., June 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I drew a check in November and this check was presented for payment the following March. In the meantime I had closed the account. Is this delay considered carelessness on their part? I believe I have read the decision in your column to that effect.

B. M.

Section 185 of the negotiable instruments law is as follows: "A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue and notice of dishonor given to the drawer as provided for in the case of bills of exchange or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay.

If, as appears to be the case, you have sustained no damage by reason of the holder's delay then you could be required to make the check good.

REFUSE COLLECTION.

Chicago, June 26.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please have some one investigate the paper and filth that blows in front of our house when the garbage wagon picks up the garbage for a vegetable store nearby. It is all left in boxes and baskets to be emptied when the wagon comes and when they empty it on the wagon it just flies all over.

J. K.

Report is made that refuse collections referred to are made by a private scavenger. Storekeeper has been notified to instruct the collector to exercise more care and not litter the alley. Location will be kept under observation to see that this is done.

ASK FOR REDUCTION.

Chicago, June 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can I be taken to court for being unable to pay my wife's attorney's fees? I am paying $7 a week for the support of one child. I have been out of work for four months and without funds and must borrow money every week for the child's support. If I go to jail [2] would my wife have to pay my board in alimony row?

H. J. M.

1. Yes. If you are unable to pay you should apply to the court to reduce the figure.
2. Yes.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Here to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HURRAH for the nominee of the Democratic party! The occasion is a great one, a historic one; it marks an epoch. It is worthy of our famous roosters that have not had a chance to crow for years and years. Crow for the nominee and the wet plank, boys. Crow your heads off. (Name of nominee, if any, will be found on first page. We had to go to press at early candlelight before the thing was settled.)

AND, ANYHOW, after reading the platform it won't be hard for anybody, not even the drys, to get the idea that the Democrats are dead set against the 18th amendment and are going to do something about it right away.

AND NOW if the Jefferson lads finish up the remaining business of their convention with the vigor, vim, decisiveness, and straight-from-the-shoulder, take-it-or-leave-it manner they've run their show since the beginning, they go down in history. If not—they'll probably go down in November.

JULY.

It is good to go out in the bloom-laden fields,
To revel in oceans of sky,
It is good to look up from the strivings of earth
And watch the white clouds go by.

It is good to forget the meanness of men
Who vie in their ardor for gold;
It is pleasant to know there are spaces of light
Where virtue and truth are not sold.

Forgetting that death is at hand;
The poplars rejoice in the summer's high noon—
July is abroad in the land.

But men have no songs, they toil and they fret,
As joyless and glum as a clod;
It is good to go out in the shimmering fields,
To rest in the gardens of God.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

WELL, IT PROBABLY WON'T BE LONG NOW! It's bound to come to an end sooner or later, and then, after the dust has cleared away and the delegates and alternates and the rest of the visiting firemen have all gone home, we can look around and see what's been going on in the rest of the world while we were repealing and pointing with pride and viewing with alarm here in Chicago. Wonder what ever became of Mussolini? And what became of Comrade Stalin and Red Russia? Comrade Stalin used to make the first page every few days and was quite amusing. Will he please write? And have they had another crisis in Paris and torn down the Vendome column again? And have the Japs captured the Philippines and Spain? Much must have happened out in the great wide world since we last heard of it, and, while we just love conventions, it would be really most interesting to find out what's been going on in other places. Ah, well, soon we shall know all.

They're Getting Desperate— Those Hitch Hikers.

Sir: Didja hear about the hitch hiker who was discerned on a highway near Dubuque with a banner on his back reading: "Give me a ride or I'll vote for Hoover"?

JAZBO OF OLD DUBUQUE.

JULY! Vacation time. Oh, shuttup! Anyhow, it brings the Fourth. Everybody has a chance to enjoy the Fourth. Maybe it'll be a stray bullet smashing up the window from the random shot of a 100 per cent patriot or it may be the dear little boy down the alley shooting a cap pistol. The best way to enjoy the Fourth is to stay at home and crawl under the sofa. But people feel they just have to go to picnics on the Fourth. It's an old American custom. Well, in the days of old Rome they used to toss the Christian martyrs to the lions in the Coliseum. It isn't much worse to have to go to a Fourth of July picnic. Anyhow, chasing spiders and weird bugs out of the lobster salad is better than being chased all around the arena by a hungry Numidian lion. That is, if you want to think it is. As somebody has said, everything is good or bad according to the way you think it is. Personally, we'd rather be chased by the hungry lion.

GREAT BRITAIN suggests that Germany should settle the reparations question by handing over a flat sum, two billion dollars. Anyhow, Germany should thank Great Britain for the compliment.

SONNET LIX.

Not now, Mnemosyne, will I withdraw
The dancers and the fire, the flowery groves
That held the goddess whose unchanging law
Harried my sky with clouds of little loves.
Her girls are gone like petals on the air
From the high altar with its fiery scars,
But though the niche is empty, one is there,
Hedged from the night with ranks of thorny stars.

Beckon me forth accedent to my fate,
Beset my path with bramble and with stone,
Haunt me with music strange and desolate—
To no tall altar do I walk alone.
Ave! the One who fitted to my scheme

NANCY SHORES.

AND IT DOES LOOK as though in the very near future water will be put back under bridges where it belongs. And used in oceans to float ships and sprinkled on the lawn and the geraniums and sloshed on the autos. Water is really a very wonderful thing when it is not diverted from its natural uses.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

What is meant by "invisible" light?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

ANSWER.

To be a source of sound any object must oscillate or vibrate with a rapidity that results in its execution of any number between 30 and 25,000 vibrations per second. These vibrations set up in the surrounding air (or water if the source be submerged) alternate rapid compressions and rarefications which are passed on through the surrounding medium as waves. In air these waves advance about a mile in every 5 seconds. As they travel out they become attenuated with distance and are gradually absorbed and dissipated by friction.

Our ears are especially adapted to respond to these rapid successions of changes in pressure produced by these waves as they fall upon the ear drum. The latter is set into vibration with the same frequency as that of the source. A delicate mechanism consisting of three little bones behind the ear drum conveys the impulses to the inner ear where a complex nerve mechanism produces the sensation of sound.

Audible sound waves vary in length from a few inches to about thirty feet. Dogs and other animals can undoubtedly hear sounds that are higher in pitch than those detectable by human ears.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 1, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Administration officials learned with dismay the definite character of Gen. Carranza's memorandum issued in Mexico City today in reply to Secretary Lansing's 6,000 word note of warning. Carranza insists that the American forces be withdrawn from Mexico immediately but makes no reference to President Wilson's ultimatum of Sunday, and apparently Carranza will ignore that document so far as any specific response is concerned. Summed up, the Carranza memorandum says: Mexico never consented to the Pershing expedition as it was conducted and demands removal of the troops. America is to blame for the raids by failing to protect the border. When the American government recognized Carranza it was cognizant of border outlawry. Mexico defies the United States to prove that it protected bandits. The stubbornness of Watson, mining leader, was to blame for the Santa Ysabel massacre. Mexico notified the United States that Villa was at Palomas and to expect the raid on Columbus. The United States troops entered Parral against Mexican orders and are to blame for the fight there. One hundred and forty Mexicans have been slain recently on American soil. The slayers have gone unpunished.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The First squadron of the First cavalry boarded the train for the Mexican border at 12:50 a. m., Col. Milton J. Foreman in command. The headquarters' band and troops A, B, C, and D boarded cars at 2 a. m. The Second squadron, Maj. R. R. McCormick in command, was due to leave at 3 a. m. It comprises troops E, F, G, and H and the machine gun troop. The Third squadron, Lieut. Col. W. H. Whigham in command, was scheduled to leave at 4 a. m. It comprised troops I, K, L, and M.

NEW YORK.—The Trans-Atlantic Trust company of this city, which has been recognized here as an unofficial agent of the Austrian and German governments, announced in a half page advertisement in the Hungarian Daily Amerikai Magyar Nepszava that the German submarine so frequently reported as being on the way here from Hamburg reached Baltimore on Thursday [June 29] and is now concealed somewhere nearby, presumably under the waters of Chesapeake bay.

ON SOLDIERS' FIELD.

Chicago, June 29.—We sat in the soft blue twilight facing the eastern peristyle—around us, rising tier on tier, a silent, expectant throng. The breeze stirred the folds of our flag and lights of silver and rose sent shadows across the arena's green. From the north came the army's air force, flying in military formation. Suddenly the far, clear note of a bugle—louder now and clearer. Here they come, cavalry, infantry, artillery, all in perfect form, sabers glistening, horses satin of skin—proud—swift to the charge. And then the "silent drill"—day fading and the lights gleaming upon those ranks of men—no command, only the swift flashing of arms. Silence—darkness—and ringing like a memory the sweet, sad notes of the bugle—Taps! Some of us have heard that call on the desert or at sea—and some have thrilled to its benediction at the graves of their dead.

On Soldiers' field there are quiet, serious men, proud of their uniform, worn with meticulous care—no shirt sleeved, bargaining group jostling each other for precedence and power.

On Soldiers' field the flag goes by—salute the colors! They have led us through the wilderness—they have waved above our outposts—they have draped the biers of Washington and Lincoln. May they enfold this country in a lasting peace.

On Soldiers' field the flag goes by—Salute!

SUSAN W. HUBBARD.

PLEA FROM A DRY.

Chicago, June 21.—You cannot blot out typhoid by scattering more typhoid germs. You cannot remove ink stains by pouring on more ink. You cannot alleviate suffering by multiplying the causes of suffering. And you cannot promote temperance by setting aside restrictions on liquor. So why not drop all this flapdoodle about temperance? It fools nobody but those who are yearning to be fooled—those who crave a return to the old days of drink, drunkenness, and debauchery. Why not be honest about it and come right straight out for a return to the intolerable conditions which prompted the reaction that resulted in the national prohibition that you so vigorously resent? Such frankness would win for you the respect that frankness always wins. Almost every one, I believe, admires the persistence of THE TRIBUNE in its futile fight for liquor, but few can stomach its tactics.

G. L. I.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

Winnetka, Ill., June 24.—In regard to your editorial urging a public confession of faith by Prof. Max Otto of the Univeristy of Wisconsin, I should be interested in knowing to what God you would have him subscribe? Which God shall it be? The God of Genesis or the God of Moses, the God of Jesus or the God of Calvary, the God of Dr. Henry Emerson Fosdick or the God of Bishop Cannon, the God of Voliva or the God of Eddington?

L. F. MILTON.

SCREAMING IT OUT

Chicago, June 21.—Would you scream out a younger generation's plea for justice? Well, here it is:

Two happy schoolboys just out of our house of knowledge, we were elated on learning that the new golf course—Lincoln park north—was to open Saturday. That would be dandy. Two miles we walked down to the course, only to return the same distance without a stroke of our beloved game. With irony the authoritative starter had informed us, "I'm sorry, young men, no children allowed. Eighteen years is the age limit." We were left to watch the big, brawny men dub their drives, and the women miss two out of three shots.

What is the world coming to? Blot out the future Bobby Joneses, Chick Evanses, and Gene Sarazens to allow a group of overripe dubs to make hash out of a perfectly new course? We don't profess to be champions, but there is a bigger chance of our being so than the adults who now grasp the privileges only for themselves. It isn't wise to allow babies to play the course, but the age limit could be lowered to fifteen. Maybe the present generation is scared of the competition we youngsters might give them. Is that it?

GEORGE AND BILL STEINBRECHER.

IN PRAISE OF KID LEONARD.

East Moline, Ill., June 25.—Why doesn't your paper give Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., a break?

The Kid has met some good men and disposed of them, and especially in the last three fights he has done some fine work, knocking out Young Stuhley, giving Milo Miletti a terrible lacing for ten rounds, and then last Thursday, June 23, he scored a technical knockout over Bud Saltis of Chicago in the eighth frame of a ten round bout.

If the Kid was fighting setups it would be a different story, but he isn't; he's fighting some mighty tough and classy fighters.

M. LE ROY WILLIAMS.

ETHICAL PROBLEM.

Chicago, June 23.—An employé in a particular position knows of a positive method by which he can reduce the time to do his work in half. His organization is on an even keel, neither earning nor losing money, and he feels that by convincing the employer of this better method he may put himself or a coemployé out of a position.

To be at all ethical, it seems to me, he should inform his employer of this method. On the other hand, there is the principle of self-preservation, which in these times would urge that he keep from mentioning his idea.

I have argued that ethics should govern in this case, that in the long run man would benefit by all such improvements and that the only course to take would be to present this new idea.

HERBERT BASS.

STATE CONTROL.

Clinton, Ia., June 23.—Thank you for publishing the liquor editorial of 1917. Is it not a fact that at that time we had state control? If so, have we any reason to suppose that it would be any more effective now than then?

SOVETSKY GETS TEN YEAR TERM IN U. S. PRISON

"Fence" Is Denied Bail Pending Appeal.

John Sovetsky, so called "million dollar fence," was sentenced to serve 10 years in a federal penitentiary yesterday by Judge John P. Barnes on charges of receiving and possessing goods stolen from interstate shipments. He was found guilty by a jury Saturday in the federal court.

Sam Ginsberg, co-defendant and partner of Sovetsky in a store at 6234 South Western avenue, who pleaded guilty after the start of the trial, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary to be followed by five years probation. Both defendants were ordered to pay $1,000 each for the cost of the trial.

In Jail Pending Appeal.

Sovetsky was granted the right to file an appeal, but was ordered held in custody without bond pending its disposal. Ginsberg, who is at liberty in bond, was given a week's stay of execution.

Judge Barnes opened the hearing by overruling a motion for a new trial and sentenced Sovetsky to 10 years each on the first four counts in the indictment, which charged receiving and possession stolen goods, and two years on a conspiracy count. All of the sentences were made to run concurrently with the first 10 year term.

Prosecutor Benjamin Landis corroborated the claim of Ginsberg that he coöperated with the government to the extent of offering his services as government witness. After hearing the statement of the prosecutor, Judge Barnes sentenced Ginsberg to two years on three counts, the terms to run concurrently, and five years probation on the other two.

Has Long Police Record.

Sovetsky has been known to police since 1925 when he was accused of being the fence to whom goods stolen in Green Bay, Wis., was sold. He escaped trial on the charge when Gov. Small refused to honor extradition papers from Wisconsin. He was twice convicted in state courts, but both convictions were reversed in the Supreme court, the last in April, 1931.

The charge on which he was sentenced yesterday grew out of the theft of $10,000 in clothing from freight cars of the Pennsylvania and Great Western railroads. The government presented testimony, based on the investigation of Director John Edgar Hoover of the United States bureau of investigation, that the clothing found its way to the Sovetsky store.

George Welte, confessed thief of the clothing, took the witness stand and testified that Sovetsky had purchased it knowing it to be stolen. An expressman completed the chain of evidence against Sovetsky. He told of going to the Pennsylvania yards at 85th and South Chicago avenue on orders of Sovetsky and hauling the clothing to the Sovetsky store.

GERMANY BALKS ON 'BUYING OFF' WAR PAYMENTS

U. S. Stand on Debt Cuts Is Key at Lausanne.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 30.—Germany's creditors, who also are America debtors, got down to brass tacks with the Fatherland today.

Once they got Germany to agree to the principle of payment of a lump sum to buy off their reparations claims, they sprang another one—it is to be so much if America cancels the war debts, and so much—considerably more—if America does not.

Germany balked. She stands firm, she says tonight, on her demand that the Lausanne conference settle reparations once and for all instead of conditioning a settlement on a future and hypothetical settlement with the United States. However, she has not officially replied to the proposal. Tomorrow the haggling will begin again. Germany is supposed to give her answer then. On it the fate of the conference depends.

Three Oppose Germany.

Germany found the screws put on her today. Great Britain and Italy came here crying for a "clean slate." They found the French opposed it, so today they joined with the French in conditioning the amount of the lump sum Germany is to pay on the future action of the United States.

At this afternoon's session of the reparations committee the whole matter of how much Germany could pay was discussed. Various figures, with complicated indices for their final determination if and when prosperity comes back, were mentioned. The Germans appear to believe, although they flatly deny they have made an offer, that two billion marks (500 million dollars at par) in payment to a European reconstruction fund would be about right as an unconditional payment. This is only a little more than they would pay in one year under the Young plan.

French Ask 7 Billion Marks.

The French are clinging, it is learned, to the idea that seven billion marks (1 billion 750 million dollars at par), or a little more than four out of fifty-two years of the Young plan, ought to be considered as the basic payment. As a moratorium is envisaged for the next two or three years, they count on some final settlement of United States war debts before expiration of that time, and certainly before the German bonds that will comprise the payment become valid. These would be deposited in the Basel reconstruction fund, the assumption being that some day they will be worth something.

The plan is for a sliding scale of some kind. The outside figure probably could be set now—five or six billion marks is seen as a compromise figure, unless Chancellor von Papen gets panicky over the Nazi menace to his government—and then if the United States is overcome by the "contagion of generosity," which is a new French phrase, this would be reduced by a sliding scale or diverted to other uses in the way of reconstruction.

Germans Protest on Terms.

The Germans, finally having agreed in principle on a lump payment, today asked what the juridical formula would be. When Prime Minister MacDonald presented it and they saw that the size of their forfeit was conditioned they protested and went back to their hotel for a council of war.

The discussions continued "just as if the Germans were there," the French said afterward, on amounts, and tonight on a system of issuing bonds and, what was closer to their hearts, the percentages of loot that Germany's various creditors would be allotted in event America does not cancel or decides to reduce war debts by a different yardstick for each of them.

The French tonight were candid about their achievement. They realize, and if they did not the British are there to tell them, that they may never get any of the money that all of the arguments are about, but they want a victory on principle to take home and something more than a moral lever to use on the United States.

International Bank President Gates W. McGarrah is expected here to confer on details of the reconstruction fund, which up to now has been just a convenient term for both the French and Germans. It is, after all, a plan to become operative only when Europe is prosperous.

U. S. Opposes Cancellation.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—According to private advices received here from abroad today, Secretary of State Stimson, acting for President Hoover, is reliably reported to have notified Berlin, Paris, London and Rome that the United States government does not support the thesis of complete cancellation of German reparations.

The inference is that the United States officially favors some final German payment, in whatever form, and called by whatever name may be deemed suitable to save the German face.

Latvian Senate Confirms Max Reinhardt Divorce

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 30.—A legal battle many years old ended in the Latvian courts today when the senate confirmed the divorce action of Prof. Max Reinhardt, German impresario, against his wife, the noted German actress, Elsa Heim. Several Americans have filed divorce suits recently in Riga, taking advantage of the Latvian law granting a decree upon proof of a three year separation.

INDIANA TRUCK LAW TO BECOME EFFECTIVE TODAY

Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—[Special.]—Keeping location of their first testing places a secret, truck law enforcement agencies of the state highway commission and the state police tonight were prepared to begin enforcement of the law which will go into effect tomorrow regulating length, height, width and weight of motor trucks on Indiana roads. Six portable weighing machines will be used by the highway commission and state police.

All state police have been occupied with tape measures so they may take measurements.

The law, passed by the 1931 legislature, was to go into effect Jan. 1, 1932. However, enforcement was held up by injunction proceedings filed before Judge Ryan late last December.

VIENNA NAZIS SLUG DIPLOMATS AT SWANKY CLUB

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, June 30.—A sensational attack was made tonight on the International Country club, situated in a park on the outskirts of Vienna. A party was in progress in the club, to which most Vienna society leaders and members of the diplomatic corps belong, when fifty Nazis, armed with clubs and rubber truncheons, rushed in with wild shouts.

In a few moments they smashed chairs and tables and with chairs and table legs struck savagely at members and visitors, including the panic stricken women. During the attack forty Nazis mounted guard outside the clubhouse, destroying tables on the terraces.

Among the injured were the Rumanian minister, who was struck over the head with a stick, the Argentine minister and an Italian attache. An Italian visitor and his wife were so badly injured they had medical attention. Many members of the diplomatic corps were present at the party and it was first reported there were also two members of the American legation, which was later denied.

By the time police arrived a quarter of an hour later there were no signs of the assailants.

Berlin Students Battle in Street.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 30.—Howling "out with Jews," Hitlerite students staged a new battle at the University of Berlin which spread to Unter den Linden today, resulting in several minor casualties and compelling the rector to close the university.

The Hitlerites, who represent 60 per cent of the student body, issued an ultimatum that Jewish students must be excluded. They later modified the demand, declaring they would be content if Jews were prohibited from using the main vestibule where the students gather to discuss affairs. The rector refused.

The university senate tomorrow will decide whether the school shall remain closed for the remainder of the term, which would cause the loss of the term by all students.

Refuse to Suppress Press.

The Prussian government today refused Home Minister Baron Wilhelm von Gayl's request to prohibit publication for five days of the Koelnische Volks-Zeitung and Vorwaerts.

The centrist Volks-Zeitung had criticized Chancellor Franz von Papen's policies at Lausanne and the Social Democrat Vorwaerts had printed a cartoon showing Hitlerites in expensive uniforms while war cripples languished.

The Prussian home minister, Karl Severing, declared that he has no legal grounds for prohibiting these papers. The matter must go before the senate or supreme court for decision, he said.

Budget Balanced by Decree.

BERLIN, June 30.—(AP)—The 1932 national budget was made effective today by an emergency decree signed by President von Hindenburg. It balances at eight billion 173 marks[ about one billion 937 million dollars], which is one billion 200 million marks less than 1931 and three billion 700 million les sthan 1930.

To meet losses in revenue resulting from a diminished yield from taxation, the government has taken up a credit of 125 million marks [approximately $30,625,000] with a German group headed by the Reichsbank. The credit is repayable in instalments until the end of the current fiscal year.

21 IN BONUS ARMY ARE ILL; PHYSICIANS FEAR IT'S DYSENTERY

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—With one case of epidemic dysentery under treatment at Walter Reed hospital, Washington health officers began an investigation of the bonus expeditionary forces today, to determine if twenty other cases reported among the veterans are of the same type. In announcing that an inquiry was under way, Dr. William C. Fowler stated that dysentery in epidemic form is as "vicious as typhoid fever."

As district authorities looked into the health of the veterans, National Commander Walter W. Waters, armed his command with sticks instead of guns and put them through an hour of military drill. Waters declared later that eventually he will have 15,000 well drilled men in Washington. Five hundred M. P.'s, he said, will be appointed to maintain order and discipline.

JEALOUS TEACHER TRIES TO MURDER VIENNESE RECTOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, June 30. — Dr. Othenio Abel, newly elected rector of Vienna university, narrowly escaped death today when Prof. Carl Schneider fired a revolver at him as he was unveiling the tombstone of Prof. Wettstein, great Austrian botanist.

Karl Seitz, Socialist burgomaster of Vienna, probably saved the rector's life. He made a flying tackle of Schneider after the first shot went wide, bringing him to the ground and pinning his revolver hand downward until police arrived.

Schneider told the police that acedamic jealousy and "scientific misunderstandings" had driven him to attempt to murder the rector. He said that Dr. Abel and Prof. Wettstein, over whose grave the bullet was fired, had kept him from getting the chair at the university he had long coveted.

Lineup of Chilean Junta Undergoes Another Change

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 30.—Alberto Cabero, radical member of Carlos G. Davila's government junta, resigned today. He was replaced by Eliseo Peña Villalon, honorary president of the Radical Socialist party. It was also announced that Premier Juan Antonio Rios will present an amendment to the residence law by which communists will be treated as undesirables in Chile.

COURT TO RULE ON OWNERSHIP OF FAMOUS CHURCH

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—The question of just who controls St. Mark's in the Bouwerie, famous old church of Peter Stuyvesant, may be taken into the courts as a result of the action of the vestrymen at a meeting this week abolishing the body and soul clinic which has been conducted for a decade by Dr. Edward S. Cowles, psychiatrist.

Dr. Cowles announced today that he is in receipt of a formal letter from the vestry asking the discontinuance of the clinic. It is understood that the action of the vestry was taken in defiance of Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's, and that the original movement to abolish the clinic originated with Bishop William T. Manning.

Dr. Cowles announced today that the matter of control may be taken into the courts. According to Dr. Cowles the vestrymen have no right to abolish the clinic under canon law. The vestrymen voted six to two against the clinic.

25,000 ATTEND ARMY SHOW AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

Twenty-five thousand persons witnessed the military tournament in Soldiers' field last night, the largest crowd to attend the charity show to date. The section of 50 cent seats, opened early in the week, was packed. Polish nationals presented a program of gymnastics.

At noon today a company of infantry will parade through the loop and tonight Maj. Gen. Frank Parker will have as his guests notables attending the Democratic convention.

Belgian and Hungarian nationals will be part of tonight's program and Boy Scouts in uniform will be admitted for 25 cents. Proceedings at the convention will be announced during the show.

It's pretty hard to be around a Chesterfield and not want one. That tempting aroma tells you the truth. It says . . . "Here's a milder cigarette. Here's one that tastes better."

In fact, there isn't any way for a cigarette to be purer, milder or better tasting.

CURTIS PAINTED BOTH HERO AND HOAXER AT TRIAL

Differ as to His Motive in Lindbergh Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., June 30.—[Special.]—Two vividly contrasting pictures of John Hughes Curtis, the Norfolk shipbuilder, were drawn at the fourth day of his trial here on a blanket charge of obstructing justice in the Lindbergh kidnaping search.

JOHN H. CURTIS.

The man who is either a master hoaxer or a victim of a strange set of circumstances was limned first in one of his statements to the police in the rôle of an unfearing searcher for the stolen baby who took his life in his hands and sat with the two kidnap leaders, "John" and "Dynamite," in the backroom of a Newark house while they gloated over getting the $50,000 ransom money tossed over a cemetery wall by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's agent, Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon.

A few hours later the same man was introduced to the jury by his attorney, Lloyd Fisher, as so tired and brow beaten by the constant prodding of the New Jersey police that he went unresisting to the cellar of the Lindbergh home in Hopewell to sleep on a floor that had to be dried out with an electric sun lamp.

Read His Statements.

In between these pictures of Curtis as a hero and Curtis as a hoaxer were hours of testimony given to the reading of statements taken from Curtis between May 12 and May 18.

The state, as it drew toward the close of its case, continued endeavoring to prove that Curtis actually was in contact with the real kidnapers and that he could have pointed them out to the police but failed to do so.

Captain John J. Lamb of the state police, who was on the stand most of the day, did not help the prosecution very much on that point. The police officer joined with Colonel Lindbergh's recent testimony and before he stepped down swore flatly that he "did not believe that Curtis had been in contact with the kidnapers nor with their emissaries," Captain Lamb, however, said that he believed in Curtis until he made his hoax confession.

Believe He Knew Kidnapers.

"Nevertheless, it was learned from Joseph Lanigan, assistant attorney general, that the state would declare at the end of its case that it considered it had proved that Curtis was in contact with the actual kidnapers and had directly hampered the searchers for the baby by giving them false information at a critical time.

The prosecution has from the first refused to give the defense any information as to the specific charge against Curtis. The indictment was all-inclusive in its charges, but named no specific act on the part of the defendant. So far the defense apparently has been trying to prove the same thing that the state is basing its case upon—namely, that Curtis was really in contact with the kidnap gang.

The defense, however, has fought from the first day to convince the jury that it was the dumbness of the New Jersey police and not the negotiations of Curtis that permitted the kidnapers of Baby Lindbergh to escape.

Detective and Trooper Talk.

Detective Frank J. Carr of the Newark police force and Trooper Eugene Hussling of the state police testified regarding a "wild goose chase" to Newark with Curtis in which the Virginian endeavored unsuccessfully to point out the house in which he had sat with the kidnap gang the night "Dynamite," known also as "Din" Larsen, declared that he would like nothing more than "to kidnap Col. Lindbergh himself."

The high point in Capt. Lamb's reading of the records came when he was detailing Curtis' story of his conference with the kidnapers in a Newark house.

The date was the day after "Jafsie" had delivered the $50,000 to his "John" in the Bronx cemetery. Curtis had gone to make a final plea to his "John" to make terms for the return of the child. The meeting place was in a residence on a busy Newark street, but inside the atmosphere was tense with hidden dangers. The three—Curtis, John and Dynamite—sat about a table. Guarding the door was "Sam, the gas man."

"I'm the same 'John' who got the $50,000 from Jafsie," the Scandinavian told Curtis, "and Lindbergh will have to pay twice to get his baby. That has been our plan all along. We have already split the money and most of it went to Dynamite and me. There was a four way split of what was left for those who helped us."

Wanted to Kidnap Lindy.

"What are you going to do next?" asked Curtis, according to the police statement. Dynamite took the floor and replied, "I know what I'd like to do. I'd like to take the baby and sell it like a piece of merchandise. Yes, sell it to the highest bidder and there would be plenty of bids."

Here John interposed with objection and Curtis took his "life in his hands" and insisted that no such procedure be allowed. Dynamite grumbled and muttered threats.

"What I'd like best of all," he snarled at Curtis, "would be to kidnap Lindbergh himself."

Indicating that Curtis would take the stand and tell a story of police third degree methods in the Lindbergh home, Attorney Fisher questioned Capt. Lamb concerning the treatment of his client.

Despite the reiterated, "No, nothing like that was ever done," or the flat statement, 'That did not take place," Mr. Fisher succeeded in giving the jury and the spectators the impression that Curtis had not been handled exactly like a week-end guest in the Lindbergh home in Hopewell between May 12 and 18 when he made the hoax confession that he now repudiates.

LEAVES HUSBAND

RUTH CHATTERTON.

Hollywood, Cal., June 30.—[Special.]—When Ruth Chatterton left Hollywood for England a month ago, her departure represented her final parting from Ralph Forbes, her young English actor husband, according to word given out here today. Forbes was reported away from his local apartment on a fishing expedition, but friends of the pair said they were authorized to make the announcement as Forbes' and Miss Chatterton's spokesmen.

It was stated that the famous actor couple formally separated several months ago because of incompatibility. They were married in New York eight years ago, and separated here once before in 1929, but were reconciled. The family friends who announced the couple's separation said that Miss Chatterton probably would move for her divorce in this country upon returning from Europe.

ASK DISMISSAL OF ELECTRIC RATE CUT PLEA

The Public Service Company of Illinois yesterday asked the Illinois commerce commission to dismiss the petition of the Utility Consumers and Investors league seeking a 20 per cent reduction of the company's electric rates. After a series of clashes the hearing was continued until July 12.

Attorney David S. Taber, counsel for the utility, presented the motion on the ground that the league is not a consumer and customer of the company, that the league had forfeited its right to file a petition through criticism directed at the commission, and that the commission lacked jurisdiction.

Attorney Harry R. Booth, representing the league, asked a continuance so that he might confer with his clients. The league volunteered to discontinue its publicity campaign during the continuance.

IRISH FREE STATE DEFAULTS LAND DEBTS TO BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 30.—The Irish Free State is now definitely in default to Great Britain on land annuities. An installment of five million dollars due today was not paid.

J. H. Thomas, dominions secretary, announced the default in the house of commons and said that on Monday he would submit resolutions to deal with the situation.

Stanley Baldwin, acting premier, later indicated that special duties on imports from the Free State are planned as a collection measure. Ireland ships to England about 150 million dollars annually in live stock, butter, eggs, and bacon. The annuity payments were decreed to repay English landlords for land purchased for Irish tenants.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tells Friends of Suicide Plan, Then Kills Herself

Mrs. Victoria Japa, 49 years old, a midwife, shot and killed herself yesterday in her home at 1014 North Damen avenue. Neighbors told police that Mrs. Japa drew her will on June 2, and since then had informed the neighborhood of her intention to kill herself. An illness of 12 years caused her to take her life, police said. Mrs. Japa was the defendant on a charge of criminal abortion a year ago, but was exonerated.

TEACHERS DENY SCHOOLS CAUSE COSTS TO MOUNT

The increasing cost of the public schools is not brought about by the school systems but by conditions over which school authorities have no control, the American Federation of Teachers concluded in a resolution passed yesterday at the closing session of its convention at the Knickerbocker hotel.

The resolution pointed out that 39 per cent of the increased cost in the last sixteen years was caused by rising price levels alone, and that extraneous activities, such as the education of crippled and feeble minded, hiring of school nurses and serving of lunches have increased expenditures. Public demand for more secondary education, resulting in an increase of attendance at Chicago high schools of 263 per cent in 16 years, as opposed to an increase of 63 per cent in primary school attendance, also was blamed for increased costs.

The federation also went on record as opposed to the imposition of loyalty pledges on students and graduates, and to the revision of curricula to eliminate all but the fundamentals.

DROP WAUKEGAN CHARGES AGAINST AUDITOR NELSON

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county yesterday announced the dismissal of the last of the charges against State Auditor Oscar Nelson. Nelson was named in a conspiracy indictment with four officials of the closed Waukegan State bank and with misfeasance in another indictment which resulted in a directed verdict of not guilty after two weeks of trial.

Prosecutor Smith was forced to choose between dismissing the conspiracy charge against Nelson or being unable to use evidence which he considers important against the four bankers.

This situation developed during the trial of William H. Miller, former vice president of the bank, who is being tried separately at Waukegan before Judge Edward D. Shurtleff, who directed a jury to find Nelson not guilty. Other defendants are Norman O. Geyer, George Woodruff and John Murray Connors.

DIES IN PULLMAN BERTH.

1,100 WEST PARK EMPLOYES, NOW UNPAID, GET CUT

Employés of the west park system, numbering approximately 1,100, who have had only one payday in 11 months, were given an added jolt yesterday. At a meeting of the board of commissioners it was decided that all salaries would be cut 10 per cent, effective today. It was decided not to discharge any employés, however.

According to Secretary Robert J. Daly, a saving of approximately $20,000 a month will be made through the action taken. He said that the monthly payroll was around $200,000.

"The members of the board felt a cut in salaries was a better move than the discharge of any employés," Mr. Daly said.

JAPAN SEIZES CHINA CUSTOMS ON RUSS BORDER

Takes Over Chief Entry of Soviet Goods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 1.—[Friday.]—Japanese military police, acting in behalf of the Manchoukuo government, seized the Chinese customs office at Manchouli at the western end of the Chinese Eastern railway on the soviet Russian border today, according to a telegram received by Sir Frederick Maze, inspector general of Chinese customs, from E. T. Schjoth, Manchouli customs agent.

Schjoth, a Norwegian employé of Chinese customs, was forcibly prevented from telegraphing to Harbin and therefore he sent word to Shanghai by way of soviet telegraph agencies, he said.

He advised that the customs house was surrounded and all the documents seized, making it necessary to evacuate the staff immediately.

Japs Impinge on Russia.

Japanese seizure of the Manchouli customs brings the Japanese military for the first time face to face with the armed forces of soviet Russia, which maintains a large Siberian garrison at Chita and other points adjacent to the border. These garrisons have been greatly increased recently due to the Japanese invasion of north Manchuria.

Manchouli is the chief entry point for soviet goods to China. In the past week the Japanese sent a large force to Manchouli and announced a final drive against Gen. Ma Chan-shan, Chinese official.

Yesterday K. E. Prettejohn, British customs commissioner at Harbin, wired Shanghai that Japanese military police, assisted by Manchoukuo troops, had invaded the Harbin customs office, placed guns against the heads of the Chinese staff and compelled them to sign a pledge of loyalty to Manchoukuo.

Postal Blockade Ordered.

The Japanese seizure of the Manchurian postal service today caused the Chinese government to order a postal blockade of Manchuria, necessitating the routing of mail from China to Europe via India.

The Japanese occupation of the western branch of the Chinese Eastern railway and their advance to the soviet border has caused extreme nervousness at Harbin, where several thousand soviet citizens reside. They are cut off from returning to their homeland.

The Japanese are rapidly strengthening their forces at Harbin and have more than eighty bombers capable of flying far into soviet territory. A Chinese report claims that the Japanese attempt to surround Gen. Ma failed and that a considerable part of his force escaped into the Sunhun river area north of Harbin.

U. S. Questions Customs Seizure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.] — The United States today, through Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Japan, expressed concern to the Japanese government over the action of the Manchurian government in seizing the customs at Dairen. According to information made available at the state department, Ambassador Grew asked about the truth of reports that the present régime in Manchuria had taken over all the customs, adding that reports to that effect had been received with a good deal of concern at Washington.

It was learned also that the diplomatic representatives of the British and French governments had visited the Japanese foreign office on similar missions. Both the British and American representatives advised the Japanese foreign minister that they were greatly interested in keeping the customs at Dairen intact and that any meddling with the customs would complicate matters.

China Seeks Soviet Pact.

MOSCOW, June 30.—(AP)—The Nanking government has proposed a non-aggression pact with the soviet government and renewal of diplomatic relations, it was officially announced today. A perfunctory official announcement said Wang Tseng-sze, head of the special Chinese mission to Moscow, had made the proposal yesterday after an interview with officials of the commissariat of foreign affairs.

Naval Airship Los Angeles Decommissioned by U. S.

Lakehurst, N. J., June 30.—(AP)—The Los Angeles, once proud training ship of countless flyers of the navy, will tonight rest in its old berth in the hangar, shorn of its engines, precious helium gas, even its name. Capt. Harry E. Shoemaker, commandant of the naval training station, read the orders today decommissioning the huge ship because of old age and economy. The Los Angeles first came to Lakehurst in October, 1924, when Dr. Hugo Eckener delivered her after a 74 hour trip from Friedrichshafen.

RENOMINATED

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE.

Fargo, N. D., June 30.—[Special.]—Returns from 1,636 of the 2,235 precincts in North Dakota indicated that Senator Gerald P. Nye had been renominated by the Republicans in yesterday's primary.

The Nye lead showed that he was running 50,266 votes ahead of George F. Shafer. The senator had 100,005 votes. He was the candidate of the Non-Partisan league and his opponents had branded themselves "real Republicans."

As the returns came in the rest of the Non-Partisan league candidates piled up leads over their opposition.

U. OF C. ELOPER TRIES TO STEAL GAS; ARRESTED

The secret marriage of Herman Schulberger, 18 year old University of Chicago freshman, came to grief early yesterday when he was arrested in an attempt to steal gasoline for the automobile, also stolen, which he had used in an elopement to Crown Point on Wednesday.

His bride was Helen Loranger, 17 years old, 7508 Colfax avenue, a Hyde Park high school student. Her brother, Norman, 16 years old, was arrested with Schulberger in an attempt to siphon gasoline from another automobile, but was unaware of the elopement until Schulberger confessed it.

Both boys were arraigned on charges of larceny before Municipal Judge John J. Lupe, who granted them a continuance to July 7. The boys, unable to post bond, went back to police cells, but not until Mrs. Loranger had informed Schulberger that she would have her daughter's marriage annuled at once. Schulberger lives at 7944 Oglesby avenue.

RULES JOBLESS MEN ON PAROLE MAY BE JAILED

What to do about hundreds of paroled convicts now unemployed was a problem confronting Rodney H. Brandon, state director of public welfare, yesterday. He had sought an opinion from Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom regarding the state's liability for dental services to a convict out on parole and Carlstrom's opinion was that a paroled prisoner thrown out of work by the depression should be returned to prison.

Theoretically a person on parole is a ward of the state, Carlstrom declared, but the state is not obligated to pay his bills outside.

Official opinions differed on the fairness and justice of returning a man to a penal institution because of a misfortune. The parole office was unable to give the exact number of men and women who would be affected by Carlstrom's opinion, which, however, was held to be not mandatory but merely advisory.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS SUSPENDS ALL TRADE FOR WEEK

Seeks Restoration of Confidence of Residents.

The city commissioners and business men of Chicago Heights yesterday declared a business moratorium, to extend until Wednesday, as a means of restoring business confidence in the community.

The action was taken following the closing of the First National Bank and Trust company at Chicago Heights. A sign was posted yesterday on the door of the bank building at Halsted and 17th streets in the suburb, that the directors had directed that the bank be "closed for liquidation." No statement was made as to whether the liquidation is to be accomplished immediately or whether the depositors will be paid in full.

Mayor Calls City's Leaders.

The bank had deposits of $2,427,616, capital of $200,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $255,322 at the time of closing. It was taken in charge by A. P. Leyburn, chief bank examiner of the Chicago federal reserve district.

As soon as the closing of the bank became known, Mayor Daniel P. Bergin called a meeting of the city commissioners, which leading business men and officials of the Citizens National bank, the only bank remaining open in Chicago Heights, also were invited to attend.

It was agreed that all business houses except groceries, pharmacies, and similar stores which must remain open for public convenience, will close from today until Wednesday. Public tilities and the local newspaper will be operated. The Citizens National bank will be closed for the period.

Seek Aid of Depositors.

During the moratorium, a citizens' committee will circulate copies of an agreement among depositors in the town's remaining bank, requesting that they agree not to withdraw more than 10 per cent of their deposits within the next 30 days.

The business moratorium was first tried some months ago in Urbana, Ill., following the closing of several banks in that community and the nearby city of Champaign. It was successful in restoring confidence in the banks which remained open, and has been tried since in several other Illinois cities.

CHARGES TAXES TAKE PROFIT OUT OF REAL ESTATE

The axiom that great fortunes may be built upon the ownership of real estate was denied by Charles Ascher, of the public administration clearing house, yesterday at a meeting of the West Central association in the exhibition of modern architecture at the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store, State and Van Buren streets.

In describing housing improvements for property controlled by members of the association, Mr. Ascher said that New York city real estate increases in value about 4 per cent a year, while in recent years the assessed values have been jumped from 8 to 11 per cent annually for taxing purposes. He said the great fortunes built on New York city real estate would be much greater today if the original investment had been in a savings bank.

Mr. Ascher also declared that a tendency away from population centers has started and will probably reach its full effect about 1965 or 1970, when the population of the nation is expected to become constant.

BAIN DIRECTOR SAYS HE BOUGHT STOCK TO GET JOB

Show Building Bonded Beyond Value.

Otto K. Jelinek, 5341 South California avenue, testified yesterday at the Bain trial that he became a director of two of the Bain banks by request.

His testimony was given in explanation of his indebtedness to some of the twelve closed Bain banks, as part of the state's plan to show that South Park Commissioner John Bain, his two sons, John H. and Robert A., and W. Merle Fisher, a son-in-law of Commissioner Bain, were in a conspiracy to defraud the public through the operation of the banks.

Buys Stock; Gets Job.

"In 1929 John Bain asked me if I would like to become a director of the Gage Park State bank," Jelinek testified. "I said I would and he told me I would have to buy twenty shares of the Gage bank stock. I consented and gave him $500 in cash and signed a note for $4,100 for the remainder, which was to be deducted from my salary. When the Gage Park bank was taken over by the Chicago Lawn bank my shares were traded and I became a director of the Chicago Lawn.

"In January, 1930, I was notified by letter that I was a director of the Ridge State bank and I was asked to purchase ten shares of its stock. I did so by turning over Lewa company stock as collateral."

Bonds Exceed Appraisal.

L. K. Boyson, manager of the real estate loan department of the First Union Trust and Savings bank, testified that in November, 1928, John Bain consulted him about floating a bond issue of $375,000 on property at 79th street and Evans avenue, known as Normandy Hall. He had it appraised and the value was given as $327,000, whereupon he said he would limit the bond issue to $200,000. Bain later sold bonds amounting to $375,000 on this property, according to Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber.

The rest of the hearing yesterday before Judge John M. O'Connor consisted of testimony of debtors to the various banks. This sort of testimony will continue for several days, it was said, in an effort to show the insolvency of all the banks in which there were deposits of $13,000,000.

Senate Passes Bill Cutting Interest on Veteran Loan

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—The senate today passed and sent to the house a bill reducing from 4½ to 3 per cent the rate of interest on loans to veterans on world war adjusted service certificates. The bill also provides that loans may be made immediately after issuance of the certificate instead of waiting two years as now provided.

RAISE INTEREST RATE ON SCHOOL TAX WARRANTS

The interest rate on 1931 tax anticipation warrants for school purposes goes back to 6 per cent today but none will be issued in lieu of teachers' salaries, board of education officials announced. Neither will warrants be given to contractors. Legal difficulties are the detaining factors.

The issuance of 1931 warrants bearing 6 per cent was halted by state law on May 1. By an emergency measure, however, the special session of the legislature provided that the 6 per cent warrants could be issued after July 1.

Lewis E. Myers, president of the school board, yesterday ordered Harry Brackett, school auditor, not to issue warrants to contractors in payment of 1931 bills until the entire matter has been taken up at the board meeting next Wednesday. More than 100 contractors have filed applications for warrants.

Senate bill 152, which was passed at the special session, is the stumbling block. The measure provided that checks marked "not sufficient funds," issued for salary by the school board, could be used in payment of taxes. Chapman and Cutler, security experts, said that such a procedure would throw a cloud on the value of the warrants.

ST. PAUL YOUTH KIDNAPED; NAME $35,000 RANSOM

Victim Is 20 Year Old Son of G. C. Bohn.

St. Paul, Minn., June 30.—[Special.]—With Haskell Bohn, 20 year old son of the president of Bohn Refrigerator company of St. Paul, in the hands of kidnapers, and the sum of $35,000 placed on his life, police late today were studying the handwriting of the ransom note in the belief that the plot was the work of a gang that features such crimes.

Bohn was forced to get into the kidnap car at 9 a. m. today when two men overcame him and the Bohn chauffeur, D. E. Meyers, in the family garage behind the fashionable Summit avenue home. The ransom note was shoved into the chauffeur's hands after the pair had forced Bohn into their machine.

It warned that "if you want to see your boy alive do not notify authorities. You know what happened in the Lindbergh case."

G. C. Bohn, father of the victim, immediately notified Twin City police. No warning had preceded the kidnaping, he said, adding that he was certain his son was not involved in "anything which would precipitate this trouble." He said he was willing to pay the ransom.

The Bohn kidnaping is the third in St. Paul in less than a year. St. Paul police are pressing the search for the kidnapers upon the rather meager descriptions given by the Bohn chauffeur. A full description of Bohn was broadcast shortly after his disappearance.

JURY JUSTIFIES POLICE SLAYING OF GARY CARSON

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide at an inquest into the death of Gary [Popeye] Carson, 30 years old, who was shot to death by police Wednesday night in front of 1237 North La Salle street. Policemen Harry Miller and John Walsh shot Carson when he attempted to draw a gun. After the shooting the policemen seized Robert Savio, 33 years old, 911 North State street; Ernest Niesch, 35, of the La Salle street address, and Miss Mildred Flannigan, 25, also of 911 North State street.

The men are said to be ex-convicts. Shortly before the inquest three hold-up victims identified Carson as the man who had robbed them recently. The victims will also view Savio and Niesch, both of whom are held at the Hudson avenue police station.

2 SLAIN AS SPIES, TWO JAILED FOR LIFE BY BOLIVIA

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 30.—Two soldiers of the Bolivian army were put to death on June 14 and two others were imprisoned for life as Paraguayan spies, it was revealed today.

The four youths were convicted of having plotted to murder their officers and deliver Fort Saavedra, an important post in the disputed Chaco region, over to Paraguayan attackers on Sunday, Feb. 7, of this year.

Although there is some question as to their nationality, they registered as Bolivian citizens when the 1932 class of conscripts was drafted and went with the company to which they were assigned to Fort Saavedra.

SANDINO OFFERS PEACE IF U. S. MARINES DEPART

MEXICO CITY, June 30.—(AP)—Gen. Augusto Sandino will disband his army and cease his insurgent efforts against the present Nicaraguan government if peace negotiations now under way terminate satisfactorily and the United States withdraws its marines, Dr. Pedro José Zepeda, his foreign representative here, said today.

"Success of the proposed peace parley, if it develops, will depend on the attitude of the United States about withdrawal of the marines," Zepeda said. "It is absolutely essential that the marines leave Nicaragua, and until they do we will continue to fight."

KLEAGLE CLARKE IS RETURNED FOR NEW SANITY TEST

Edward Young Clarke, former Ku Klux Klan kleagle and the organizer of "Esskaye, Inc.," was sent back to the psychopathic hospital for another week's observation yesterday after a hearing before Judge J. G. Van Keuren in the Psychopathic court. Dr. James Whitney Hall, who sat with Dr. H. I. Davis as advisers to the court, expressed suspicion that there might be some psychoses present in Clarke's case. The hearing was continued until Thursday. Dr. Francis Gerty and other members of the hospital staff stated that their observations had convinced them that Clarke is sane.

ALL PULLMAN WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN MEXICO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 30.—Conductors and other employes of the Pullman company in Mexico went on strike today. All Pullman cars were allowed to continue to the end of their routes so as not to inconvenience passengers.

When questioned today, strikers were unable to give reasons for striking. A half hour after the walkout was declared the promoters of the strike were called to the office of Abelardo Rodriguez, minister of industry, commerce and labor. The cause of the call was not stated, but since the minister has already pronounced against strikes at a time when Mexico is fighting a crisis, it is believed he tried to effect a settlement.

It was said today that the Pullman strike is illegal, since the Pullman union has not complied with requirements imposed for declaring a strike.

ANOTHER CITIZEN GOES WET BUT NOT INTENTIONALLY

Robert Couger of Mondovi, Wis. (pop. 1,554), had always wanted to see the world. He started a boat trip to southern waters early yesterday in Joliet, but a few hours later his enthusiasm for travel well dampened, he bought a ticket back to Mondovi.

Couger, who is 23 years old, lost his job in Chicago recently. Before sunup yesterday he tramped into Joliet. His wire haired terrier romped before him and on his back was a pack in which he had rolled up some pots and pans, his extra clothes and $50, half of his capital. He found an unguarded rowboat moored in the Des Plaines river, stowed his dog and baggage aboard and embarked for New Orleans.

A hundred yards down the stream he was swept over what appeared to be Ningara falls, he told police later. The police assured him that it was only the Jackson street dam. He lost the boat, his baggage and the $50. His dog swam ashore and deserted him.

Couger, conscience stricken, went to the police station and confessed. The owner of the boat collected $20 of his remaining $50. Police Magistrate John J. Nichols fined him $7.50 more for stealing it. He took what was left and started for Mondovi.

Police Are Exonerated of Shooting a Prisoner

Four Grand Crossing policemen who shot Albert H. Blair, 23 years old, a Negro prisoner, when he attempted to escape from the station lockup, were exonerated of charges of wanton brutality yesterday after an investigation by Assistant State's Attorney William R. Crow. They are Patrick Blanchfield, Daniel Regan, I. A. Maynard, and N. E. Nottingham. Blair, a student at the Lewis Institute, was arrested on the charge that he had annoyed a colored girl. He is in a serious condition at the Bridewell hospital.

7 KILLED, 5 HURT WHEN 2 ELECTRIC TRAINS COLLIDE

Hamilton, O., June 30.—[Special.]—Seven persons were killed and five seriously injured at 7 a. m. today when a north bound Cincinnati and Lake Erie passenger traction car collided head-on with a two car south bound electric freight train at the Elk Creek curve two miles north of Trenton.

Buried in Wreckage.

The speed at which both cars were traveling caused the first freight car to plow through half of the passenger coach, burying ten men and two women in the wreckage.

Tonight Dr. Edward Cook, Butler county coroner, assisted by the investigators for the Ohio public utilities commission, continued his search for a slip of paper, evidence that Joseph Brosey, Hamilton operator of the passenger car, failed to follow instructions directing him to wait at Trenton until the freight cars passed.

Here's First of Dead.

The dead are Joe Brosey, operator of the ill-fated car; arl E. Retz, Hamilton; Jack Augspurger of Trenton, and his son, Walter; Russell Wilson, Hamilton, and his wife, Mrs. Ruth Wilson, and Ann Louise Raymond, Trenton.

Those seriously injured are Roy Bowman, Miamisburg, motorman on the freight; E. G. Lewis, trainman; John Lothes, Hamilton; Duke Herr, Hamilton, and Harry Schenk, Miamisburg. All of the injured are in the Middletown City hospital.

Officials of the traction company released a statement to the effect that although full details have not yet been ascertained, it would appear that the operator of the northbound car failed to observe orders to meet the southbound freight at Trenton.

MUSEUM OPEN MONDAY.

The Field Museum of Natural History will remain open all day Monday, July 4, during the usual hours, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., in order to accommodate holiday visitors, it was announced yesterday by Director Stephen C. Simms.

MEN FRIENDS OF NURSE SUING HUTTON NAMED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 30.—[Special.]—Other "boy friends" existed in the life of Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, the nurse who is suing the Rev. Aimee McPherson-Hutton's husband for $200,000 damages, according to testimony of witnesses for the defense in Superior court today.

The boy friends whose ardor became a matter of court record to the intense satisfaction of David Hutton Jr., the defendant, were George Ayube, Armenian rug salesman; Lloyd Curry, Pasadena telegraph operator; Edgar Eben, slight and goateed, pipe organ player.

Levi Tells on Roommate.

Ayube brought Miss St. Pierre to his bungalow home one night, according to Joss Levi, who was described as a "door to door salesman." Levi was Ayube's roommate.

"They thought I was asleep, but I wasn't," Levi testified. "George closed the door to my sleeping room. Later, I heard whispers in the dark and I watched them."

"How did you watch," Lorrin Andrews, counsel for Miss St. Pierre, asked, "if your door was closed, and it was dark?"

"Well, the door must have blown open a little. In the morning Miss St. Pierre was gone."

"Were you promised money for this?"

"O, my, no," Levi replied.

Reluctant Defense Witness.

Attorney Andrews later drew the admission that Levi recently had been "desperately broke." The tryst with Ayube took place in June, 1931, Levi said.

Curry was a highly reluctant defense witness. He met Miss St. Pierre last May, and the testimony which Hutton's lawyers finally drew from him was that he had hugged and kissed the comely brunette plaintiff in her Hollywood bungalow after she had invited him over and cooked him a fine dinner.

Kissing with Curry.

A point was made of this testimony that the kissing with Curry occurred during the time that Miss St. Pierre had pictured herself as heart broken and pining away because Hutton broke his asserted engagement to marry her and wed Mrs. McPherson instead.

Eben was a frequent visitor to Miss St. Pierre's bungalow, neighbors of the pretty nurse declared. Eben's own story of "salt glow" rubs and professional nursing ministrations which Miss St. Pierre gave him were left untold, as the organist himself, although subpoenaed, was not placed on the stand by Hutton.

SUFFERS FROM CHILL

ALBERT EDWARD, PRINCE OF WALES.

GUNMEN LOOT CROWN POINT BANK OF $2,000

Four gunmen yesterday took $2,000 from the First National bank of Crown Point, Ind., which is across the street from the courthouse and two blocks from the county jail. The bandits forced five employés and seven customers behind the cages and tied them with rope. After scooping the money from the cages the gang escaped in an automobile in which a fifth man waited at the curb.

Three inhabitants of Crown Point sat on a bench in front of the bank during the robbery and were not alarmed. They told police that they noticed nothing unusual in the exit of the robbers and were unaware of the holdup until one of the employés wriggled free and gave the alarm. Bank officials said the bandits overlooked the vault, which was unlocked and held a much larger sum than was taken.

ACCUSES FOX OF FORCING BROTHER TO SANITARIUM

Sister-in-Law of Film Man Makes Charge.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—A charge that William Fox of motion picture fame had in some manner, not made clear, but lacking in legal formality, maneuvered his brother, Aaron, into a sanitarium in Hartford, Conn., to prevent his testifying in any investigation of the Fox affairs, was made today before Supreme Court Justice Walsh by the wife of Aaron.

Mrs. Fox sought and obtained her own appointment as legal guardian for her two children, William Fox II., 6 years old, and Anne Carol Fox, 4 years old, who live with her at 210 West 70th street.

In her petition she sought this appointment in order that she might enter suit in behalf of the children for $250,000 against William Fox. She alleges the $250,000 is due Aaron, and that without it she and the children are "forced to a point where they have no choice between starvation and becoming public charges."

In the petition it is alleged that Aaron's removal to the sanitarium, the Hartford retreat, was forcible and was arranged by William Fox.

She asserts that no formal commitment was obtained and that no other legal formalities were complied with. Efforts on her part to see her husband have, she charges, been balked by the superintendent of the institution.

Hit by Another Suit.

William Fox became further embroiled in litigation today when a suit involving an amount estimated variously at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 was filed in the Supreme court at Mineola, Long Island, by the Fox Film corporation against him as former president and director of the corporation; Jack G. Leo, a former vice president, and the brokerage firm of M. J. Meehan & Co., including Mr. Meehan.

The plaintiffs seek to have set aside "certain alleged fraudulent agreements between the corporation and Mr. Fox," and ask the assignment to the corporation of certain patent rights and stock which it alleges Mr. Fox wrongfully withholds, and seeks an accounting and payment of $500,000 paid to Leo through the alleged agency of Fox.

The papers explain that the filing of the suit was delayed because only "recently, owing to certain suspicious facts and circumstances, an investigation was instituted of the activities of the defendant Fox, during his control over the plaintiff corporation, which investigation is still in progress.

"Fox," it is alleged, "concealed or attempted to conceal his fraudulent acts by misleading entries in the records of the Fox Film corporation and the Fox Theaters corporation."

The plaintiff also wants set aside an agreement by which Fox was to receive an annual salary of $500,000 for a five year period. The suit filed today follows one for $5,000,000 filed in Mineola on June 21.

Aviation Notes

The Boeing division of United Air lines, between Chicago and San Francisco, was five years old yesterday. In that period 15 million miles have been flown, 4,278 tons of mail carried, and thousands of passengers and pounds of express transported.

American Airways' passenger traffic increased 104 per cent in the first five months of this year, over the same period last year, and express volume increased 920 per cent in May over May of the previous year, L. H. Manning, vice president of the Cord corporation and a director of the airways, points out as evidence of the rapid growth of air transport.

A Ford tri-motor plane operated on the Ford freight lines between Dearborn, Chicago, Cleveland, and Buffalo, has flown 400,000 miles since it was placed in service, Dec. 14, 1926, and carried 5 million pounds of freight. The plane has outlasted two sets of motors.

JURY LOCKED UP IN ELECTRICAL FRAUDS TRIAL

The case of Harry A. Johnson, electrical contractor, and four former city employés, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city of $200,000 in the installation of street lights, was given to a jury in Judge John Prystalski's court late yesterday. Six hours later the jurymen were reported deadlocked and were locked up for the night.

Besides Johnson, who is president of the Electrical Contracting company, the defendants are John Muerling, former engineer in the city electrical department; Eugene A. Quinn, former city inspector; Frank Wargoske, former stockkeeper for the department, and Joseph Duffy, former custodian. They all were appointees of a former administration and their alleged criminal acts were discovered when the Cermak administration took office.

It was testified that the five men, in the installation of a 1,000,000 lighting extension, used city materials without paying for them and that they also skimped on the job. The case has been on trial for two weeks. J. Fred Reese was attorney for the defendants and the prosecutors were Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury and Charles Mueller.

EVER FRY EGG ON A STONE? HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE

Many Other Ideas Given for Picnics.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

There ought to be a law against premeditated picnics—especially against picnicking with pots of escalloped potatoes, pans of meat loaf and freezers of ice cream.

If such domestic anachronisms were sternly barred from all woodsy dells, bushy glades and back forties, city weary folks might commune with nature and mosquitoes in comfortable oblivion of civilization.

For why a picnic at all if we insist on transporting the electric grill, hampers of pots and pans and the fruits of a whole morning's labors? Better to have stayed at home and avoided the bites.

At least such is the slant on things taken by the 1932 picnic-wise as the 4th of July outing season gets under way. And as a result, a wide and tempting array of cooked-in-the-woods menus and special inspirations are turning up to lure the hungry into a world of wood smoke, sputtering steak and "roasting ears," where the whole family cooks its own and mother gets a vacation.

Fry Egg on Stone.

From Miss Mary Ponzi, recreation specialist of the Massachusetts State college, comes this suggestion for a frying-panless egg fry as a good start on equipment saving picnics.

Select a flat stone not more than three inches thick and about 10 inches in diameter. Build a fire over this and when it has burned for some time, hook out the stone, brush off well with a branch and place bacon around the edges. Fat from the bacon will soon sizzle its way over the stone, which is a signal for a general breaking of eggs to be plopped into the center of the ring. While the eggs are frying and the bacon crisping, toast bread slices on long green willow wands. The product—such a toasted egg and bacon sandwich as never came out of any domesticated kitchen!

Cooking Steaks.

Or if you've had your egg a day, use your improvised frying pan for cooking steaks or frying hamburg patties. Pats may be bought with onions already atop. Sandwiches made on the spot or brought from home may be toasted on the same stone.

If stoneless, broil your dinner on green sticks. Frankfurters wrapped in bacon and broiled make excellent "pigs in blankets." Or try wrapping a thin slice of bacon around a one and one-half inch cube of cheese, completely covering it. Broil on sticks until the bacon is crisp.

Mixed grill is the next temptation. Have your butcher cut steak in three inch squares and throw in half a dozen slices of bacon. At the grocer's pick up several large white onions, several firm red tomatoes and day old sliced bread. A good strong green stick or a long piece of heavy wire from home will do for the skewer. When the fire has burned down to a bed of coals, string your grill—a square of steak, one of onion, one of bacon and a thick slice of tomato with skin left on. Alternate in this style till the skewer is full. Two people may turn the grill over the coals or it may be rested on stones with frequent turnings. When the meat is tender, slip off a quarter of bacon, steak, onion and tomato into each picnicker's gaping sandwich of toasted bread.

You Can Make Biscuits, Too.

"Roastin' ears," sweet potatoes or Irish ones bake unattended in the coals of an early prepared fire while the family goes scouting. Wrap in layers of wet paper or in wet clay. Leave the husks on the corn and tie the ends of each ear well together.

Biscuits baked over an open fire stand top notch in our affections. Before leaving home, dump a cup of flour, a big pinch of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder into a bag. Pick up half a pound of butter en route. When the fire is well started, work butter the size of a small egg into the flour mixture and stir in enough water to form a stiff dough. Roll into strips about the size of one's little finger and twist about a stick. Bake over glowing coals.

SHOPPING VS. COOKING FOR PICNICS

Why spend wearying hours preparing foods for a picnic when a combination of ready or readily prepared foods can be obtained by asking a clerk, is the question here propounded by Jean Guthrie, Tribune foods writer. M. J. Kramer, clerk, slices off some boiled ham to go with the bread and butter, preserves, pickles, potato salad, coffee, cake, and fruit. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HOW HUSBANDS DO LIKE DESSERT COLD IN SUMMER!

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

The girls were at it again. This time the conversation wasn't over a bridge table nor, stranger yet, over the tea cups. It was a warm sunshiny day and every one was lying in the sand at the beach, spines exposed and pretending they were getting a coat of tan instead of burning to a lobster hue, as most of them were.

Talk had been ranging from psychology to Ginna's newest flame, and even included a word or two about my food stories, when Gladys broke out with something between a sob, gasp, sigh, and chortle of disgust. We all knew it must be John again, but asked her what the matter was, just to be polite.

It's Another Long Story.

"It's another long story about what husbands do and don't like in the way of food," began Gladys. "You might as well all profit by my experiences. Our picnic lunch today reminded me of it. I've always heard from mother that no matter how hot the day is a man wants a hot meal at night and needs it to give him energy lost while working in the heat. I knew John had been lunching the last week on salads, sandwiches, and other cold plates and thought he would like something sustaining for a change.

"Last night we had iced tomato juice, asparagus salad, veal, mashed potatoes, buttered beets, celery, black olives, hot tea biscuits, and coffee, all of which apparently was relished. Then John settled back in his chair, told the baby to take her thumb out of her mouth, and roared at me, "Bring on the dessert!" which is his cute little way of telling me that everything was "O. K." and that he is looking forward to some more "O. K." food.

"By this time the room had grown a little warmer and little beads of perspiration were standing [I noticed particularly] on John's forehead. I walked into the kitchen then and as John says, 'brought on the dessert.'

John Calls for Big Dish.

"He first sniffed suspiciously, then as I set my lovely steaming pudding down and looked up innocently, he commented dryly, 'Well, let's have a big dish of it before it gets cold. Perhaps you'd better heat the sauce for it, too, it might chill it.'

"Black clouds gathered over my head. Everything was silent as the grave until the baby hammered with her spoon and cried, 'Mamma, I don't want none, none, none of dat!' 'And you won't get any,' I shouted, gone quite insane at last. 'Your father won't get any; I just made it to look at.' Through my daze, I heard Jim slam the door a few moments later and I haven't seen him since."

This dramatic denouement stirred us all into horrified expressions and exclamations of sympathy. "'John'll be back, of course," spoke up Doris. "But haven't you any recipes for cold desserts? The hot dinner was all right, but no one could stand anything like a hot pudding after it."

Delectable for Summer.

For the benefit of Gladys, and perhaps a few others who might be interested, here are a few delightful summer desserts, all to be made in your refrigerator. Besides ice cream, you can freeze mousses, parfaits, or almost anything in those trays.

PEACH FREEZE.

1 cup peach pulp
1 tsp. lemon juice
Few grains of salt
1 cup whipping cream
1 tsp. gelatine
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp. almond extract

Chill your mixture of peach pulp, sugar, salt, almond extract and gelatin [first soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water]. Whip cream and combine with first mixture. Finish freezing in refrigerator. Do not stir.

PEANUT PARFAIT.

¼ tsp. vanilla
¼ lb. peanut brittle
Pinch of salt.

Crush peanut brittle with rolling pin, add sugar, vanilla, and about one-fourth a cup of the cream. Whip rest of cream and add mixture to it. Freeze, stirring once when half frozen.

FROZEN PRUNE WHIP.

1 cup prune pulp [cooked]
2 tbs. lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup sugar
2 egg whites
½ cup chopped meats

Add lemon juice, salt and sugar to prune pulp. Fold in beaten egg whites, whipped cream and nut meats. Freeze. Do not stir.

PREDICT LARGER CANTALOUPE CROP THIS YEAR

More cantaloupes than were produced in 1931 apparently will be grown in most of the various melon producing areas this year, according to a recent survey of acreage and crop prospects. The early states, from which the melons now are arriving for consumption in Chicago and in other market centers, did not plant acreage as great as last year, but commercial growers in the intermediate and late sections expect to harvest more than usual.

Hams and Bacon Priced Low; Lamb, Veal Follow

The committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago says: "Smoked meats, including hams, picnics, and bacon are recommended as unusually economical meat buys in Chicago retail meat stores over the coming week-end. Leg of lamb and shoulder roast of veal represent outstanding bargains in fresh cuts at the present time."

CHERRY SEASON HERE AND PRICE IS REASONABLE

Many Other Fruits Are Entering Market.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

It's cherry season again, thanks to thousands of pickers and thousands of trees in fruit producing areas adjacent to Chicago. And for fear they might be considered a luxury, one needs only to determine the price per quart or for a crate of 16 quarts to determine that the early and so-called "sour" cherries are low in price.

By the crate one can find the bright colored fruit for sale in stores at from $1.25 to $1.50, and from these crates one can buy a quart for 10 cents, or enough for a juicy pie or some sauce. This week-end brings practically the height of the season for picking and shipping the fresh fruit from southwestern Michigan.

Larger Fruit Later.

In two weeks or less some of the larger and darker Montmorency cherries, having a greater sugar content, will be on the market from the Traverse City, Mich., and Door county, Wisconsin, orchards. Chicago can expect to receive more than a 100 carloads of this fresh fruit before the cherry picking is finished.

For the next three weeks or more the markets and stores in the lake region will be offering attractive boxes of red and black raspberries at prices conducive to buying for canning as well as for eating fresh.

Michigan growers have announced that of the many states which supply peaches, their crop is the only one with fairly good prospects for a good yield of any of the north central states. Peaches are beginning to arrive from Georgia and other southern states, but plentiful supplies are not expected for another month.

Pineapple Season Over.

The close of the pineapple season is at hand. But many of the other popular summer fruits are showing up on the market, including pears and plums, fresh figs, limes and carloads of lemons, the new crop of California grapefruit, cantaloupes, and the first early summer cooking apples.

Watermelons cost little more than the freight from Texas or Florida. Some of the common vegetables, home grown and otherwise, also are comparatively cheap. Turnips, the white acorn and the yellow crook neck squash, radishes, green onions, cucumbers, peppers, peas, asparagus, beans, lettuce, cauliflower and spinach also offer variety at low cost.

APPLE IS CHAMPION OF EXPORTED FRUITS FROM UNITED STATES

With another apple crop approaching harvest, a statistician has discovered that apple exports from this country exceed in value the total of all the exported oranges, pears, grapefruit, grapes, berries, lemons, peaches, and pineapples. About one-tenth of the American commercial apple crop is exported.

Some of the varieties which are most popular for this export trade are the Baldwin, Imperial, the Yellow Newton, Greening, Ben Davis, Winesap, Gravenstein, Jonathan, Delicious, and Ortley. Especially in England, buyers seem to prefer the largest cooking apples, but for eating usually select the smaller varieties because these are sold by the pound.

BY MARY MEADE.

Every man and his dog [plus his wife and his children] are feeling the call these days to chuck business and man-made pleasures and take to the open road—with the hum of the motor for music and visions of that well filled lunch basket stowed arear, a balm incomparable after a winter of staid and proper eating.

And since a motoring picnicker was never known to arrive at any camping grounds, no matter how near or how far, in any condition other than utter starvation, it's up to us to see that such a tragedy is averted in the most casually delicious ways that can be conjured up from ice box, cookstove, and the corner grocery.

For it's a fact that while we rack our brains and cudgel our imaginations to offer our families something new and something varied each day at the table, we're pretty likely to think that a picnic is just a delightful way to get out of planning one meal, and that we might as well just have weiners, bacon, buns, fruit, and cookies, since "everyone seems to like them." But there's a thrill in seeing how much more successful is the picnic which has a little careful planning and a few added unusuals to make it stand out as a thing apart.

Here's a list: One or two cheeses—snappy or mild to suit family tastes; a glass of jelly that will "stay put" when sandwiched; a can of deviled ham, or one of jellied tongue or souse meats—a bottle of gehrkins, sweet, or olives; fresh fruit; and, as a sturdy background for everything, a generous box of large soda crackers or a loaf of sliced bread chosen to suit the most fancies best. Such a lunch is gayly indifferent to time and temperature, won't get soggy, tastes well, and wastes nothing, as the leftovers will be quite as good later back in the home refrigerator.

But perhaps yours is not the yen for a motor lunch, but for an honest to goodness picnic with smoke, skillets, and all the rest. Then that's quite as much a matter for planning, though it promises a bit more work. To start with, here is a menu which makes mighty good eating and just hits the spot for a Fourth of July picnic.

Broiled Hamburger Patties with Onions
Horseradish Cream or Mustard
Roast Sweet Potatoes
Pineapple-Banana-Marshmallow Salad
Buttered Sandwich Bread
Mixed Pickles
Home Made Ice Cream
Chocolate Cake
Coffee

The patties may be bought all ready to fry at any hamburg shop. If you lack a broiler, get out the old wire corn popper. The patties, with their onion slices atop, sizzle in the popper with no danger of falling into the campfire. And later the popper makes a fine toaster for bread and crackers.

The sweet potatoes [or why not splurge with a few roasting ears?] may be wrapped in wet leaves and baked in the hot ashes. Better get large ones, as a little is bound to char off.

The salads, made at home and packed in individual, stout one-cup cartons, saves washing and lugging of dishes.

AUTO VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED AS RUNAWAY WIFE

Evansville Woman Dead; Youth Seriously Hurt.

The body of a woman killed early yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding struck a street car and overturned, was identified later as that of Mrs. Selma Phillips, 24 years old, of Evansville, Ind.

At the time of the accident, the driver of the car, Clyde Karr, 22 years old, son of a Kankakee minister, told police the woman was Miss Florence Vaughan of Kankakee. His condition prevented police from questioning him at the St. Luke's hospital, where he is being treated for a possible fracture of the skull and a fractured left arm.

Crash Injures Pedestrian.

Mrs. Phillips was killed at 18th street and Michigan. A pedestrian, Mrs. Margaret Lee, 25 years old, 119 East 18th street, suffered a fractured nose when she was knocked down when the auto caromed off the side of the street car.

Mrs. Margaret Cook, 57 West Ontario street, an aunt of the dead women, identified the body and said that Karr had come from Kankakee to visit Mrs. Phillips, who came to Chicago two weeks ago after separating from her husband.

The body of a man identified from papers in his pocket as F. R. Saleine, an employé of the Deep Rock Oil corporation, was taken from the wreckage of his automobile early yesterday by the crew of an Elgin, Joliet, and Eastern freight train. The car crashed into the side of the train at Torrence avenue crossing, east of Chicago Heights, wedged between two oil tank cars, and was dragged for three miles before being discovered by trainmen.

Three Killed in Collision.

Chicago friends yesterday learned that Mrs. Sophie Laudonte, 40 years old, 3441 South Morgan street, her daughter, Lillian, and Eleanor Serva, 6, of Utica, were killed Wednesday night in an automobile collision one mile east of Little Falls, N. Y. After colliding with another car the Laudonte automobile plunged into the Mohawk river. John Laudonte, husband of the dead woman, and his son, John Jr., 3, were saved when they were thrown clear of the car.

FEWER DEATHS IN 1932

Fifteen fewer automobile fatalities were recorded during the first six months of 1932 than during the same period last year, it was disclosed yesterday by Coroner Walsh. The total for 1932 is 547 deaths, while the toll on July 1, 1931, stood at 562.

Three women were seriously injured and three others cut and bruised yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding overturned two miles southeast of Crystal Lake, Ill.

Tries to Avoid Crash.

The three most seriously hurt were Mrs. Carl L. Stark, 35 years old, 2500 Maple street, River Forest, who suffered a skull fracture; Mrs. Emil G. Schwerdtman, 1449 North La Claire avenue, and Mrs. Otto C. Meyer, 31 years old, 1409 South 58th street, Cicero, who suffered internal injuries. The others in the car were Mrs. Amanda Hickey of Oak Park, and Mrs. Alice Vogel of Chicago, and the driver, Mrs. John H. Young, 7422 Iowa street, River Forest. Mrs. Young told police she drove off the road to avoid a collision after attempting to pass a third car.

There was one other automobile fatality in Cook county yesterday. The victim:

150 CARLOADS OF FURNITURE HERE FOR SHOW

More than 150 carloads of new fall furniture have been received at the Merchandise Mart freight station in preparation for the July furniture and lamp market, which opens in the Mart building next Tuesday. During the 12 day market more than 3,500 retail furniture merchants from 44 states will contract for their fall lines of furniture and lamps.

The states of Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, North Carolina and New Jersey lead the world in the production of furniture. That was revealed in a tabulation of the shipments received. There is very little furniture from foreign countries in the shipments and the importations shown in the market will be negligible.

The home furnishings exhibitors at the July market total more than 600, including all the leading furniture manufacturers and distributors in the United States.

Barbecue Stand Owner Freed at Murder Trial

Alan MacDonald, 56, proprietor of a barbecue stand on the Ogden avenue road east of Aurora, was acquitted by a jury at Wheaton yesterday of the slaying of Bernard Ehrhart, 30, of Naperville. ## D. M. RYERSON WILL DESTROYED BEFORE SUICIDE

Secret of Lost $500,000 Document Revealed.

Donald M. Ryerson, chairman of the directors of Joseph T. Ryerson & Sons, steel merchants, destroyed his own will a short time before he ended his life on May 8, it was disclosed yesterday in probate proceedings in Waukegan.

It was stated, when the application for probate was made on June 6, that the will had been "lost or destroyed." A copy of the document, drawn in 1925, has been presented to the court and yesterday's proceedings before City Judge Theodore Forby, who was sitting in place of Judge Martin C. Decker in the Lake county Probate court, were to obtain recognition of the copy as the true will.

Holds Charity Gifts Unfair.

For the first time it was disclosed that before he shot himself Mr. Ryerson wrote a four page letter to his wife, Mrs. Isabelle McGenniss Ryerson, and another note. A passage from the letter, which mainly concerned personal matters, was read into the record by William E. Clow Jr., a personal friend, who was called to the Ryerson home on the day of Mr. Ryerson's death.

"I destroyed my will on account of certain gifts that were unfair in these times," Mr. Ryerson had written to his wife.

The gifts to which he referred, apparently, were bequests of $20,000 to the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, and of $10,000 to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. The residue of the estate, valued at $500,000, is left by the will copy, half to Mrs. Ryerson and half in trust to the two minor children, Anthony and Isabelle.

Tell of Nervous Collapse.

Mr. Ryerson took his will from the vault in the offices of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son a few days before his death, his secretary testified. Edward L. Hartig, secretary and vice president of the company, told of the nervous breakdown which Mr. Ryerson suffered last October, which was followed by melancholia, and forced him to drop his business affairs.

Mr. Clow and Wayne Chatfield Taylor, a friend for thirty-five years, also testified as to Mr. Ryerson's mental state in the days just before his death.

"I'm concerned and have some doubt whether the will was revoked when it was destroyed by Mr. Ryerson," Judge Forby said at the close of the hearing. He continued the case until July 7 that he might investigate authorities.

It was said she would recover. The bullet which struck her was aimed, the police said, at Louis Lamole, who was killed by the gunfire.

Baker Heirs May Not Try to Save Estate.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Heirs of the late George F. Baker, banker and philanthropist, barred by a recent court ruling from contesting an enormous inheritance tax, face the loss of an estate once reputed to be worth 200 millions. This was revealed today in a renewed state tax demand for nearly $15,000,000 on the estate, which was probated last year and estimated at $75,000,000.

The principal beneficaries, George F. Baker Jr. and two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn B. St. George and Mrs. William Goadby Loew, must also face the fact that market depreciation threatens to swallow most of the original investments.

How Stocks Slide Down.

In addition to the shrinkage of 125 million, caused by the stock market debacle in 1929, Baker's holdings in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, and N. Y. Central, with a par value of $45,000,000 at the time of his death, are now worth $9,780,000.

Despite this record deflation which cuts the value of their inheritance in half, the heirs must pay a tax based on the value of the estate at the time of Baker's death. Of this $15,000,000 inheritance tax, 80 per cent will be taken by the state treasury, while the balance is reserved for the federal tax.

18 Months Time Limit.

A time limit of 18 months has been set for the executors to pay this money. Although 14 months have elapsed since Baker's death, no tax schedule or appraisal has yet been filed with the tax commissioner's office. With only 4 months left in which to complete the enormous task of compiling and filing this report, the estate also faces a threat of a 10 per cent fine for delay, amounting to almost $7,500,000.

The heirs have now fallen heir to the problem of paying a combined tax and a possible penalty of $22,500,000 on an estate which has shrunk in value to little more than this figure.

Charles Irelan, Accountant, Dies Suddenly at Work

Charles Irelan, 58 years old, 4700 Kenwood avenue, died yesterday of heart disease in the offices of A. B. Dick & Co., 720 West Jackson boulevard, where he had been employed as an accountant for fourteen years.

VITAMIN B IN BRAN, RESEARCH REVEALS

Also Has "Bulk" to Further Assist Elimination, and Iron for Blood

One of the functions of Vitamin B is to help tone the intestinal tract, and promote elimination. Now, laboratory experiments show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains this valuable vitamin.

In addition, ALL-BRAN brings a plentiful supply of "bulk"—which provides the "ballast" needed to exercise the intestines.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it is different from the way you see it in the package. It absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

Another healthful element brought by ALL-BRAN is iron. Tests show this cereal has twice as much usable iron as the same weight of beef liver.

Check common constipation with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by eating this delicious cereal. How much pleasanter than taking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Just eat two tablespoonsful daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LIFT BUSINESS MORATORIUM IN NORTH CHICAGO

North Chicago's five day business moratorium, called Tuesday, was lifted yesterday after having been in effect 50 hours. The return to normal business activities was hailed with factory whistles and clanging of bells during the day, and with a parade last night.

The moratorium was ordered by Acting Mayor Lyle Gourley as a means of checking suspected uneasiness. Scores of business men approached depositors of the Lake County State bank and asked them to agree not to withdraw more than 5 per cent of their funds in any one month, and to keep a checking balance equal to the amount on deposit on June 28. Ninety-five per cent of the depositors accepted the proposal, it was announced.

Wash Cottons and Thin Silks Popular for Convention Dress

Society Women Appear Cool and Comfortable While Men Seem to Suffer from Heat.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE same Stadium, the same crowd, the same faces.

The only difference between the picture of yesterday afternoon's session and those of the previous sessions was the clothes of the women, especially the occupants of the boxes, for they are most noticeable, of course.

Such a lot of baggage as the visitors must have brought for most of the well known women from other cities haven't appeared twice in the same outfits, and most of our own local women, too, have worn different costumes to the Stadium each time they have gone. And they have gone every time the convention has convened.

Saying that they have worn so many different costumes doesn't mean that any of the women have been extravagant in their wardrobes this year, for I don't think anyone has been, but in warm weather it is necessary to have many changes if one is to be well groomed and smartly dressed.

Yesterday it was hot—terribly hot—in the big hall in spite of the cooled air that was circulating and the constant swish of hundreds of fans, and the men looked hot; but somehow or other the women, at least those whose faces are familiar to society reporters, kept cool and comfortable looking.

Undoubtedly the popularity of wash cottons and thin silks was responsible largely for this, and if one were to attempt to describe in a general way what the best dressed women wore yesterday she would say, "Printed silks or cottons."

Cool Prints Are Popular.

A few of those who sat in boxes within my vision who had chosen cool, summery looking prints yesterday were Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who was in pale green and black with a black hat trimmed in black and white shiny grapes; Mrs. Wesley Dixon, whose print was of beige and brown; Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, who looked happy as well as cool in a blue and white cotton dress and a black hat; Mrs. Joseph B. Long, whose red and white print was vastly becoming; Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, also in a becoming red and white print and a tiny white turban; Mrs. Charles H. Sabin and Mrs. Stanley Field, both in red and white prints; Mrs. Robert J. Dunham Jr., in a black and white print; Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, in a pale pink, green and brown print with a brown turban; Mrs. John F. Hagey, in black and white and a black hat, and Mrs. Robert N. McCreary in a print of tans, browns and white with a brown hat.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Downs wore a cool looking cotton dress of red, white and blue with exquisite lingerie collar and cuffs, and a white hat. Others were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in black voile with dots the size of quarters in white and orange, Mrs. William H. Mitchell in a green plaid chiffon with wide white cuffs and a white hat, and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith in a black and white gown, with a white hat and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

One of the most attractive young women at yesterday's session was Miss Abby Beveridge, who sat for a while with Mrs. Fairbank and Kellogg Jr. She wore a stunning black gown with white over one shoulder and upper arm, and bright blue over the other. A narrow brimmed black hat trimmed with a wreath of rather small silver leaves was perched jauntily on the top of her head, showing a mass of blonde curls beneath.

With Mrs. McCreary was her sister, Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., who wore a beige silk gown and a brown hat. Pretty young Nancy Traylor, who is to be a debutante next winter, wore a white frock with a navy blue scarf and a blue hat with a narrow white band on it. Mrs. Townsend McKeever was all in white; Mrs. Edward Hines was lovely in a white suit and a black sailor hat with a long, very sheer black veil; Mrs. William J. Chalmers wore a white gown with black trimmings and scarf and a white hat with a wide black patent leather band; Mrs. Edward N. Hurley wore hydrangea blue chiffon; Mrs. Barrett Wendell was in navy blue with a vestee of baby blue.

Mrs. Strawn in Navy Blue.

Mrs. Silas H. Strawn also was in navy blue, but her vestee was of sheer white and she wore a white hat; next to her sat Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins and Mrs. Edward F. Carry, both in mourning; Mrs. Howard Linn was as chic as always in a black dress with

Be Individual as to Perfume, Expert Advises

Selecting the Right Kind Is Happy Task.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

NEXT to the joy of watching summer movies with lots of snow scenes and spending a couple of hours inside a cool movie palace reviving your flagging enthusiasms for living, the most luxurious solution for warm weather enjoyment is shopping and sniffing and using the new fashionable perfumes.

A regular shophound with a sensitive nose will have a grand time these days on the scent of some of the most fragrant and refreshing odeurs ever held captive in bottles.

Whether you use toilet water or perfume, whether your allowance allows for a large bottle or the purse size flacon, your only decision will be the sort of fragrance you will continue to use, or what new scent you will wear.

Old-fashioned things have been revived with spectacular success this season. Eau de Cologne, for instance, with its wistful, faint and primly proper scent, floats around the smartest sophisticates. This fresh, cool toilet water can be used generously, even lavishly, without offense.

True floral odeurs, violet, rose, gardenia and lily of the valley, have loyal adherents that never think of using any other perfume. Some of the famous beauties of the films cling with a surprising feminine fidelity to a single fragrance that identifies them wherever they go; in many cases a fragrance that they have used for so long that it is a part of them.

It's an open secret that perfume really spells romance; a mere whiff will recall all the rose tinted memories of a perfect summer, will make you remember a particularly charming woman long after you have forgotten her features, and, traitorously, sometimes, makes you remember the people you are trying to forget.

A perfumed 'kerchief used to be telltale evidence, but now we scent everything we wear. Our frocks are hung on perfumed hangers, tiny silk and satin sachets are sewed or pinned in each dress and hat, our lingerie inhales the perfume of sacheted and padded cases, and the blended and matched result is a subtle trailing fragrance of our favored perfume, wherever we are.

We used to deluge various spots of our frocks with perfume, direct from the bottle, but we are wiser now and knowingly invest in the biggest atomizers we can buy and lavishly start the day with spraying the contents everywhere except directly on our clothes.

Or we go Hollywood and collect perfume bottles with cleverly designed long, long stoppers that we use like a perfumed caress back of our ears and over our features as the last lingering and scented touches to an hour of dressing.

Heavy mixed perfumes are definitely out. Light delicate mixtures that mystify the casual, curious soul who invariably tries to copy are especially distilled for and selected by the individualist.

Only the woman who spends the greater part of her existence trying to be different can sympathize with a kindred spirit who refuses to divulge a secret perfume formula—which undoubtedly is the only secret, everybody agrees, we women can keep!

June Wedding Total Lowest in Many Years

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

If statistics prove anything Cupid disappointed nearly 1,000 prospective brides during the last month and allowed the marriage license bureau records to show the dullest June in a dozen years.

At the conclusion of the month's business yesterday Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield could account for only 3,320 marriage licenses issued during June, a drop of nearly a fourth from the number in 1931 and a third less than in June, 1930.

It was the first time since 1919 that the June count had fallen to the 3,000 class. A standard of 5,000 licenses or more was maintained from 1920 to 1930, when the count dropped to 4,949.

The proportion of one divorce for every three marriages held through the first half of this year, however. The divorces for the first part of 1932 have fallen 29 per cent below the same period during the peak divorce year of 1929, but there has been a corresponding decline in marriages.

There were some bright spots in the marriage outlook for Chicago pointed out by Mr. Summerfield. Despite June's slump over other Junes the month ran nearly 1,000 licenses above May this year. But the chief clerk's strongest argument was vested in marriage license statistics from New York.

"Look at these and see if Chicago is behind New York," he said. "Why, we're ahead of New York all the way through. Despite depression the young folks are getting married. Look at this comparison." Here are the records:

| April, | Chicago. | New York. |
| 1929 | 3,560 | 2,755 |
| 1930 | 2,792 | 2,536 |
| 1931 | 2,705 | 2,387 |
| 1932 | 2,211 | 2,168 |

Twenty-two per cent of those taking out marriage licenses are wed in the marriage court by Circuit and Superior judges from other towns sitting in on the bench here. About eight per cent, Chief Clerk Summerfield said, are married by judges in country towns around, while the balance have the ceremony performed in the churches, in homes, or rented halls.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President, was the guest of honor and speaker at a tea this afternoon, given by Mrs. Walter Tuckerman in her suburban home at Edgemoor, Md., to Republican women, the members of the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia and the Montgomery County, Maryland, League of Republican Women.

The secretary of the interior and Mrs. Wilbur left Washington tonight for their California home, making the trip by train. They will not arrive there until July 19, as they will make several stops en route, the first one at Buffalo tomorrow, where the secretary will make the principal address at the dedication of statues of Presidents Millard Fillmore and Grover Cleveland, both residents of Buffalo when elected. Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur will visit their son, Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Wilbur, in Rochester, Minn.

Representative Andrew Jackson Montague of Virgina, former governor of his state, was the best man at the wedding this afternoon of his son, Capt. Robert Latane Montague, U. S. M. C., and Miss Frances Breckinridge Wilson, daughter of Edward Warring Wilson of Stratford lodge, Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Wealthy Wives Not Honorable Way to Degree

Digging Ditches, Waiting Table Wiser Method.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Being temporarily in financial difficulty on account of investment loss, what is your honest opinion of a young man [myself] who considers honorable marriage with an older woman who would finance his medical study? PETER."

To begin with, could you offer the woman honorable marriage? Is it ever honorable to consider marriage on so mercenary a basis? Is it honorable to take the necessary vows when you know in your own heart your "yes" means nothing more than the means to a diploma end?

Then, after the diploma, what? Have you ever had insight into the lives of men who marry rich women for the use they can put their bride's money to? Pretty sorry spectacles, the most of them.

True, a young man not through school might easily enough fall in love with a girl with money and be persuaded into marriage before the completion of his studies—the girl or her people making the marriage possible. But that is quite another situation. It may turn out, indeed, to have a happy ending. I recall having put the question of the success of such an arrangement up to readers with the discovery that 50 per cent were against helping the young husband through school and 50 per cent as willing to agree that the opposite experience proved happy. But in the happy outcomes, love on both sides was stressed as the ruling feature.

But committing yourself for life to an older woman for whom you probably have no more feeling other than a temporary form of gratitude would be suicide to your success as both doctor and husband. Surely, you see in the current state of international affairs how the debtor learns to hate the hand that feeds it. In personal relationships the animosity is more bitterly felt. In marriage relationships the Lady Bountiful becomes a hated object too often to risk one's future with such arrangement.

Better dig ditches, Peter. Wait on table. Copy manuscripts. Do anything to put yourself through school. Let the woman subscribe her charity funds to some object more in need of her bounty than is an able bodied young medical student.

French Borrow Pajama Styles from the Navy

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Anywhere along the southern coast of France this summer the predominating style scene looks like a gob review. The blue and white striped sweater-shirt of the French matelot has been universally selected by the younger set of Paris to wear with their sailor trousers on the beaches.

In Toulon these sweaters can be bought in rough and ready cotton for about 60 cents, and some of the more daring girls wear the real thing, but the more careful have their sailor sweaters made up by the Paris dressmakers in finest jersey wool or in silk. They are worn over the top of the trousers as the sailor boys wear them. The tuck-in sweater is less seen this summer.

The sailor trousers in our sketch today are from the Place Vendôme ateliers of Lyolene, and the striped gob sweater is made of wool jersey. The trousers of navy ribbed tricot are fitted around the hips and flared below in the side seams. At the waistline is a bright red belt with a silver anchor buckle. The sweater has a double sailor collar that comes down in the back in two points with navy borders and anchors for decoration. Inside the collar is a red and white striped scarf made of crocheted wool, the ends of which hang outside in front.

This is the uniform that is worn along the beaches here from morning until night, except for time out during the sun bath.

Club Program.

The Chicago Woman's club will have a thimble party, directed by Mrs. Edwin McNeal, on Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock. There will be a book review at 2 o'clock by Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson, and contract bridge with beginners at 11 o'clock and informal and advanced contract bridge at 2 o'clock.

Today's Figures Reach a New High in Silhouette Perfection

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The manufacturers of women's dresses have a story to tell about the manner in which the female form changes from year to year.

One man in the business some forty odd years paused in his day's occupation recently to recall a few of the evolutions the silhouette has undergone in his time.

It was about twenty-five years ago, according to him, that women began taking a hand in figure molding according to their own delights. It was along about that time that women were getting up their first wind for their long athletic history to follow. Maybe it was only a bicycle that got them out beyond the domestic scenery, still they were on their way to a future rife with golf and tennis, swimming, and other athletic championships.

It was necessary to dispense with the wasp waist and the hour glass figure. And so began the waist freedom movement, which grew and grew until five or seven years ago the waist was permitted to express itself in a good round 34 inches if it felt so inclined. The shoulders changed. The back was permitted more flexibility. The old ramrod backs and rigidly held back shoulders were voted out.

From that time on there has been a continuous change, influenced to some extent in the earlier days by the popular walk of the moment. Latterly the business of imitating the walk of a favorite stage star has gone out of favor.

Corseting has undergone a miraculous change in the interim. Busts have been lowered and freed of high corset pressure; hips and abdomens flattened. Altogether, it has been a sad time for "Sal," the dressmaker dummy that used to occupy space in the closet in off duty hours. Chiseling her to the season's mode has been one of the dress manufacturers' problems. But the old reliable seems to have stood her many operations well.

What the future has in store for her is your good guess as well as mine. Enough that we think today she has reached the high point in silhouette perfection.

Hot Weather—and Ice Fund Nearly Empty!

Hot weather has arrived—and almost no money in the free ice fund to alleviate suffering in destitute homes. And that, readers, is the serious situation which faces those charged with raising and distributing the annual fund raised among TRIBUNE readers. This excerpt from a letter, and countless other instances where the needs are specifically known and the urgency of the cases realized, indicates the task before the ice fund, which to date has received less than $34. Ask yourself, readers, if a small gift, even a dollar or five, wouldn't ease some of the anxiety in this home:

"I would like to have some ice for my baby, which I have just taken home from the hospital. Every morning his milk is sour. I have two other small children, aged 4 and 2 years, and I am expecting another in the fall. The unemployment relief is helping me otherwise."

The heat of yesterday was uncomfortable enough for those who live in pleasant, airy homes. Think what it must have been in tenements, stuffy and ill-ventilated. No ice cold water, no fresh milk for a sickly baby, no crisp vegetables at mealtime. A gift would help make tenement folks more comfortable. It may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Ann Harding Adopts Sphinx Role of Garbo

Edington Becomes Her Manager.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., June 30.—Harry Edington, the business agent who handles Greta Garbo, and who was inducted into that job by John Gilbert, when John and Greta were like—that, no longer appears to be on such friendly terms with Gilbert. Garbo's sustained popularity has caused her agent—Edington—to become a popular business agent with other actresses and actors seeking new business management.

Edington recently added Ann Harding to his list of clients and announcement was made at once that Miss Harding no longer would consent to talk to newspaper people, but would shroud herself in seclusion similar to Garbo.

Jean Hersholt's 17 year old son, Allen, confided to his dad that he wants to become an actor, too. "Well," Hersholt said, "if you want to, all right. The best way is to get into a repertoire show, play a different part every night, move scenery, work 15 hours a day and learn the business." So young Hersholt decided he would go back to military academy this fall.

It wasn't until after she expressed her wonderment to an acquaintance at the unexpected friendliness of a tall stranger who sat down at her lunch table that Karen Morley found out the stranger was Karl Dane, and that he had mistaken her for Leila Hyams.

Beach blankets and beach hats cellophane are being taken up as a fad. Some of the girls say you tan in them, but don't sun burn.

Albie Booth, Yale quarter back, has been signed by Universal to play against the 1931 All-America football team in the film titled "All America." This studio also expects to sign up a number of other Harvard, Princeton, and Yale players, as well as stars from Southern California, Stanford, and California, who will come to Los Angeles to play in the demonstration game of American football at the Olympic games.

Did you ever know that Rudy Vallee tried for the Yale university glee club while in college but didn't make the grade?

One reason for Viki Baum's making the long trip from Berlin to Hollywood at this time is to listen to her husband, Richard Lert, composer and conductor, lead the 100 piece orchestra in a concert in the Hollywood outdoor bowl next Tuesday. Miss Baum will stay here and do some film writing for the M.-G.-M. studio.

Capt. M. E. Gillette has been ordered from the war department at Washington to report for duty in Hollywood, his duty consisting of keeping the war department abreast of all technical developments in film production. Through a coöperative system worked out by the motion picture academy of arts and science, selected army officers are always to be kept on duty in Hollywood for this purpose. Many foreign governments also have official observers and motion picture commercial and art attachés on duty here. Mexico is represented by a regular staff, operating on orders from Mexico City.

Mary Philips, New York actress and wife of Humphrey Bogart, actor, has been added to the cast of "Farewell to Arms," which Paramount is preparing to film in a lavish manner. Helen Hayes will be here July 5 for the starring rôle. Gary Cooper plays one of the male leads as the American ambulance corps officer, and Adolphe Menjou is cast in the other, as the Italian major.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Family Deserves Help.

"I have been out of work for a year and a half and during that time I have had nothing but misfortune. I fell and broke my leg and was laid up for eight months, so I couldn't even look for a job. I have four children, girls 6, 3½, and 8 months old, and a boy 5. We all need clothes badly, and I have no way of getting it except through you. My wife wears size 16 and I wear size 46. The children are especially in need of shoes.

Here's a most deserving family who would appreciate any castoff clothing you may have to give. The man is making every effort to locate work, and any assistance given him will be well directed.

Parents Must Be Firm with Young People

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"But none of the other girls have to come home so early, mother!"

"I don't see why I can't go out in his car, daddy—none of the other fathers are so particular!"

Is this a familiar refrain to those of you who have daughters of 15, or 16, and 17, and who live in a lively suburb? If it is a never ending bombardment, perhaps you'd be interested in some things a father said to me the other day. He has, among other progeny, a daughter of 16, and he's worked out some of these things with a reasonable degree of success.

"Parents are too lax with boys and girls who are at the violent party-dancing-movie- and automobile stage," he said.

"These young people come home at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning from parties given at homes where the parents should know better than to let them stay so late.

"This sort of thing was going on in our family and interfering with my daughter's school work, so I put a stop to it. Now I put it up to the boys who take her out to see that she's home at a certain hour. And they do. It's not easy, but I insist upon it."

"Didn't you ever try getting together with the other parents on it, so the kids won't feel so injured?" asked some one.

"O, yes, we tried that, and it looked as if it would work finely. They all agreed to a few rules about their children's hours and motoring parties—but almost none of them would enforce their rules—so we were just as badly off as ever."

"How do you handle the indiscriminate automobiling around the countryside?" I asked.

"I do it this way," was the answer. "I don't allow my daughter to go automobiling with any boys that I don't know well.

"These children don't like the restrictions at the time, of course, but they're the gainers in the end. It saves them from the fate of those youngsters who run around everywhere they please, with any one they please, until any hour they please."

"What fate is that?" I asked.

"The fate of being stale and bored and blasé and weary by the time they're in their twenties," he said, "just when they should be full of zest. That's a fate we parents ought to save them from."

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Frankire calls Dr. Symion, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her jealous young half-brother. The doctor plans to give Harney Pierce, a well to do social climber, a lift to his destination; and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty young creature who summoned the doctor. Both girls are impressed by the gentleness of the serious man and take her troubles seriously to mind. The doctor is to sail the next week for New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Hathaway, a widow friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a male companion for the Atlantic crossing. Pierce calls on Doris, whose birth he has been putting for some months, to bid her adieu and farewell.

INSTALLMENT V.

A GLIMPSE AT LUXURY.

Gold had been up all the early part of the night with Gip. Elverton's prescription had held, as he said, a kick. But by half past two Gip was asleep, and she herself went to bed, on the divan in the sitting room. Of their two rooms she gave him the bedroom proper, because she could never be sure when he would choose to rise. And he would not be tidy. Explain to him as one would: "But we must try to put up a decent appearance, Gip, and we've no resources," he could not cooperate. "Hell!" he would say. Or: "Shucks!" Or: "Let it all bust. What should we care? Nothing to lose, have we?" She would explain to him desperately that, because they had nothing, they had contradictorily enough, everything to lose. When she lay down at last, after her stepbrother had gone off comfortably to sleep, her mind was teeming with the problems he raised for her. Dawn was showing before she, too, drifted into slumber, and that slumber was too light, pierced as it was, as if by arrows, with her last waking reminders to herself that she must be up at seven at latest, must apply at agencies and offices for work after she had sent Gip off, and swept and cleaned those rooms of which he always made a mess again.

At eight-fifteen a knock fell loudly on her door, and wonderfully enough—it seemed to her—the doctor of last night stood there.

More wonderful it was than even she in her gratitude realized, for Elverton had made a late night with his old friend, was more pressed than usual, and was cutting a proper breakfast to come before his nine o'clock surgery hour. He gave her a quick professional look as he stepped in.

"Ah, the he-man! Don't let him pull the rough stuff on you, sister. Doctor, I hate your bedside manner."

"Well, my dear?"

"He's better."

"Of course he's better. There's nothing wrong with him!" He swept another quick look round at the table set for breakfast, kettle on a grid over the gas ring, and bread toasting economically on the same grid. "He didn't keep you up, of course?"

"I stayed up till he was all right. It was better."

"What your half-brother wants, my dear," said Elverton, "is kicking morning and night. Then he wants to be driven at a job till he drops. Daily emetics would be a salutary part of the treatment. During it he should have none of this pity, sympathy, and yearning which you women are only too ready to hand out in too many cases. He needs to be rid of you, my dear."

"Do you truly mean all that?"

"Every word," said Elverton, looking grimly and directly into her face. "He needs marooning with a dozen rough fellows who could teach him a bit if they thought him worth the trouble. But they wouldn't." His voice cracked a little. "I'm tired, my girl. Too tired to beat about the bush. And I've no time to spare. So I tell you the truth."

"I want the truth. I—I thank you for it. But . . ."

"Listen, my dear. I've heard of a job that would do you all the good in the world; to go with a rich woman—at least I take it she's rich—as traveling companion to New York, and—" he paused, conning over Barney Pierce's promise and thinking: 'He looked all right; tough: but all right, to me—' —"and your passage back if you wanted it. Now I've no time to waste here. The passenger's name is Mrs. Hathaway, staying at Claridge's. Will you give yourself and that half-brother of yours a chance; and go and get the job?"

"If I could be sure—"

"Look here," said the doctor, "I tell you this: If that boy isn't pushed onto his own feet soon, he'll make worse trouble than you've had yet. All you women think you're the earth at this salvation business, and it's fine of you. But there's a time to stop it. Will you go and get yourself this job?"

She thought of Gip's new salary, of his health, of his wardrobe, of his associates, of a dozen difficult matters all in the second before she whispered suddenly: "Yes."

"Promise," Elverton insisted. "Don't let me down."

She nodded: "I promise."

He looked at her keenly, and saw her eyes shine:

"Don't tell him till it's fixed up. Promise."

"Be a good girl. Don't let me down."

The bedroom door across the landing opened, and Gip walked in. He saw the doctor, and at once became very much the lanky lily of the field.

"Ah, the he-man! Don't let him pull the rough stuff on you, sister. Doctor, I hate your bedside manner."

"I hope you were most uncomfortably sick," said the doctor.

"I was. May I ask if you are indeed a doctor for humans, or a veterinary?"

"O, I doctor a lot of asses like yourself," Elverton looked him up and down. "You're going to eat the breakfast your sister has cooked; and get off to work?"

"That seems to be the program."

Elverton grunted, and went out, turning back at the threshold to look steadily at the girl. His look satisfied him. She had been really at the end of her tether. She had really taken to heart what he had said. She knew, secretly but convincingly, the truth of it. She would really go.

It was all he could do; and he tried to shrug her burdens off his shoulders as he got back into his old car.

At the end of a hard day his old servant, who had mislaid and forgotten the slip of paper on which she had written Pierce's message of the night before, found it by accident, and laid it on the doctor's desk.

Gip was no sooner out of the house—really looking like work, Gold thought—than she followed. On the top of the omnibus, riding towards Piccadilly, her mind worked at fever heat. The doctor was right, perhaps; she, in her nervous stress of sacrifice, was wrong. Gip would be better alone, taking his own risks, failing if he fell—no anxious woman to pick him up again. She had often threatened to leave him alone, often scorned and scolded him. He had never believed her. Well, she would not tell him, if she obtained this wonderful, this amazing job. She would say: "I am starting work myself again next week," and then at the eleventh hour leave him an address. He must, of course, know how to reach her if real emergency arose! The affair of Gip occupied her to the exclusion of her own immediate business as she left the omnibus and walked towards Brook street. It was actually only 9 o'clock when she came to the square, the quietly sumptuous hotel.

Doris was in bed, and about to breakfast, when her telephone rang, and she was told that a young lady had called to see her. Always impatient, never waiting while any serviter finished the end of a sentence, she cried: "Send her up!" and hung up the receiver. This was how it was that Gold Franklyn, to her own surprise, gained, without explanation, pressing or argument, immediate access to Mrs. Hathaway. A page took her up, ushered her to the suite, the lobby door of which he unlocked with his pass key. He knocked at an inner door. A rich voice cried impatiently: "Come in!" Gold was in a luxurious bedroom, into which the sun shone, and where, against pillows, a luxurious woman sat up in bed.

"Good morning. You're the manicurist I told them to send?"

"Good morning. I—I'm afraid not. I've called about the post of traveling companion; or is it secretary?"

"O, what a damned nuisance!" said Doris Hathaway. "I want the manicurist. Can you do hands? I suppose not."

"Well, I can. I was in a beauty salon before I took up secretarial work. I do my own hands now."

"Let me look!"

The girl pulled off very worn gloves, and held her hands for Doris's quick inspection. And in the moment that elapsed all the woman in her was enamored of this lovely room, the perfume that hung in the air, the flowers on the dressing table, and the careless yet solemn perfection of the other woman. "I must taste all this myself!" her heart said for her. "I must! I must!"

It's Immaterial.

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I love is one year older than I. Does it matter? JIM."

"Dear Miss Blake: What is love? "LOUIE."

a round neck, white collar, and wide silver belt, and a wee white hat with a thin black nose veil; Mrs. Walter Borden looked charming in a gray outfit, and Miss Mary Rend was in a pale green linen suit without a hat, at least when I saw her.

Mrs. John Borden sat with the Mississippi alternates, busy writing and waving to friends in the nearby boxes and looking very pretty in a tomato red dress and no hat.

Among others whom I recognized were Mrs. Glenn Frank, Mrs. Curtis Dall, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Miss Florence Noyes, Mrs. Condé Nast, Mrs. Claire Booth Brokaw, Mrs. Morton Schwartz, Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith [Barbara Neff], Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Mme. Cardelli, Mrs. Harold Strotz, Mrs. Charles H. Morse, Mrs. Eugene Thayer, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mrs. William G. McAdoo, and Miss Ellen McAdoo, all looking extremely smart and well.

The three hour recess for dinner gave the women a chance to change into other costumes, but summer frocks continued to be the rule. There were no evening clothes.

Barbara Bateman Becomes Bride.

Again the weather man was kind to a Barrington bride, and the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Barbara Bateman and Paul Corbett took place as planned in the garden of the estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Bateman of Barrington Hills farm.

The Rev. D. H. Cornell of the Glencoe Union church officiated, reading the services at 5 o'clock in the presence of relatives and intimate friends. The bride, a pretty brunette, wore a pearl white chiffon gown over satin of the same shade. Her tulle veil was held in place with a rose pointe lace cap and the same lace trimmed the veil.

She chose to carry a prayer book instead of flowers, but the three attendants carried lovely bouquets of pale blue delphinium and yellow roses. They were Miss Betty Hart, maid of honor, and Miss Charlotte Hughes and Miss Kathleen Bowen, bridesmaids. Their gowns were of apple green net over white taffeta and they wore green hats trimmed with gardenias.

Henry Corbett Jr. acted as best man for his brother, and ushering were the bride's brother, Donald Bateman, and another brother of the bridegroom, Richard Corbett. Mr. and Mrs. Corbett are going to Los Angeles by way of the Canadian Rockies to spend the summer there. He is a member of the Chicago water polo team which will play in the Olympic games this summer. In the autumn he and his bride will take a house on the north shore.

All the fashionables weren't at the Stadium yesterday afternoon in spite of the fact that it looked as if they were, for several were out at the Post and Paddock club at Arlington Park watching the horses race.

Herbert Perkinses to Go to Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farrington Perkins are to sail tomorrow to spend the summer abroad. They are in Boston at present visiting their daughter, Mrs. Earle Bliss. Their younger daughter, Miss Elizabeth Perkins, has just completed a year's study at the University of London, and will meet her parents in England and then go to Germany with them for her summer holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hart Fisher will sail on July 9 for a European holiday. They will spend some time in London and Paris and then will motor to Salsburg for the music festival. After the festival they may go down to the Dalmatian coast for a short stay before returning in early September to their Michigan avenue apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Orr of 73 Cedar street with their daughters, Ellen and Nancy, are preparing to depart early next week for their annual summer sojourn at Charlevoix, where they have had a cottage for several years.

Miss Barbara Senn is Miss Florence Otis' house guest for a few days, as the Senn house on Astor street was closed this week when Barbara's twin sister, Dorothy, and their father, Dr. William N. Senn, left for their summer residence at Roaring Brook, Mich.

Barbara and Miss Otis will go to Roaring Brook next week. Both girls have been busy all this week with the Junior league corps of program venders at the Democratic convention.

Mrs. Earl L. Hambleton of the Ambassador and her daughter, the popular Peggy Hambleton, will leave within a fortnight to spend the rest of the summer with Mrs. Francis S. Rickcords [Eleanor Hambleton] at Charlevoix. Peggy, by the way, served so valiantly with the Junior league girls who sold bulletins at the Democratic convention sessions that she was too exhausted to go to the convention yesterday despite the excitement.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gordon of 1430 Lake Shore drive and their daughters, the Misses Isabel and Marion, left last night to spend the balance of the summer in their cottage at Harbor Point, Mich.

Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, who spent a few weeks in Chicago before going east last week for the graduation of Joseph Jr., from St. Mark's school, has returned to Santa Barbara with her son. The two little Ryerson girls have been in California for about two months and Mr. Ryerson will join his family later in the summer.

Mrs. John H. Winterbotham of 1301 Astor street is in the east making some visits before going to the family estate at Sugar Hill in the White mountains.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham and her young son, Johnny, and Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin and her three boys are going to have a grand change of scene after the hectic atmosphere of the political conventions. They're all departing tomorrow for a month's vacation at the Gratiot Washburnes' ranch in Wyoming. Mrs. Winterbotham will go east in August to spend the rest of the summer with her mother-in-law, the senior Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, at Franconia in the White mountains. Mrs. Winterbotham Sr. departed for the east last Monday.

Eastern Star Chorus Gives Two Benefits

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Illinois chorus of the order of the Eastern Star devoted yesterday afternoon and evening to giving two charity concerts with identical programs at Kimball hall. Sponsored by the Emma C. Hanson Worthy Matron club, the chorus, full toned and well distributed, sang under the direction of Dwight Edrus Cook, who in turn appeared on another part of the program as tenor soloist and composer of one of his own songs.

Other assistance was given by the Unique trio, Vera Kelley, pianist; Frances Uemmer, violinist, and Rosalynde Hutchinson, whistler, appearing in costume, also by the Colonial dancers, an octet of young artists who performed a minuet, repeated by the acclaim of the audience, and a ballet called "Black and White." There was a large attendance.

Violin playing masterful and agreeable in equal degrees came from the stage of the Punch and Judy theater yesterday morning when Leon Sametini appeared in the second recital of the Chicago Musical college series. His program was a bit unusual in makeup. It began with the Nardini Concerto in E minor and closed with the Vieuxtemps Concerto in D minor. Between these works Mr. Sametini called upon the assistance of Edward Collins, pianist, and Goldie Grose, cellist, and the three played the Mendelssohn Trio in D minor, in all a highly pleasant program for a warm day. Mr. Sametini has tone, technic, and musicianly spirit in the blend that makes the notable artist, and he played like one.

Word from Lansing, Mich., tells that Eric De Lamarter, assistant conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, is recovering from an appendicitis operation. He went there last Friday to visit his parents and was stricken shortly after his arrival.

Sally's Guests Enjoy Thrills at White City

Children Happy at First Summer Party.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If you are looking for suggestions for an exciting party there are one hundred boys and girls this morning who will unanimously recommend White City. For it was at this south side amusement park that we began our series of summer good times yesterday afternoon. And what a time we had!

There are so many new things out there this year—things we'd never dreamed of seeing and hadn't even heard of before. Chief among these, I think, were the water scooters. Regulation size motorboats with real gasoline engines which you can operate yourself! We steered them in and out around the long lagoon, having a difficult time to keep from colliding with other boats until we were fairly hysterical with laughter.

There was the mechanical circus—new at the park this year—and a cunning mouse city and a Swiss village which has quite a history attached to it. This latter curio has been exhibited in numerous museums and fairs throughout the country even as far back as the old World's Fair and as recently as the sesquicentennial at Philadelphia.

In addition to all these were the favorites of other years—those high, dipping, thrilling rides like the Giant Coaster and the Flash. There was the Ferris Wheel which provides an excellent view of Chicago's south side from its dizzy height and the Dodgem, Lindy Loop, and Hey Dey, fast, jerky things which toss you around corners or speed you over bumps until you are fairly limp from laughing.

We had to take time out during all this excitement to rest in the cool shade of the picnic grove where we had all the refreshing drinks and popcorn, and ice cream, and candy we could possibly eat. We even had our pictures taken. Then on to more and more rides and attractions—all of them coming so fast they actually made you dizzy.

Prehysteria with its huge, curving slides, its rolling barrels and spinning saucers, sliding walks and speeding animals, and O, a myriad of exciting things that would provide a whole day's fun, came as a fitting finale to the glorious time we had. We hadn't minded the heat a bit because there just isn't time to think of such things at White City, and we didn't even realize that we were tired until it was all over. And we didn't mind it because we'd had a perfectly swell time, Mr. Byfield and Mr. Weber and Mr. Axman and all the others at White City being very excellent hosts.

Tale of Young Love Written by G. B. Stern

"The Rueful Mating" Has Too Many Words.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Rueful Mating," by G. B. Stern. [Knopf.] Published today.

G. B. STERN, who has had a record to date almost unimpaired for charming, subtle, wholly alluring fiction, has come something of a cropper in her latest novel, "The Rueful Mating," that is, so far as it is possible for any one so completely a master of her technique and her medium as Miss Stern. She couldn't write a wholly bad book if she tried. "The Rueful Mating" is much better than many popular novels, but for G. B. Stern it just isn't good enough.

G. B. STERN.

The fault which it has most glaringly is that it is much too long for its material. Boiled down into a long short story or a novelette, "The Rueful Mating" would be a dazzlingly charming piece of work, with a theme not usual, a manner delightful and irresistible and characters that were at once sympathetically and satirically portrayed. I can imagine "The Rueful Mating" about the length of Willa Cather's "A Lost Lady," taking its rightful place among the classics of the "Daisy Miller" and "Man Without a Country" length of creative work. Spun out over 566 pages the story which Miss Stern tells becomes tenuous and—one is surprised that it is possible—almost boring.

Love Story of Two Children.

The story is of the love of two children and its culmination in marriage at the age of seventeen and eighteen. It begins when they are eleven and twelve years old. It ends with their marriage night. It is given zest by the temperaments and background of the children, each one in his and her own way unique, but a recognizable type. The little girl is a famous child poet as the book opens, exploited for her "genius" and with the atmosphere of a medieval court about her. Her father, a retired sea captain, seeks her out in New York where her mother took her when she left him [without regrets on either side]. When he finds the child treated like a czarina, made a public character by the poems which she wrote mourning her mother's death, living the busy life of a prima donna, he just calmly takes her away to England to "romp and play and find her own level."

Miss Stern has done the part about the prodigy and her background with brilliant satire, as she does other scenes in the book. But for long, long pages the usual story of the poor little misunderstood, motherless girl trying to understand what the grown-ups want, and for the endless hours with the child in a convent, all of Miss Stern's natural allure is ironed out by the sheer weight of words. You care terribly about Halcyon's life and her emotions at times and then you very actively don't care a hang.

The little boy, Eden, is a child actor in third or fourth rate pantomimes who supports a family with his earnings and who is no more a normal, carefree little boy than Halcyon is a normal, romping little girl. They meet in Beaulieu Abbey, fall in love with each other at sight, in the strange, honest, amazing way that children do take to each other at sight, and through all of the years are held together by the urgency that each has only the other in the world, really only the other, despite families.

Manage to See Each Other.

They manage somehow to see each other, to be together in vacations most of the days when he is not playing matinées, and once they manage to spend the night together in a house that is to let. It is that innocent but scandalous escapade which is the cause of Halcyon's father's putting her into a convent.

When Halcyon walks out of the convent one evening and goes up to London because she simply must ask somebody whether the two Marys in the Bible—Martha's sister and the Magdalene, were the same person—and the natural person to ask is Eden, things begin to pop. School in Germany is supposed to remove her from Eden, but he manages to get a touring job there and sees her. . . .

There could have been just as much psychology of adolescence in two hundred pages as Miss Stern has taken five hundred odd to set down, and the two hundred would have been intensified for their compactness.

"The Rueful Mating" seems, sadly, just another tottering Gibraltar in what seemed like such a stable world. You could bank on her to give you lavishly of charm and delight. I am hoping that "The Rueful Mating" is merely a "Closed for Holidays" sign on her literary depository.

Bright Sayings of the Children

STEPPED UP 70%

A gasoline bargain—superior to some premium fuels which cost you 3 cents more

Who said the public won't buy?

Here are the increases for a single month made by the new Sinclair Regular Gasoline compared to the same month last year. 19 Sinclair service stations in Chicago gained 65%—19 in Detroit, Mich., 60%—7 in Indianapolis, Ind., 111%—9 in Cleveland, Ohio, 91%—7 in Columbus, Ohio, 62%. Individual stations throughout the country are reporting gains ranging from 22% to 97%. And so it goes—every day fresh reports showing that this remarkable, new, high-test motor fuel has literally taken the country by storm!

And there's a reason, of course. Sinclair spent $18,000,000 to step up the anti-knock quality of Sinclair Regular by 70%. The new Sinclair Regular is actually superior in anti-knock to some premium fuels which cost you 3 cents more per gallon.

Prove this to yourself in a 30-day trial. Try the new Sinclair Regular in any traffic—on any hill—over any highway. Notice its flashy pick-up—enjoy its surge of hill-climbing power. And cash in on its all-around fuel economy. Ask for the new, Sinclair Regular Gasoline, stepped up 70%.

NOTE: For best results, use Sinclair Opaline or Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil. Both have been de-waxed, and also freed from petroleum jelly at as low as 60° F. below zero.

EQUIPOISE RACES MILE TO WORLD'S RECORD

WHITNEY HORSE TIMED IN 1:34 2-5 AT ARLINGTON

BY FRENCH LANE.

Carrying 128 pounds and with Jockey Workman making no attempt to hustle him in the late stages, he ran the mile in 1:34 2-5 and beat his ancient rival, Jamestown, by three lengths. Spanish Play was third in the three horse field, three and a half lengths behind Jamestown.

Equipoise took three-fifths of a second off the world's record, made by Jack High in the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont Park in New York in 1930. Jack High's mark was 1:35. He carried only 110 pounds when he made it.

Faster Time—Downhill.

It wasn't the fastest mile ever run by a race horse. Old and musty turf records show that Caiman, running in the silks of Jersey Lilly Langtry, the actress, once ran a mile over the straightaway downhill Lingfield Park course in England in 1:32. But running downhill over a straightaway course is something different from wheeling around the sweeping turns at Arlington.

A world's record was never shattered more easily. For the long striding, yet rather small, chestnut Equipoise never seemed to be fully extended even while he was trailing the fleet Jamestown by two lengths going down the backstretch and rounding into the lower bend which carried them into the home stretch.

"Jamestown's got him!" shouted the crowd as the Widener 4 year old, which had beaten Equipoise in a Belmont futurity nearly two years ago, straightened out at the head of the stretch for the run home, still more than a length in front.

Then He Starts Running.

Then Equipoise showed the stuff of a world's champion. He shot forward in the swiftest and longest strides a race horse in America ever took. He bounded forward as if wings and not four good legs were carrying him along in his journey. It seemed that Workman had pressed an electric button or that a superhorse was now taking the track determined to do something no other horse had ever been able to accomplish.

In forty strides he had raced upon even terms and had passed Jamestown. Poor old Jamestown didn't know what had happened to him. Equipoise continued to go in that breath taking stride until he was two lengths in front.

Then he must have known his day's work was over. He began to take things easy. Jockey Workman looked back and discovered that Jamestown was floundering and that Spanish Play was so far behind him there was no chance for that game rascal to catch them.

It's All Over, Old Boy.

He even gave Equipoise a pat on the side of the neck, an affectionate little slap which assured Equipoise that it was all over but the cheering.

Even though he was slowing up a bit he had Jamestown and Spanish Play so completely whipped that he pulled out into a still longer lead and was three lengths in front when the crowd gave him the mighty cheer of victory. There is no way of telling how fast Equipoise might have run the mile over the Hertz course if Workman had hustled him in the final furlong.

Jamestown, flying into the early lead, ran the first quarter in :23 1-5. At this stage Jamestown began to run as if the world's record were going to belong to him, for he raced the second quarter in :22 1-5, which put him at the half in :46. At the end of three-quarters, where Equipoise had pulled up and was getting ready to jump forward into the lead, the time was 1:09 2-5. So all Equipoise had to do was run the final quarter in :24 4-5 to smash the world's record.

Pays Good Price—$3.80.

Most people thought he could have run the last quarter at least a second faster if there had been any need of it.

While Equipoise was the favorite, the betting also showed another amazing angle. For instead of being at 1 to 4, which most people thought would be the price against him, he paid $3.80, or 9 to 10, to win, and to place in the three horse field he was at $2.92 for a $2 ticket, or nearly 1 to 2. Jamestown paid $3.02 to place.

These prices were made possible because Spanish Play's loyal backers would not desert him with that feather-like impost of 106 on his back. They socked in their money good and hard from the time the betting opened until it closed, and at one time, about five minutes before post time, he was the favorite over Equipoise.

Spanish Play ran his usual game race. He couldn't step as fast as these two eastern stars, but he never faltered and he was charging on toward them, even though far back when the finish came.

Volette Sets Track Record.

The track record for 5½ furlongs had been smashed earlier in the afternoon by C. V. Whitney's fleet filly Volette, a stable companion of Equipoise. She beat the western champion, Wise Anne, which last Saturday had won the Clipsetta stakes at Latonia. The Whitney filly just breezed home in 1:04 4-5 and won by four lengths.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs served notice yesterday on Fred [Red] Lucas, one of their most diligent jinxes, that he would have to quit dogging them. He had done it in most effective fashion three times in as many efforts earlier in the race, but when he made the fourth attempt the Chicagoans turned loose a terrifying blast of 12 hits that made up for past offenses. Under the circumstances the lowly Reds had to accept another beating, 7 to 0, but they are accustomed to such things now. It was their eighth loss in a row.

Coupled with an attack of which nobody suspected the Cubs of being capable, was a decidedly high grade brand of pitching by Guy Bush. The swarthy Mississippian, who hasn't been the recipient of much except base hit showers in recent appearances, was plunked safely in almost every inning, but he had the happy faculty of not letting the enemy get a start until after two were out. And his teammates, except in one instance, supported him in sensational style.

Cubs Hit Seven Doubles.

The Cubs not only showed their resentment against Lucas by hitting the ball but by refusing to consider such commonplace things as singles. Seven doubles were exploded, much to the discomfiture of the perspiring Cincinnati outfielders. One smash went for a triple. Another went right out of the park, propelled by the bat of Charley Grimm who had warmed up to the climax by getting the range with a pair of two baggers. Billy Herman and Gabby Hartnett also contributed two doubles each. The only ones who didn't get even a small piece of the tasty feed were Bush and Vin Barton, just back from a stretch in the minors. He landed squarely on a couple, but they were grabbed.

Bush used up the first inning getting himself into a normal stride, and meanwhile his actions caused more or less consternation among the fans. He opened his afternoon of work by passing Grantham, after which Crabtree beat out a bunt to Grimm. Something helpful to the Reds' cause might have developed from this situation if Grantham hadn't gone on a goose chase. He tried to get a flying start on an expected bunt and kept on going when Hendrick failed to hit the ball. He was nailed at third. Then Babe Herman was passed more or less intentionally and Lombardi poked a ladylike roller to Jurges.

Get First Run in Second.

The first item in the Cubs' attack for the day was a single by English, but the men following him furnished no assistance. The next inning brought a sign of improvement in the shape of two hits and a run. After Barton had bowed himself back into big league competition with a fly to center, Grimm drove the ball to the left field fence for a double. Grimm waddled home on a double slammed down the third base line by Hartnett. Jurges and Bush weren't able to keep the rally in motion.

For a few minutes in the third the Reds acted as if they actually intended to step out and collect. After two were retired Crabtree lined a single into center and Hendrick aimed one into left. The terrible Babe Herman bounced to short for a play that should have closed the inning, but Jurges erred. That filled the bases and brought up Lombardi, another gentleman given to boisterous hitting. Bush suppressed him on a grounder to Billy Herman. Bush also had two on with one out in the sixth, but English fixed that by starting a double play.

Two doubles promoted the Cubs' second run in the home third. English sent Roettger clear back to the left field wall for a fly and Billy Herman followed with a twisting two bagger past first base. A fly ball put Cuyler out of the way and Stephenson then lined low to left for two bases, W. Herman scoring. It was just matter of Reds' luck, if there is such a thing, that Stephenson didn't get home. Barton whacked a high bounding grounder along the first base line but Hendrick made a blind stab

MILLER PAVES WAY TO VICTORY IN GERMAN BOUT

Does It by Paving Streets in Davenport.

Davenport, Ia., June 30.—[Special.]—Farmer Miller, king of the Golden Gloves light heavyweights, is getting into condition for the international fights at Soldiers' field July 26. To say Miller is getting into condition is another way of predicting that he will whack the daylights out of Hans Berger, the German champion.

Miller, whose name is Vernon, gets the more familiar appellation of "Farmer" quite naturally. He resides on his father's farm at Plymouth, Ill. Farm chores, strange as it may seem, aren't strenuous enough to put Miller into condition. Or perhaps he doesn't work at them diligently enough. At any rate, Vernon has come to Davenport, where he won the Golden Gloves sectional title, to work for the city on a paving crew. Except for local bouts he expects to keep at this occupation until the Golden Gloves team commences training at Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 10.

Believes in Give and Take.

More than any other amateur in Davenport ranks, or even on the 1932 Chicago intercity squad, Miller must be in condition. His style of fighting makes condition imperative, for he takes a punch to land one. He wins by outlasting an opponent. While Vernon isn't badly marked about the face and his nose remains as originally designed, he has lost several teeth which he declines to replace as long as he campaigns in the ring.

Miller is aggressive. His bobbing blond head is an easy target and he keeps it within range all the time, but for each blow received Vernon sends one back. In all of his fights when he lacked the final edge in condition he has weakened in the last round, but generally has managed to come through. He defeated Max Marek in the finals at the Stadium last March, although many would have given the C. Y. O. champion the decision because he won the last round.

Wins New York Bout.

When Miller fought at Madison Square Garden [he and Johnny Phagan, welterweight, were the only Chicago champions to win in New York], he was in much better shape. He hammered at big Walter Morris without letup. They battled toe to toe in one of the most thrilling of the 16 fights. In the last round Miller's condition pulled him through and he still was pounding away when his opponent was exhausted. If Miller successfully defends his position as 175 pound champion against Adolph Wiater of Green Bay, Wis., the other squad member, Hans Berger, the German titleholder, had best be prepared for a rip-roaring struggle.

That fight between Berger and Miller will be one of the best of the international series. It's bound to be, for neither knows about nor cares about boxing. Slugging is their game. Miller has a great competitive heart. If when his bout is called the international score is 3 bouts to 3, he's just the lad on whom you should stake your money.

Must Watch Out for Wiater.

With Wiater waiting to take his place Miller is certain to put in his best licks at the Golden Glove camp. He has been the best amateur light heavyweight in these parts for three years, and now he's eager to contribute to United States' second international victory.

"Count on me for one victory against the Germans," Miller said today. And then he went back to work hauling sand and tamping down bricks.

A CITY FARMER

7 Hits, 6 Runs in One Inning! But for What? Sox Lose, 7-6

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 30.—The suffering White Sox this afternoon indulged in a spectacular seven hit, six run fourth inning against the St. Louis Browns, but the heroic effort was not sufficient to give them their first victory of 1932 here at Sportman's park. The blast served only to tie the score, after which the Browns made one run in the same inning. This was enough for the eventual triumph, the final score being St. Louis, 7; Chicago, 6.

The big Sox inning started with a homer by Funk, one of his three hits, and was followed by five successive singles before the first putout. After the first out there was a double, but the rally ended with a double play.

A Case of Strategy.

One of the big reasons that the six run riot was not sufficient for entry in the black side of the ledger is to be found in Manager Fonseca's passion for starting Victor [Try Again] Frasier every time Victor shows up at the ball park with his glove.

Frasier was shoved onto the scene ahead of the turns of Jones and Gaston. To use the quaint parlance of baseball experts, Victor got his ears pinned back—aye, he got his ears torn off.

A walk, three doubles, and a single was the sum of what happened to Victor before the humane society took action in the first inning. Daglia went in and yielded a triple to the mess before he fanned Blaeholder to end the inning.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Sox in five games played here this season and the seventh in the last eight contests between the two teams.

Hayes Wins Error Tourney.

The Browns, in sixth place, now are a mere 11½ games ahead of the Sox, who, however, have had no luck in trying to gain on the Red Sox for last place.

The day was not entirely lost, however, for the Chicagoans rang up two more errors in their drive for a new misplay record. Selph made the first error, to tie Hayes in the June tournament at 9 each, but later on Jack drew an error to win the monthly tournament standing up.

Bad News Comes Early.

It is indeed unpleasant to recite the detail of the first inning, but we know our duty and must yield. Schulte walked to start the Brownie offensive and stopped at third when Burns doubled off the screen in right center. Campbell then doubled to right, scoring Schulte and Burns. Campbell went to third while Selph was throwing out Goslin and scored when Melillo was held to the only single of the inning. Storti lined to Kress. Then Bengough doubled off the left field wall, scoring Melillo. At this point the stretcher squad arrived for Frasier and Daglia went in for Chicago.

Peter pitched a triple ball to Levey, scoring Bengough, but Levey died on third when Blaeholder fanned. The Brownies' second inning started with Selph taking a kick at Schulte's grounder. Burns popped to Appling, but Campbell singled to center, putting Schulte on third, whence he scored while Selph was throwing out Goslin.

Sox Get Six Runs!

The next activity was the Sox's remarkable six run outbreak in the fourth. It started with Funk's homer over the right field pavillion. Hayes, Selph, Fothergill, Kress and Blue then singled successively for a net of four more runs, after which Blaeholder was

Al Carries On for Sargents; His 69 Leads Western Open

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., June 30.—Twenty-three years ago, while a professional golfer named George Sargent was winning the open championship of the United States, his year old son, Alfred, was developing his swing in the Sargent nursery, with a view to becoming a chip off the old niblick. Today George, now stationed at the East Lake course, Atlanta, Bobby Jones' golfing kindergarten, must have been pleased to learn that Alfred led the field at the end of the first 18 holes in the thirty-third annual open championship tournament of the Western Golf association at the Canterbury Golf club by shooting a 69, three under par.

Whether or not Alfred will celebrate his twenty-fourth birthday on Saturday by winning the title rests not only on his own play during the next two days but also on the efforts of fourteen other talented shooters, who either broke or matched par today.

Alfred Faces Huge Task.

It would be handsome, indeed, if Alfred, a bridegroom of three weeks and in his second year as professional at the famous Inverness club of Toledo, could sustain his deeds of today, but with such stars as Ed Dudley, the defending champion, and Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Chicago, upon his heels, it will be no small assignment.

Dudley and Cooper, along with Al Zimmerman, the 23 year old Portland, Ore., prodigy of the winter tournaments, and Waldo Crowder, a Buckeye expert from Willoughby, O., crashed into second place with 70s. And, if they aren't sufficient to deter Alfred, there is a quintet composed of Abe Espinosa and Bob MacDonald of Chicago, Denny Shute of Hudson, O., Ed Kerby of Akron, and Olin Dutra of California, all of whom committed 71s. Those who tied par for the day included Walter Hagen, Leslie Madison of Chandler, Ariz.; Roy Mangrum of Dallas, Tex.; Stanley Hancock of Northville, Mich., and Jack Thompson of Youngstown.

Low 70s Are Plentiful.

There are also a multitude of 73s, 74s, and 75s, which must be reckoned with before the three day ordeal is completed, the most notable of which are a 74 by José Jurado, who will play stooge to Hagen in their forthcoming exhibition tour, and a 75 by T. Philip Perkins, who tied for second in the recent national open.

Daly, Billiard Wizard of '80s, Dies in Pelham at 83

BARTELSTEIN'S ENTRY IS CHOICE IN SHORELAND

Sixteen Named Overnight for Arlington Stake.

The Shoreland claiming stakes, $2,500 feature at Arlington this afternoon, attracted an overnight field of 16 and it is likely that Abraham Bartelstein's entry of Hillsborough and Kibitzer will rule as the favorite. Fall Apple from C. V. Whitney's stable also will have a following, as will Burning Up, Dr. Freeland, and Lady Broadcast. The latter is asked to carry only 94 pounds, and the Lady Broadcast of old would fly a mile under that impost.

The last of the Arlington Oaks candidates reached Arlington Park yesterday when Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Parry arrived from Aqueduct. She was brought here by Marshall Lilly, for many years the most famous exercise boy in America. Charley Kurtsinger is coming from New York to ride her.

After I Say's good showing in the Ravinia purse yesterday Albert Sabath was of the opinion that his filly has a great chance to win the Oaks.

Lots of folks passed up the Democratic convention program to see Equipoise, Jamestown, and Spanish Play clash . . . Thomas J. Pendergast of Kansas City was at the track early, accompanied by his daughter, Aileen . . . They won a bet on Tred Avon . . . Mike Kruse, city clerk of New York, and Battery Dan Finn, New York county clerk, were buying tickets on Equipoise . . . Sheriff Charles Sumner of Indianapolis arrived just in time to see the big race . . . He liked Spanish Play . . . Says Arlington is the finest race track he ever visited . . . Jimmy McGill, nephew of the late Pittsburgh Phil, thought Jamestown might win . . . Col. Abe Hollow's figures convinced him Spanish Play would win . . . Willie Gerdes, another famous New York handicapper, figured it would be Spanish Play by two lengths . . . George Bollard, the big beefsteak man, moved in all his blue chips on Jamestown . . . Good Time Charley Ehegartner said he ran out of money just before the race or he would have bet on the winner . . . E. Phocian Howard, publisher of the New York Press, played a stack of blues on Equipoise . . . Old Jim Farley's split second timepiece told him Equipoise would win . . . It isn't often that watch of Old Jim's tells him a lie . . . The New Yorkers won a young fortune when C. V. Whitney's Volette beat the western champion Wise Anne in the Winnetka purse.

Dark Secret Returns 6-1 at Aqueduct

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Dark Secret, long striding son of Flying Ebony, sporting the silks of the Wheatley stable, showed the way to five high grade claimers in the mile of the Speculation handicap, feature event on the Aqueduct program today. Happy Scot, the favorite, followed the pace throughout to finish second, a length behind the winner and a similar distance in front of Tug o' War. The winner returned 6 to 1 and stepped the distance in 1:38 2-5.

The start was delayed several minutes by Renaissance and the colt was placed on the outside. At the rise of the barrier Dark Secret, with the alert Mills in the saddle, sprinted into command, with Blind Bowboy forcing the pace, Happy Scot and Tug o' War followed in close pursuit.

Jockey Mills scored his second victory of the afternoon when he piloted Marcasite to victory in the closing mile and a sixteenth gallop which engaged ten platers. Bonnie Prince, the choice, closed gamely in the final drive, but could not menace the leader. Recede saved the show. The winner closed at 4½ to 1 and stepped the route in 1:46 3-5.

SCOUTS GO DOWN TO DEFEAT BEFORE COOK'S PANCAKES

They Eat and Eat—Then Six Are Left.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Serena, Ill., June 30.—If Chicagoans should hear a triumphant din and other strange sounds from this part of the Fox river, there is no need to be alarmed. It's simply THE TRIBUNE Boy Scout canoe cruisers clashing with the Aurora Scouts in tilting, swimming, baseball, and other contests. The sun-tanned, happy go lucky boys from Chicago, traveling down the Fox in 16 foot canoes, are encamped tonight on the Aurora council's summer camp and the war is on.

The boys arrived here late in the afternoon after a delightful paddle over that part of this stream which is as rich in fascinating Indian lore as it is scenery. Following a hearty welcome from the officers of the camp the Chicago Scouts unpacked canoes, fixed up their tents for the night, and then squared away for the jamboree which will not be finished until tomorrow morning.

Pool Cheers Scouts.

There is a swimming pool in camp, so the fancy divers and breast stroke experts in our canoeing party, who have been wishing for plenty of water in which to do their stuff, are having a time all by themselves.

The Scouts left their last night's camp about 9:30 o'clock this morning, after taking their first defeat in long distance eating. It was pancake morning on the cruise. Two big buckets of hot, well browned cakes turned out on a big griddle over an open fire were placed before the 18 hungry Scouts. More than 100 of these delicious cakes submerged in maple sirup or covered with honey were tackled by the boys, but the commissary department won the match.

Although some of the Scouts put away as many as six cakes apiece, in addition to helpings of stewed prunes and at least one cup of rich cocoa, there were nine cakes left in one of the buckets, the kitchen police gang reported. It was the first time since we left Aurora last Monday that this bunch has been whipped at a meal.

One Casualty.

Last night's tenting spot was another of those almost perfect camp sites such as this beautiful stream offers to traveling canoeists. Elms four feet in diameter towered above the white mosquito nettings and little brown pup tents under which the boys slept. Behind the camp about 150 paces two clear cold springs trickled out of the rocks, and another spring brook flowed into the Fox past the tenting grounds.

However, one casualty was recorded. Jim Beard reported this morning to Head Scout Master Chet Koehler that some time during the night his mosquito netting came down and one husky Fox river mosquito kicked him on the left eyelid. He appeared at breakfast with this lid a bit off color.

Mongrel Adopts Neil.

Neil McIntosh, who slept in the open with only a netting between him and stars, experienced a thrilling moment when he dreamed the camp was being raided by prairie wolves. He woke up to find a wolf trying to get under the net. Snapping on his flashlight, Neil found the wolf was a very friendly dog that wanted to crawl in and bunk with him. Neil moved over and took in the amiable mongrel.

As soon as the short program is concluded here at Camp Marshall, the Aurora Scout camp, the Chicago canoeists will move downstream to another site, where an interesting schedule of cross-country hikes, compass work, canoe races, and exploration of caves has been arranged.

Anne Govednick Fails to Set New Swim Mark

Anne Govednick, 15 year old high school swimming star of Chisholm, Minn., swam the 220 yard breast stroke in 3 minutes and 19 seconds last night at the Illinois Women's Athletic club pool in an attempt to shatter the world's record of 3:17 1-5. Miss Govednick stopped in Chicago en route to New York, where she will compete in the Olympic trials.

In the Wake of the News

SPORTS CHATTER.

SKETCHES from Germany, published on these sporting pages, of the boxers who will engage Chicagoland's team at Soldiers' field July 26 are impressive. They might be called fear inspiring except that fear is not in the repertoire of a Chicagoland champion.

There is no question Germany is sending a good team and an experienced team. What impresses The Wake, however, more than tales of the many knockouts recorded is the age of the contestants. Apparently the invaders will average two or three years to the man more than the home boys. That may or may not prove important, but it is age at a time when age gives added weight and stamina in pugilism.

It is generally conceded that 20 to 27 is the best age in fighting, with the years above 30 adding much more in the heavier than the lighter classes. Of course, against this age advantage the Germans must overcome the handicap of traveling and sightseeing.

If Max Schmeling is a fair example of Teutonic phlegmatic temperament in the ring, these handicaps will not be as great as they would be for American boys going to Germany. Handicap of boxing away from home has been proved consistently for American amateurs in the Chicago-New York intercity bouts.

Incidentally, this is a good time to secure your tickets for these bouts if you have not already done so.

So Gene Sarazen, American and British open golf champion, is to have a manager who assures $250,000 for two years' services! Whether or not as much as $250,000 accrues in these times Gene is entitled to a manager, providing, of course, the manager's split is not too large.

Why does he need a manager? Well, a manager can bargain and proclaim his client's wares and obtain greater remuneration therefor than could the client himself. That has been proved many times in pugilism.

Take Max Schmeling and Joey Jacobs for example of managerial advantages. It was Joey's shrill and insistent screeches that caused consideration of the foul by which Max won the title, a foul true enough but one seen by only one of three ring officials there for that purpose and by not more than 10 per cent of the spectators. When Schmeling lost it was Joey who was suspended for calling the decision a "robbery," which seemed the almost universal verdict.

Ray Miller Calls Off Ross Fight; Suffers Injury

Ray Miller yesterday canceled his ten round match scheduled with Barney Ross at Sparta stadium Thursday. He received an injury while boxing Lew Massey at Pittsburgh Wednesday and will be out of the ring for five weeks, his manager said.

Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., light heavyweight, who is a member of Chicago's Golden Gloves team which will meet Germany at Soldiers' field Tuesday, July 26, is in town to develop his left hand. Denny O'Keefe, former South Chicago middleweight, is to teach him the correct way to jab and hook with his left hand at the Arcade gymnasium. He will do no boxing until the team goes to Wawasee, Ind., July 10 to start training for the international bouts. During his stay here Wiater will live with his brother at 2130 West Iowa street.

Entries Mount to 300 for Olympic Trial

Such stars as Dale Letts, Ray Conger, Tom Warne, Harold Osborne, George Simpson, Ralph Metcalfe, Eddie Tolan, E. Toppino, Lee Bartlett, and George Saling will pit their skill against competitors from all parts of the country. Winners of first, second and third places go to the final tryouts at Palo Alto, Cal.

The Cincinnati Athletic club is sending four of its stars, headed by George Simpson, who has entered the 100 meter dash. Others on its team are Rupert Beetham, an 800 meter man; Sam Stroller, hurdler, and Robert E. Lee, javelin hurler.

Peyton Glass Jr., Oklahoma Aggie star, will be seen in the 100 and 200 meter dashes, and Amsden Oliver, interscholastic high school champion hurdler of the Ohio association of the A. A. U., will perform in the 400 meter hurdles.

Max Conrad, who took part in the decathlon tryouts last Saturday, has entered the high jump under the colors of the Los Angeles A. C. Darrell Jones, who does 6 foot 6 inches in this same event, will come here under the auspices of the L. B. Harrison club of Cincinnati.

PARK GOLF FINAL MAY PIT HUSBAND AGAINST WIFE

The anticipation of a lively match, with husband and wife meeting for the championship, is expected to attract a crowd to the finals of the mixed tournament for members of the Lincoln Park Men's Golf club and the Lincoln Park Women's Golf club. The final rounds of the match will be played Sunday and Monday.

The players are competing for the Albert J. Pixley trophy in an annual tournament in which members of the two clubs compete, handicapped on a basis to make their final scores even.

Only one woman is left in the contest, Mrs. Loren Darr having defeated Ruth Grant, 1 up, in the semi-final. The 36 hole match during the holiday week-end will feature Mrs. Darr against Sam Taylor and L. P. Fiske against Mr. Darr. The Darrs are favorites to win and meet in the 18 hole playoff for the trophy

Wimbledon Picks Vines for Title as He Routs Crawford

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, June 30.—Ellsworth Vines Jr., United States champion, was being hailed as the greatest player seen on the Wimbledon courts after his semi-final victory in the men's singles this afternoon.

The lanky American, driving with terrific force and pancaking the balls on the soft and rainsoaked turf, either fore or backhand, routed Jack Crawford of Australia, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3. Vines' service was unbeatable and he used his long arms like a whip in lashing the ball to Crawford's unprotected back court.

H. W. [Bunny] Austin, British No. 1 player, beat the Japanese, Jiro Satoh, 7-5, 6-2, 6-1, in the other semi-final. Vines will play Austin for the title Saturday. The odds on Austin beating him are too long for most Wimbledon betters to take.

The women's singles final became an all American affair through the 6-2, 6-0 defeat that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody inflicted on Mary Heeley, statuesque English girl. Mrs. Moody and Vines withdrew from the mixed doubles today.

Vines allowed Crawford only 14 points in the first set. His service drives and placements were deadly. Crawford bettered his average with 17 points in the second set, but they were gathered with his own service in the fifth game, after which Vines led, 4-1, and in the sixth when the first deuce of the match was called. Neither reached the net, Vines because it never was necessary and Crawford because he was not permitted to play any kind of a game at all. The match required only 47 minutes.

Mrs. Moody took only 27 minutes to beat Miss Heeley. Although she made several long rallies, Miss Heeley was never near finding an opening. Mrs. Moody and Helen Jacobs, a second Californian already in the final bracket, also met in the 1929 final.

The only American in the mixed doubles is Miss Elizabeth Ryan. She paired with the Spanish champion, Enrique Maier, to win in two sets. They will meet Henri Cochet and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall in the semi-finals tomorrow. Harry Hopman of Australia and Jeanne Sigart of Belgium will oppose Jacques Brugnon and Mme. Rene Mathieu of France in the other semi-final.

THE dawn of a new era of American prosperity can come only as the result of a restoration of public confidence . . . which will stimulate the buying of merchandise and send men back to work.

When a man is induced by a "bargain price" to purchase an article of poor quality and thereby wastes his money, his confidence becomes weakened and his will to buy anything becomes less.

This Company considers that its part in restoring confidence is to make Exide quality and dependability available to every car owner at a price sufficiently low to discourage the purchase of batteries of questionable quality.

Therefore, instead of increasing the price of Exide Batteries at a time when no one could criticize us for doing so, we announce a reduction. On July 1st and thereafter, until further notice, you can buy a genuine 13-plate Exide Battery for as little as $6.75 . . . the lowest price at which this battery has ever been offered.

In announcing this new price reduction, the makers of Exide Batteries pledge continued strict adherence to the high standards of manufacture which have made "Exide" a synonym for "Dependability" for nearly half a century

When you equip your car with an Exide you are doing your utmost to protect yourself and family from battery trouble. If your battery has given indications of weakness, don't wait for a complete failure. Go to the Exide dealer and buy an Exide NOW.

Trouble Starts Early.

Sargent ran into trouble on the second hole, where he hooked his drive to the trees and dropped his second in a trap. He came back with two successive birdies, however, dropping his iron shot at the sixth on the green for two putts and four feet from the pin on the seventh. He finished the first nine with 35, one under par. He collected a birdie at the eleventh by duplicating his pitch at the seventh, and then ran down a twenty footer at the fourteenth for another under par hole.

He scored his fifth birdie at the 588 yard 16th when he was on in three six feet from the cup, but went one over on the next, at which he hooked his tee shot and wound up with a 34, two under par.

Dudley, playing the same methodical game which won him the title, at Dayton last year, concluded the first nine with a 37, due to difficulty in straightening out his tee shots. He had nary a birdie until the 11th, which he deuced, and the 12th, where he had a three. He sank a 15 footer on the home green for another birdie and an incoming nine of 33, three under par.

Cooper Gets Away Fast.

Cooper appeared to be in a fair way to lead the entire field by the manner in which he began his round, but a trio of three putt greens—the 9th, 11th, and 18th—prevented him from counting at least a 68. He dropped a four footer for a birdie at the third, was on the sixth in two for another, and finished the nine with a 34.

He dropped one in from twelve feet out at the 10th, and chipped another stroke off par at the 12th, where he laid his second shot five feet to the ice of the pin. The three putted 18th cost him a chance to tie Sargent for the lead.

Zimmerman, the prodigy from the northwest, birdied the first with a five foot putt, and repeated the performance on the fifth. He was embarrassed at the sixth, when his tee shot wandered to the forestry, and wound up with a 6. He had a short putt on the eighth for another birdie. He sank a 15 footer at the 15th for his third birdie and dropped in a 30 foot green shot at the next hole for a par 5. He missed a four foot putt on the seventeenth for another birdie.

Crowder crowded into a tie for second place by rallying on the second nine for 33, after doing the opening section in 37. He birdied the 7th, 9th and 11th and then came through with the only eagle of the day at the 13th.

Indians Beat Tigers; No. 14 for Ferrell

Cleveland, O., June 30.—(AP)—Wes Ferrell, Cleveland right hander, did a good job of pitching and a better job of hitting as he turned in his 14th victory today over Detroit, 7 to 4. His double and two singles figured heavily in the Indians' scoring, his final hit driving in two runs in a seventh inning rally which produced the winning margin. The Tigers had tied the score in their half of the inning on home runs by Gehringer and Webb.

Sox Lose to Browns Again Despite Rally

yanked and Kimsey went in. Appling filed to Campbell for the first out, then Grube doubled to right to drive in Blue with the tying run, the sixth of the inning. Sullivan batted for Daglia and lined to Goslin and Grube, who apparently had lost track of the proceedings, was doubled off second.

Faber started pitching in the fourth and fanned Schulte. Burns then got credit for a double after some poor handling of what should have been a single. He held on while Campbell filed to Fothergill, but scored when Goslin bounced a single past Selph.

In the fifth, singles by Funk and Selph and an infield out had runners on third and second, but Kress' response was a foul to the catcher for the third out.

Faber led off the seventh with a single to right and went to third on Funk's third hit, a double to right. But Hayes popped to Melillo for the first out and Selph tapped to Stortl, who threw out Faber at the plate. Fothergill walked, filling the bases and this time Kress grounded to Levey to force Fothergill at second.

The Browns had the bases full with one out in the eighth, but the Sox got out of the hole with no runs being tallied. In the Sox ninth Funk walked with one down and stole second, but Hayes lined to Melillo and Funk was doubled off second to end the game.

Seven Doubles and Homer Make Victory Easy.

with his bare hand and knocked down the ball. He recovered in time to make a profitable peg to Lucas, who covered first.

Trouble for Mr. Lucas.

Lucas cracked the whip and the Cubs jumped in the fourth and fifth, but they more than made amends for this in the profitable sixth. Cuyler opened with a drive which should have been held to a single, but Crabtree played it badly and Babe Herman didn't think to back him up. This sort of work helped Cuyler to a triple. Stephenson then walked and Barton lined to Crabtree, Cuyler scoring after the catch. Stephenson registered on Grimm's double to right center and Grimm jogged home on Hartnett's double which bounced off the tin fence in center. The riot then subsided.

After being manhandled as he was in the sixth Lucas probably didn't figure the Cubs would break out again. But they did in the eighth. There wasn't a homer in the collection of hits so Grimm supplied this deficiency by slamming the ball over the right field screen. Hartnett then hoisted a high fly to right and Babe Herman put on some of his good old fashioned Brooklyn outfielding. The ball almost plunked him on the back of the neck and Hartnett took second on the blunder. A single by Jurges scored him.

10th Victory Is Warneke's Goal Today

Lon Warneke, the proud owner of nine victories against three defeats for the season, will try to stretch his winning total into double figures in the second of the set with the Reds this afternoon. Ben Frey will be the Cincinnati nominee.

So that Clarence Rowland's Reading club wouldn't suffer too much by the recall of Vin Barton, the Cubs shipped Lance Richbourg to him yesterday. Richbourg is subject to a 24 hour call.

The women who want them now may make applications for tickets for the ladies' day game of July 8. Applicants are limited to one ticket and requests must be made by mail and include self-addressed envelope with three cent stamp. They should be addressed "Ladies' Day Ticket Office, Wrigley Field." Tax tickets must be purchased at the park.

The Cubs will have to stick close to their jobs Sunday and Monday. There'll be a Sabbath double header here with the Pirates and the two teams then jump to Pittsburgh for morning and afternoon games on the Fourth. Present plans call for Malone and Grimes pitching the Sunday bargain.

Chick Hafey, the Reds' star slugger, probably will be out for another week. He has been an invalid since May 31, when he contracted a severe case of flu.

Ump Donnelly must have been thinking of home cooking or something in the seventh. Cuyler grounded to Grantham, who displayed no haste in making his throw. Cuyler was over the bag before the ball reached Hendrick but Donnelly had his mind made up in advance and Cuyler was called out.

U. S. TREASURY SUFFERS FROM 3 BILLION SPREE

Closes Worst Peace Year in History.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Today the United States treasury begins a new year with a batch of new resolutions and the hangover from a three billion dollar spree.

At midnight last night the treasury ended the worst peacetime year in its history. When the books were closed it was approximately 2 billion 900 million dollars in the red.

In the preceding year the deficit was about 900 million dollars and for the year ended June 30, 1930, there was a 183 million dollar surplus, the last of eleven consecutive years of surpluses.

The 2 billion 900 million dollar deficit for the year ended yesterday came as a result of an increase of 20 per cent in federal government expenditures and a drop of 33 per cent in receipts.

Seeks to Narrow Gap.

It was to narrow this gap between income and outgo that the 1932 tax bill just enacted was devised. This bill, the treasury estimates, will add $1,118,500,000 to revenues. It is not expected to do the whole job. Nearly a half billion dollars allocated to the sinking fund will not be taken from current receipts. Curtailment of expenditures, the treasury hopes, will take care of the remainder.

And so the nation emerges from a year in which the federal government increased the public debt by spending nearly three billion dollars more than it received, and it enters a new year in which strenuous effort will be made to keep in the black by wringing more than a billion in additional taxes from emaciated incomes.

It is not improbable that when this depression has become history economists will find in the treasury figures the reason for the nation's tardy recovery.

Whether the tax load is sufficiently heavy to outweigh influences leading to recovery it is impossible to determine. There have been of late some encouraging developments, notably increases in prices of certain commodities.

Then, too, inventories are abnormally low, so low that any real buying would soon leave bare shelves.

Here Is Illustration.

"I bought a pair of shoes at a leading store the other day," writes a business executive. "I picked a six dollar pair—in other words, a very popular line. I wear a 10-C, a very popular size. As I thought the shoes were pretty good for the money, I decided to take two pair. They did not have them. They only had one pair.

"It seems to me that when merchants with the overhead that they have are sailing that close to the wind they have reduced efficiency to absurdity. In other words, advertising and rent and overhead cannot be carried on as thin a line of merchandise as they hold.

"My wife bought some cheap buttons which are sold at twenty cents a hundred, at another store. She decided to buy a hundred as the kids were always pulling them off their knickers and it is a good idea to have some in the house.

Gives Entire Stock.

"They gallantly gave her their entire stock, which was fifty, registered a ten cent purchase, and the deal was closed. You can't pay rents on that kind of operation.

"Of course, I do not want to tell anybody how to run his own business, and, with the collapse in values and the frenzy to liquidate, I suppose a store cannot make enough money by operation to offset its shrinkage in inventory, if it is large."

Whether the fifty-button merchant and the one pair shoe dealer are justified or not is beside the question.

BONDHOLDERS TO TAKE OVER FRISCO RAILWAY

Offer Plan to Avert Receivership.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today prevented a receivership of the St. Louis San Francisco Railway company and announced that plans are under way for bondholders to take over management of the line for an indefinite period.

The commission approved an immediate reconstruction corporation loan of $3,390,000 to meet interest and taxes due tomorrow, saying this would prevent a receivership.

Feared Receivership.

In approving a previous loan of $1,800,000, the commission had made a condition that steps be taken to reduce fixed interest charges. A plan has been worked out, it was disclosed today, whereby bank loans totaling $5,974,722 are to be extended 10 years and the interest rate reduced from 6 to 3 per cent. Payment of interest on bonds is deferred 5 to 10 years and a new bond issue of $25,000,000 is to be put out which will have precedence over all other bonds except the underlying issues of two roads incorporated in the system.

Must Have Hearings.

The commission did not formally approve the plan because hearings must be held. It did, however, say the plan and its support "furnish reasonable assurance that the ends desired can largely be accomplished."

It added that in return for foregoing interests on their holdings, "it is expected an arrangement will be made whereby the management will be in the hands of the bondholders so long as the interest charges are deferred."

INVENTORS FIND NEW METHODS AS TRADE LAGS

New York, June 30.—It is frequently assumed that the present surplus manufacturing plant and equipment will have to be absorbed before improvement in demand for industrial products can be translated into orders for machinery and new construction. This assumption ignores a vital factor—obsolescence, says the Standard Statistics company of New York in a bulletin which continues in part:

"During a depression, inventive genius goes on developing new methods, improved products, and better manufacturing equipment, despite the prevailing lack of suitable markets. The resulting stock of new ideas will be turned to practical use in the early stages of the upswing, if for no other reason than that those concerns which fail to employ them will be severely handicapped by high production costs.

"Rates of present output to rated productive capacity are thus quite unreliable; much of the facilities included in such computations will never again be put to use in the production of goods."

Cleveland Bank Will Make Home Loans to Customers

Cleveland, O., June 30.—(AP)—J. R. Kraus, chairman of the board of the Union Trust company, today announced the bank is prepared to make construction loans to home builders who are its customers. This is in line with the government's efforts to put bank credit to work to stimulate business and employment. General improvement in credit conditions since the first of the year, and the belief that the time is favorable for at least a moderate recovery in residential construction led to the bank's decision, a statement said.

NATIONAL ELEC. POWER PUT INTO RECEIVERSHIP

It's Part of Middle West's System.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Receivers were appointed yesterday for the National Electric Power company, largest of the subsidiary holding companies of the Middle West Utilities system. The concern has assets in excess of $600,000,000. The affairs of the firm's principal subholding company, the National Public Service corporation, also were placed under the jurisdiction of the courts.

Coincident with the receivership step came the announcement that the Central and Southwest Utilities company, second ranking subholding company of Samuel Insull's ambitious enterprise, has cleared up its bank debts.

The passing of National Electric Power into the hands of the court follows an unsuccessful attempt to obtain agreement of bank creditors to a program which would have avoided the necessity of receivership.

Four Named Receivers.

Charles A. McCulloch, co-receiver of Middle West Utilities, was one of the administrators named by the court. The other receivers are Gordon Auchincloss, a director of the Chase National Bank of New York, and Philip S. Clifford, an attorney of Portland, Me. The unsuccessful attempt to stave off the court action was made by Mr. McCulloch and his co-receiver, Edward N. Hurley. Mr. Auchincloss and Mr. McCulloch were also made receivers of National Public Service, along with Henry W. Anderson.

The immediate cause of receivership was the inability of the company to meet July 1 interest charges on the 5 per cent debentures of which there are $9,708,500 outstanding.

Make Survey for Bankers.

Recently a comprehensive survey of the company's standing was completed by an independent concern, Stone & Webster. The study was made at the suggestion of the New York bank creditors and agreed to by the receivers of the parent company. An appraisal of the asset value of the collateral held by the banks and the earning power of the various properties in the group were made by the engineering firm.

Upon completion of this survey Messrs. Hurley and McCulloch presented a plan to the bank creditors for taking care of the pressing financial problems and avoiding court action. The plan was designed to give the receivers time to work out a permanent reorganization. The proposal was turned down by the banks. Receivers explained that the only alternative to prevent disintegration of the system was by the receivership route.

The operations of National Electric Power and its subsidiary, National Public Service, are located largely in

Lackawanna Road Fails to Vote Usual Dividend

Directors of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad took no action yesterday at their deferred meeting in New York for the consideration of 1932 payments. In December the company announced that the board would take no action before the June meeting, and failure to declare a dividend is the equivalent of omission. That is the first time the Lackawanna has been off the dividend paying list in more than fifty-five years.

The last payment on the stock was 50 cents a share on Oct. 20, 1931, and in the two preceding quarters of last year payments were at a $4 annual rate, as against the $6 rate, which had been maintained since the payment of a 100 per cent stock dividend in 1921. In January of last year the company omitted the payment of the $1 a year extra dividend, which had been paid from 1925 to 1929 inclusive.

Directors of Swift International yesterday voted to maintain the $3 annual dividend rate through the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of $1.50 a share. The dividend is payable Aug. 15 to stockholders of record July 15. The company which operates in South America and Australia is an affiliate of Swift & Co. Recent report on earnings showed favorable comparison with last year. An extra dividend of $1 was paid by the company last October.

In reference to the reduction of the General Electric company, Ltd., dividend from 8 to 10 per cent, Sir Hugo Hirst, chairman, said at the annual meeting in London, "I am sure that you will agree that the preservation of our internal strength is of the utmost importance."

Directors of the Hathaway Bakeries, Inc., yesterday took no action on the class B dividend, due at this time. The stock has been on an annual basis of 50 cents a share.

Litt Brothers, Inc., deferred action on the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the cumulative preferred stock, due at this time.

C. & E. I. Chicago-St. Louis Train Will Be Improved

Regular equipment of the La Salle, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway's day train between Chicago and St. Louis, which is now being air conditioned, will be returned to service about July 15. Equipment of the night train, the Dearborn, will be precooled in the near future.

WALL ST. ENDS 6 MOS.' TRADE IN SORRY SHAPE

Prices Scrape Lows for Bear Market.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 30.—It was a pretty sorry period the stock market put to the first half of the year today. The close found prices generally dragging the low levels of the long bear movement, with interest negligible and business almost at a standstill.

List Starts Bravely.

The list started off bravely enough and observers got the impression that the overnight news from Lausanne, Chicago, and London telling respectively of revived hopes of a settlement of the reparations problem, after a

ENGLAND PLANS REFINANCING OF BIG WAR LOANS

Bank Lowers Rate and Stocks Advance.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 30.—Debate in the house of commons was dramatically adjourned tonight to allow Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, who made a spectacular dash from Lausanne, to "make a statement of great importance." It was the announcement of the long foreseen, imperative but delicate conversion operation to reduce the interest on the the British public debt. It was regarded as assisted by cut in the Bank of England's rediscount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent. The London stock market was favorably affected.

The British treasury plans to save $115,000,000 [at par] in the next fiscal year through a reduction of the rate on the 5 per cent war loan issue amounting at par to over $10,500,000,000. The new rate is 3½ per cent and the gross saving will amount to $150,000,000, but there will be a loss of $35,000,000 on the income tax account.

Urges Close Coöperation.

"I am sure," Chamberlain said, "that every one who may be contemplating the issue of new capital in the market in the early future will forebear from coming forward in the weeks while this great operation is proceeding and that the authorities of the city—British Wall street—will cooperate in this necessary object.

"I should add that the sale of savings certificates [by the postoffice] will be temporarily suspended as from this evening, but as we have no intention of abandoning that valuable method of borrowing, new certificates will be placed on sale after a short interval.

"My preparations have been proceeding for many weeks, but the essential need for secrecy has prevented me from printing any of the many millions forms required.

To Issue 15 Million Forms.

"With the willing coöperation of the Bank of England I propose to attempt the gigantic task of printing 15,000,000 forms and of dispatching them by post in nearly 3,000,000 envelopes within the space of twenty-four hours from now."

What the scheme amounts to is this. The government is prepared to redeem the entire issue next Dec. 1. It is hoped, however, that the holders will not apply for redemption, but will continue with the loan at lower interest rates. To encourage this, there will be a one per cent cash bonus for all holders of five per cent war loans who signify their acceptance of the government's terms before the end of July.

Claims World Record.

Chamberlain characterized the project as the "largest operation of its kind ever undertaken by this or any other country." He asked a swift response "so that the world may be shown once again the unshakable determination of this great nation to fight its way through its troubles."

The first reduced dividend will be paid on June 1, 1933.

"Up to Dec. 1, 1952, five years later than the latest date for the repayment of the loan under the original prospectus," he said, "the government will forego all right to redeem the loan. After that date the government will reserve the right to repay the loan at any time either in a single operation or by installments."

Chamberlain estimated the holders of the loan number 3,000,000. The savings are equivalent to the 2½ per cent standard rate income tax.

The new savings certificates will not go on sale immediately but will be issued at 20 per cent.

Chamberlain's sudden appearance in the commons preceded a cabinet meeting in the prime minister's room. The chancellor will return to Lausanne tomorrow.

Rock Island Makes Move for Further Money Saving

A reorganization of the personnel of the operating department of the Rock Island lines was announced yesterday by L. C. Fritch, vice president. The change involves the abolition of some positions and the consolidation of others. The changes are similar to those recently made by other roads in the interest of economy.

Among the offices abolished are the general managers positions in the first and second districts. H. L. Reed, formerly general manager at Des Moines, was made general manager with jurisdiction over the entire system.

WILLARD TELLS RAILWAY FIGHT IN MOTOR ERA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 30.—Factors "closely akin to subsidies" operating in favor of competitive forms of transportation adversely affected the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1931. That was charged by Daniel Willard, its president, in his annual report. While that report shows the average distance of movement of both passengers and freight on railroads is increasing, it conversely shows that competitors are gaining more short haul traffic.

Mr. Willard asserted that, in common with other industries, the B. & O.'s revenues were reduced by the "unprecedented decline in trade and commerce."

Some Subsidized Competition.

"Earnings were also adversely affected," he asserted, "by the continued more or less unrestricted and unregulated competition of other forms of transportation operating in some instances under circumstances closely akin to subsidies. The decline in revenue necessitated drastic curtailment of operating expenses, and every effort is being made, through further economies, to offset, in so far as may be, the effect of the conditions now generally prevailing.

"It has not been possible, to overcome entirely the decrease in earnings through a corresponding reduction in operating expenses."

"The revenue from freight traffic was $131,977,795, constituting 83.2 per cent of all revenue, and was $41,728,541 under last year, or a decrease of 24 per cent. The revenue freight carried amounted to 68,244,961 tons, being 23,662,659 tons, or 25.7 per cent, less than 1930. The decrease is reflected in practically every important commodity carried by the company—viz.: Products of agriculture, 8.3 per cent; animals and products, 7.9 per cent; products of mines, 26.5 per cent; products of forests, 32.9 per cent; manufactures and miscellaneous, 27.3 per cent, and less than carload shipments, 17 per cent. The average distance each revenue ton was carried rose from 187.1 miles in 1930 to 194.2 miles in 1931, an increase of 7.1 miles, or 3.8 per cent.

Cites Transit Evolution.

"In addition to the reduction in traffic incident to the general curtailment of business, travel by motor coaches, privately owned automobiles, and other modes of transportation continue to exert a depressing effect on the passenger revenues of railroad companies generally. Revenue from the carriage of passengers amounted to $14,801,546 in 1931, constituting but 9.3 per cent of all revenues, and was $3,766,075, or 20.2 per cent less than 1930.

"Revenue passengers carried during the year 1931 numbered 5,188,855, being 1,954,503, or 27.3 per cent, less passengers carried than last year. The average distance each passenger was carried was 100 miles, an increase over 1930 in average distance carried of 12.5 miles, or 14.3 per cent."

Cites Safety of Operation.

The report notes that the Baltimore and Ohio carried 172,641,678 passengers from 1920 to 1931 without a fatality.

"The continuing decline in passenger traffic," remarked Mr. Willard, "has occasioned deep concern, and intensive study is being devoted to devising means to offset the effect of the decrease in the business by endeavoring to recover and hold the traffic with improved service and equipment and by the elimination wherever practicable of unremunerative train and car mileage. During the year 1931 passenger train miles were reduced 12.1 per cent, as compared with 1930, but having regard to public convenience it has not been possible as yet to eliminate all unremunerative service."

Follows Expansion Policy.

To the ambitious expansion program which the companies followed in recent years even after the depression had settled over the country may be laid the responsibility for the present situation.

It was the expansion of National Electric Power in New Jersey and other eastern states that inspired the widely circulated stories that Insull was invading the domain of the J. P. Morgan & Co. utility enterprises. The stories grew more fanciful with each retelling until Insull and Morgan were in a financial death struggle with each other for control of territory in which to exploit utilities.

It was a financial death struggle for Insull. To that extent the story had a real foundation. In its effort to capture desirable utility properties the Insull companies contracted heavy bank debts which paved the way for the present receivership.

Insull saw the depression as an opportunity to obtain additional properties at what seemed attractive prices. He failed to reckon the length of the stringent credit period.

Empire in Thirty States.

The load of bank debt could not be liquidated by the offering of long term bonds or stocks. This method had previously been the magic by which Insull had expended his empire into thirty states and over the border into Canada.

The burden of bank debt steadily has grown more onerous. At the close of 1931 National Electric Power has $27,756,661 notes payable to banks.

Most of them were secured by collateral. This collateral represented stocks and bonds of subsidiaries. Possession of those stocks by the banks now give them a powerful voice in the direction of the companies. Total current liabilities of National Electric Power were $40,759,210 compared with current assets of only $22,757,500. The report plainly indicated that unless a plan was worked out to meet the financial problems the company was headed for the courts.

The situation has recently become acute, because of omission of dividends by several of the subsidiaries as a result of reduced earnings. Thus the source of revenue of the holding company began to dry up. Receivership became a necessity.

Action Fails to Surprise.

Placing of National Electric Power and its subsidiary in receivership came as no surprise. A sweeping reorganizing and scaling down of the financial superstructure of the Middle West system has been regarded as inevitable for some time. The future of the security holders of the top holding companies is not bright. The farther down the line from the top companies the stockholder is the better his prospects are.

Officials are hopeful that it will be possible to hold together the eastern group of properties under receivership until a thorough going reorganization can be effected. Such a reorganization probably will be a matter of years.

Properties of the entire system will be sorted. Eventually some of the operating units will be disposed of. Sale of some of the properties of the eastern companies at reasonable prices would do much to strengthen the position of the holding company.

James C. Kennedy, president, said yesterday that company and its subsidiaries have paid off $935,000 in bank loans in the last few days. This step completes the retirement of the bank indebtedness of all companies in the group, he stated.

Since the beginning of the year the company has paid off $1,592,500 of bank loans. The liquidation has been accomplished without offering of new securities, Mr. Kennedy pointed out.

HAY DOLLAR LOWER

Despite the fact that receipts during the current week have been the smallest on the crop, the market showed no response and quotations generally are down $1 per ton on all grades of timothy or its mixtures with clover or grass as well as the clear clover. The Thursday run was only 1 car. The car of new crop clover which arrived on Wednesday has not been sold yet and the local commission house trade joins in urging against the consignment or shipment of new crop hay to Chicago under present conditions.

WHEAT ERRATIC, WITH DECEMBER CLOSING HIGHER

Some of Other Futures Suffer Declines.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

General evening up was under way in the July deliveries of grain yesterday with scattered longs selling the nearby future and in many instances reinstating by purchases of the distant months.

With a triple holiday ahead the trade showed little disposition to get far from shore on either side. A good part of the day's trade was either in evening up operations or in spreading between the various deliveries.

Wheat Market Is Erratic.

The wheat market was decidedly erratic. Fairly general buying came into the deferred deliveries at the start on reports of heavy rains in parts of Oklahoma and in southern Kansas, but the bulge which carried the December up 1c to a high of 54¾c was short lived.

Selling pressure quickly developed and the market reacted as quickly as it had advanced. A good part of the trade during the day following the opening advance was within a range of ½c.

Final trades were ¼c lower to ⅜c higher with the December showing the most strength. Old July closed at 47¾@47¼c; old September, 50½@50¾c, and December, 53⅞@54c.

Spring Wheat Crop Large.

The trade is looking for the private crop estimates to be given out at 10 a. m. Chicago time today to suggest a large crop of spring wheat. A yield somewhat in excess of the average would be around 250,000,000 bu. The Van Dusen, Harrington company; the Cargill Commission company and the Monarch Elevator company reports issued at Minneapolis all commented on the excellent outlook and were unanimous in the belief that if present conditions were maintained until harvest, there would be a large or bumper crop. Weather conditions of the next two or three weeks are expected to determine the final outcome.

There is a tendancy shown in some quarters to comment more freely on the development of black rust in the northwest, especially in parts of South Dakota, but it is still too early for the wheat to show any damage of consequence. The grasshopper menace according to well posted northwestern interests is not likely to cause more than relatively small damage.

Europe After Wheat.

An official estimate placed the Russian spring wheat acreage at 53,000,000 acres, compared with 63,000,000 acres in 1931, and 59,000,000 acres in 1930, and unfavorable weather reports came from some of the largest producing sections. However, the trade paid little attention to the sharp decrease in the acreage either here or abroad. Liverpool was ¼@⅜c per bu lower with a limited demand for cash grain from mills. The July there closed at 51c. Winnipeg reported a fair export business under way, but lost ¼@⅜c for the day with July at 53¼c in Canadian funds. The dominion government bonus of 5c per bu delivered at interior points expired yesterday.

July sold down off ⅝c yesterday to 27¾c, a figure which equalled the inside figure of the season. Scattered liquidation was under way, but there was buying of the nearby future against sales of the deferred which limited the decline in the former delivery. Closing trades were ¼@⅜c lower with July, 28@28¼c; September, 30⅞c, and December, 31⅝c.

The hog corn price ratio has widened very rapidly of late and based on the top figure at the yards yesterday it showed a difference of 18 to 1, which is regarded as abnormal, compared with 11 to 1 on May 27. Buenos Aires July corn was around 2½@2⅝c over Chicago yesterday, and it was claimed there were inquiries for export corn here within ⅝c of a working basis.

New Low on Rye.

July oats and July rye sold at new low figures for the season yesterday with the former touching 18⅞c at the opening, or ⅝c under Thursday's finish, and the lowest figure since 1897. The lowest price known in the local market is 14½c made in September, 1896. July rye was 27½c at the inside, a new low since previous to 1884. Liquidation was responsible for the break in both grains. Oats rallied quickly and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher with July, 19¾c; September, 19¾c, and December, 21⅞c. Rye was ¼c higher at the close with July, 27¾c; September, 31⅝c, and December, 34¾c. Harvesting of rye is expected to start in the northwest within 10 days.

STOCK AND BOND PAYMENTS PUT AT $810,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 30.—A great shifting about of funds between banks and from corporations to holders of their stocks and bonds has been in progress for the last few days and is culminating today and tomorrow.

July 1 is the second largest settlement day of the year. Corporations have been assembling funds in banks of New York against which to draw checks for dividend and interest payments estimated at close to $810,000,000, of which about $255,000,000 will be in dividends and about $555,000,000 in interest.

This causes a heavy flow of corporation deposits into New York banks, bringing a wave of money from banks in other cities and the interior of the country.

This is in part offset by a counter outward flow of funds, due largely to banks in the smaller cities drawing down their deposits in New York banks in order to strengthen their cash position in preparation for a call from the controller of the currency of their position as of, or about, June 30.

WHEAT CROP FIGURES MAY BE INCREASED

Crop estimates on wheat and the coarse grains made by Chicago statisticians are due at 10 o'clock today. Expectations are that winter wheat figures will be raised 10 to 20 millions or more over the government returns of 411,000,000 bu last month.

That would compare with 433,000,000 bu by private returns and a final last year of 787,000,000 bu. Spring wheat estimates are 265,000,000 to 280,000,000 bu, compared with 253,000,000 bu as the average in June and 105,000,000 bu harvested last year. For the five preceding years the average was 271,000,000 bu. Spring wheat acreage harvested last year was 13,940,000 acres.

Improvement in winter wheat is reported in parts of Kansas and Nebraska and reductions from last month in the soft winter wheat sections of the middle west and in Washington.

Estimates on corn acreage are for an increase of 3 to 5 per cent, or around 107,700,000 acres to 110,000,000 acres, with condition about an average. The range in the last few years has been 83 to 91.

Oats average last month was 1,298,000,000 bu. Last year's crop was 1,112,000,000 bu.

MEAT PRICES HIGHER; HOG PRODUCTS LEAD

A sharp advance in hog prices, increases in the wholesale prices of pork cuts and some other meats, a brisk demand for smoked picnic meats, and an improvement in the price of lard were some of the outstanding features of the meat trade during June, according to a review of the live stock and meat situation issued today by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

The increase in wholesale pork prices was not proportionately as great as the increase in hog prices. The wholesale prices of dressed beef improved during the month, showing the greatest increase in the last two weeks. Cattle prices also advanced.

The demand for dressed lamb was somewhat better in June than in May. Wholesale prices of all grades moved upward during the middle of the month but moved lower as the month closed. Prices of live lambs improved during the greater part of the month, but as the period closed, some prices declined.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE STOCKS

Cattle and hogs moved up in price again on abbreviated supplies yesterday, the rank and file of steers going to the highest levels since January, while top hogs made the $5.00 line, standing within 10c of the highest since middle of last October. The current advance in hogs is the most sensational recorded in recent years, the more so in view of the fact that demand is increasing rather than diminishing on the upturn.

The top for hogs yesterday was 51 per cent above the low time on May 28, while the average shows a gain of 44 per cent, compared with the low daily average on June 4. The value of a carload of hogs has increased $250 in less than a month.

Eastern Shippers Buy.

Trading in hogs showed a tendency to drag for a short time at the opening yesterday, but this sign of weakness vanished with the appearance of several big eastern shipping orders comparatively early in the afternoon. Later advances of 5@10c were general, with action best on closing rounds. The extreme top showed 5c gain at $5.00, while the general average came up 5c to $4.55. A week ago today top hogs sold at $4.25, and two weeks ago the top was $3.95. Light and medium weight butchers are scarce, and these have been leading the upturn for exactly three weeks.

Packing grades and extremely heavy butchers have come up the least, resulting in a wider spread in prices. The range yesterday was widest of the year. Prime 225@250 lb butchers sold at $4.85@5.00, while 260@300 lb averages brought $4.60@4.90. Large local packers were more aggressive, and only a short holdover remained at the close. Fresh pork loins sold up to 18c, or 10c per pound above the winter's low spot.

Cattle came through yesterday's lively session, with price gains of mostly 15@25c considering the liberal water-fills taken by stock immediately after being unloaded from trains. Buyers were on hand early and trading started as soon as cattle reached the pens. Optimistic reports from the hog alleys added to the strength. Until recently hogs had served as a sort of ballast for the cattle market, but lately there is little complaint of competition from low priced pork among beef wholesalers.

Advancing hog prices now are bolstering the cattle market. Best grades of steers and yearlings advanced 25@50c during the week, with some of the medium to good grades showing even more gain. Choice 870@1,437 lb steers held the top at $8.50. Bulk of steers sold at $6.50@8.10. Cows and heifers ruled stronger again. A few head of yearling heifers reached a new top at $7.60. Calves were slow and steady.

Lambs Sell Steady.

Yesterday's lamb market was a slow and uninteresting affair that wound up about in line with the average of the preceding session. Packers are finding a comparatively slow demand for dressed lamb, the opposite of conditions in beef and pork markets the last few days. Live lambs sold largely at $6.00 and below, only a few lots of handpicked natives to city butchers and yard traders reaching the top of $6.50. Matured stock sold steady and yearlings were weak.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,500 cattle, 14,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, against 1,723 cattle, 10,149 hogs, and 7,500 sheep the previous Friday and 1,243 cattle, 7,479 hogs and 7,455 sheep a year ago.

COTTON ADVANCES OVER ONE DOLLAR A BALE

A more active trade with a stronger tone and general evening up before the holidays gave cotton markets today decidedly better feeling and prices closed around the best of the day, also the highest on the present upturn, which is more than $3.00 a bale inside of a month. At the close, futures in Chicago were up 15 to 24 points and other markets 21 to 24 points. Spot market advanced 25 points, New York being 5.85c. New Orleans 5.60c, Galveston and Houston 5.55c.

Liverpool was strong and 10 to 11 points higher. Shorts in July were active buyers and found offerings light. Weather over the cotton belt was mixed.

Reports from the Worth street cloth market indicated a quiet position. World's consumption of American cotton in May as estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service was 1,017,000 bales against 1,072,000 bales in April and 964,000 bales in May last year. Fairchilds estimates a reduction in cotton acreage is 8.3 per cent and acreage of 57,770,000, with the conditions 76 per cent of normal.
